

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. The
YOUNG MAN AND THE

By ALBERT J. BEVERIDGE, U. S. Senator from Indiana. 12mo, Ornamental Cloth, $1.50 net. Postage additional.

This is a book which will go into every home where there is a son and a mother. Hundreds of letters in regard to it have been received by the publishers from all over the country.

Plowboy at twelve; logger at fourteen; college graduate at twenty-three, plainsman, law-clerk, lawyer; United States Senator at thirty-six—that is what Senator Beveridge, poor and without a pull, has done by sheer pluck and hard work.

This book is a talk with the young man about the young man of the young man's country by its most prominent young man.

It is concentrated common sense. It does not preach, scold nor advise tiresomely. It reads like friends talking together. It is as forcible, vigorous, and healthy as the man himself.

THE NEW RILEY BOOK

SONGS O' CHEER

BY

JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY

Uniform with Child-Rhymes, Farm-Rhymes and Love-Lyrics

A collection of the favorites of Mr. Riley's poems of gladness, content, and consolation.

"Songs o' Cheer" is one of the most beautiful books of poetry ever issued. If possible it excels in subject and form the charm and beauty of its predecessors in the "Deer Creek" volumes of Mr. Riley's poems named above.

David Graham Phillips's Great New Novel

THE DELUGE

Mr Phillips's new novel is important to every fiction-lover because it grips the attention in a vise of steel. It is important to every patriotic American because it lays absolutely bare the financial dilemma toward which the country has drifted.

"This shall be," says the narrator at the beginning of the story, "a cross-section out of the very heart of our life to-day, with its big and bold energies and passions, the swiftest and intensest life ever lived by the human race."

By DAVID GRAHAM PHILLIPS, author of "The Cost," "The Plum Tree," etc.

The Travelling Thirds

By GERTRUDE ATHERTON

Armed with Baedekers, the Moultons resolve to include Spain in their European trip even if they have to travel third-class. So the party start off together, but soon Puck and Cupid begin their devilments and work midsummer madness among them. For three-fourths of the way there is no end of fun and mirth in the sayings and doings of the frequently shocked Moultons in a land of brigands and fierce matadors, then the love-story swings out into the open and is carried to a swift and passionate climax. The close is something of a surprise, and is achieved by a bold stroke of imagination.

The Pleasant Tragedies of Childhood

Drawings by F. Y. CORY Verses by BURGES JOHNSON

Miss Cory's humorous drawings of children are popular everywhere. This series of drawings in black and tint represent typical mirthful phases in the lives of little tots which will appeal to every father and mother. Each is accompanied by merry little rhymes by Burges Johnson.

Mrs. Raffles

By JOHN KENDRICK BANGS

Mr. Bangs has most amusingly parodied the adventures of the celebrated Raffles in narrating the burglaries in which, after Raffles death, his widow is concerned. How Andrew Carnegie is induced to donate a library to Rafflehurst-by-the-Sea; how Mrs. Raffles obtains a munificent loan on the strength of a few Steel bonds, and at last runs off with Mrs. Constant Scrappe's husband, make the most laughable narrative. It is all done in Mr. Bangs' best vein with many little flings at the foibles of the fashionable world.

JAMES M. LUDLOW'S NEW NOVEL

ILLUSTRATED CLOTH, $1.50

SIR RAOUL

Author of "DEBORAH" Etc.

A Story of the Theft of an Empire

Dr. Ludlow's novel is a drama of inner conscience, as well as a thrilling story of outward adventure, and is a worthy companion to his successes, "The Captain of the Janizaries" and "Deborah."

The great plot of Sir Raoul and the Romance of the Lady Renée are based upon the historical facts concerning the miscarriage of that crusade of the XIIIth century which was diverted from conquering the Moslems to the capture of the Christian city of Constantinople. The love story that runs through the whole gives a picture of a woman whom one can never forget.

St. Cuthbert's

A Parish Romance

R. E. KNOWLES

Cloth, $1.50

"What Ian Maclaren has done for his Scotch parish, what Barrie has done for Thrums, Robert E. Knowles does for his primitive folk on this side the Atlantic. He has a rare sense of humor and his sketches are instinct with sentiment and pathos."—Albany Argus.

An Illustrated Record in Four Volumes by RICHARD GARNETT, C.B., LL.D., and EDMUND GOSSE, M.A., LL.D.

Volume I. From the Beginnings to the Age of Henry VIII. By RICHARD GARNETT, C.B., LL.D.

Volume II. From the Age of Henry VIII. to the Age of Milton. By RICHARD GARNETT, C.B., LL D., and EDMUND GOSSE, M.A., LL.D.

Volume III. From the Age of Milton to the Age of Johnson. By EDMUND GOSSE, M.A., LL.D.

Volume IV. From the Age of Johnson to the Age of Tennyson. By EDMUND GOSSE, M.A., LL.D.

The ripest achievement of two recognized authorities, one a foremost scholar, the other one of the most distinguished critics of the day.

In its scrupulous exactness the work does not lose sight of the fascinating human side of its subject. It tells not only who the writer was and what he wrote, but what he looked like, where he lived, who were his teachers, who his pupils, what his handwriting was and how he appeared in caricature to his contemporaries.

The illustrations are a supremely important feature of the work. One critic remarks: "To turn these pages is like visiting a museum of old manuscripts and paintings, and it is needless to say what a powerful instrument this is in making the subject vivid and raising the interest." It is almost impossible to find a page without some document of great interest or value.

The appeal of this work must not be misunderstood. It is not confined to any class or section. It is impossible for any one to open it and not find something to hold him interested as few story books can.

"Never before was a popular history of literature so carefully planned or so satisfactorily completed."—The Review of Reviews.

Illustrated with Colour Plates, Photogravures, Wood-engravings, and many Lithographic Facsimiles; also a large number of the best accredited Portraits of English Authors, Autographs, Title-pages, Caricatures, etc., etc.

NOTES IN SEASON.

A. C. McCLURG & Co. announce "Ben Blair: a story of a plainsman," by Will Lillibridge, for October 21, and "Sword of the Old Frontier," by Randall Parrish, for October 28. Of the first they printed 15,000 and of the second 25,000, and they already see the need of a second printing order in both cases.

D. APPLETON & Co. publish this week "At the Emperor's Wish," a Japanese story by Oscar King Davis, which the publishers have illustrated with Japanese designs and colored pictures; also, Kirk Monroe's postponed juvenile, entitled "The Outcast Warrior." On October 15 the house will issue de luxe editions of Kipling's "The Seven Seas" and Gilbert Parker's "The Seats of the Mighty."

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have just ready "The Companionship of Books and Other Papers," by Frederick Rowland Marvin, composed of literary and instructive essays on many subjects; "What to Have For Breakfast," by Olive Green; and two novels, one entitled "Our Best Society," which is so very outspoken a satire on the prominent people of the day that the author's name is withheld for the present; and the other called "Under Guiding Stars," which is a Massachusetts story of the end of the nineteenth century by Agnes Blake Poor, author of "Boston Neighbors."

HARPER & BROTHERS have just issued "The Travelling Thirds," by Gertrude Atherton, in which the Moultons decide to see Spain, even if they travel third class. Puck and Cupid meet them early in their trip, and the story is told with the author's fine technique to its surprising end. They have also just ready "The Pleasant Tragedies of Childhood," consisting of verses by Burges Johnson and drawings by F. Y. Cory; and "Mrs. Raffles," in which John Kendrick Bangs has amusingly parodied the adventures of the celebrated Raffles and given many little flings at the foibles of the fashionable world.

L. C. PAGE & Co. have just ready "Celebrated Crimes of the Russian Court," a translation into English, for the first time, of Dumas's "En Russie," which was written just after the trip through Russia which Dumas made at the expense of the French Government, full of keen observations on the history and everyday life of the Russians; "Cathedrals and Churches of the Rhine," the new volume in the Cathedral Series, by Francis Miltoun, with illustrations and decorations by Blanche McManus; "The Art of the National Gallery," by Julia DeW. Addison, the new volume of the Art Galleries Series; also, "Red Fox," the new animal story by Professor Charles G. D. Roberts, with illustrations by Charles Livingston Bull.

BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY have just ready "The Deluge," by David Graham Phillips, which cleverly deals with the great financial problems which every patriotic American knows are seriously menacing this country; and on October 15 they will bring out their chief holiday book, which is again provided by James Whitcomb Riley and Will Vawter. It is entitled "Songs o' Cheer," and is a selection of the poet's favorite songs of gladness and consolation, beautified with nearly 100 Hoosier pictures of the artist who catches Riley's spirit so remarkably. Also just ready are "The Best Policy," life insurance stories by Elliott Flower; and "Banjo Talks," poems of negro life by Anne Virginia Culbertson, illustrated from photographs by Mary Morgan Keipp and Heustis Pratt Cook.

The author, as the first General Superintendent of Education for the Philippines, had special opportunities for learning the actual conditions by visits to practically every part of the archipelago and by conferences with Filipinos as well as Americans, both civil and military. Trips to Java, China, Japan and India have, furthermore, given him standards of comparison. After a general introduction the geography and history of the Islands are separately treated; then follows much information concerning climate, public health, the people, their superstitions and religion, the native and foreign government, education, etc. Mr. Atkinson is optimistic concerning the future of the Philippines, though he thinks "the Filipinos are incapable of self-government" at present, and that "granting independence in any near future would be a great error."

Montefiano, a little Italian hill-village, is the scene. Donna Bianca, the heiress to the village estates, is brought here by her step-mother to prevent her marrying a young Roman engineer not of noble birth. Her step-mother's brother aspires to her hand and the house priest, a man of no character, aids him in his plots. The village priest, an ideal character, comes to the rescue. The rents on the estates went up; the peasants rose, and a most dramatic riot is quelled by the village priest. He learns all the facts and helps the young people to lasting happiness.

Baker, Louise Regina. Mrs. Pinner's little girl. Phil., G: W. Jacobs & Co., [1905. Ag.] c. 6-232 p. il. D. (Little maid ser.) cl., †$1.

The story of a little family left orphans and penniless. They have a cousin, Cynthia, who comes from Boston to look after them, but she is very poor herself. The best she can do is to find good homes for them all. Mary the elder, a girl of ten years, is adopted by the Pinners, rich people who have lost their own child of that age, and who are very good to her. Mary learns to love them, but is never happy until she gathers together again her little brothers and sisters.

In the nearly ten years that have elapsed since the appearance of the first edition of this little book, the newer and so-called bacterial processes of sewage treatment have been announced, passed through an experimental stage and come into extensive use. Meanwhile the author has improved many opportunities to visit American sewage purification works, old and new, and during 1904 spent several months abroad, chiefly in Great Britain, visiting sewage works. As a consequence, the section which deals with the purification of sewage has been largely rewritten and extended.

The separate histories of three Southern girls in war-time. The adventures of one take place on the Atlantic Coast and the sea, and her lover is a sailor. The Mississippi River furnishes the background for the adventures of the second maiden, who marries in spite of herself a Yankee non-combatant from whom she flees, not to be won again till the fall of Vicksburg. The last of the trio has a lover who is a Southerner through and through and a captain of cavalry under Stonewall Jackson. While romance is the motif of these three stories, historical events play an important part.

Study of mother love—one woman blind adoring, idealizing; the other, forgiving, comprehending and unselfish, Patricia, an Australian girl, brimming over with vitality, beautiful and trusting, has married an Englishman of irreproachable character and many acres. Years later she finds out he has deeply wronged her; yet to spare his mother, she keeps silent even after her husband's death and the reading of his iniquitous will wherein he protects himself at his wife's expense. But Patricia also has an only son and it is her effort to gain his love and confidence, and at the same time keep peace with her saintly though misjudging mother-in-law, that the story records. County neighbors play an important part in the history.

The fourth of the series of novels devoted to the history of the old New York frontier in the days of the American war for Independence. The third story is not yet published. For notice of first, "Cardigan,"

See P. W., Weekly Record, Sept. 21, '01; for. second, "Maid at arms," October 4, '02. The hero of this story is a spy in New York risking a traitor's dishonorable death for the cause. He is discovered by a man bent on seeing General Clinton to submit a plan for the defeat of Washington, but a woman stands between them and he is given a chance of flight. The story is strikingly romantic but rests upon historic facts.

The fern allies, by reason of their curious forms and often great abundance, seldom fail to attract the attention of the student of plants, but their identification has always proved more or less of a puzzle to beginners. Like the ferns, they bear neither flowers nor seeds, and at first glance seem to offer few points by which they may be distinguished. The species are usually included in botanical manuals, but the necessary brief and technical descriptions have tended to discourage rather than to aid the novice. In reality, however, most of the species are easily identified, and it is one of the purposes of this book to point out how this may be done.—Preface.

Cook, Theodore Andrea. Old Provence. N. Y., Scribner, 1905. [S.] c. 2 v., 16+348; 13+445 p. il. D. cl., $4 net.

As in his previous work on "Old Touraine," the author has here written not only a history of Provence, but also a descriptive account of its towns and antiquities with their legendary and romantic associations. The first volume is "devoted to the Phœnicians, Greeks and Romans who have left traces upon the soil of France that are as remarkable as any to be found in Italy;" the second brings the story of Provence through the transition period to the year 1484 when Provence, ceasing to be an independent kingdom, was ceded to France.

During the quarter of a century since Judge Cooley completed this history of Michigan students have given much attention to the early history of the Northwest. Although a large mass of details has been gathered to enrich the story, little has been discovered to change the general outlines as here sketched. Mr. Charles Moore has taken advantage of the opportunity now presented to extend the record of the State, by means of a supplementary chapter covering the most important events in the history of Michigan during the last part of the nineteenth century, and setting forth the conditions that prevail at the opening of the twentieth century.

"The consumer is between the upper and the nether millstone." This is the motto printed on the cover of this study of the economic future of this country and the world at large. The consumer, says Mr. Cooper, is ground between labor and capital when they disagree, between overproduction and the present-day efforts to control it when it is too late, between competition and its restraint by trusts, which, he holds, are but a means to an end, as feudalism was a means to reach monarchism, and monarchism a necessary step toward the rule of the people. What this author seeks is the organization of the consumer, as capital has already been organized and labor.

Curtis, Olin Alfred. The Christian faith; personally given in a system of doctrine. N. Y., Eaton & Mains, [1905.] c. 11+541 p. O. cl., *$2.50 net.

Author is Professor of Systematic Theology in the Drew Theological Seminary. He says in his preface: "Neither in claim nor in spirit is this book dogmatic. As indicated in several ways by the book itself, there is no attempt to speak the final word, no aim to be, or to become, 'the recognized authority' of any church, or of any school, or of any man. After years of preparatory waiting I have, I believe, caught an important vision of the Christian faith as an organic whole of doctrine, and I am eager to help other men to catch the same vision. In reading the book, many peculiarities of scheme and method will be discovered; but the main clue to all can be found in one thing, namely, in the junction of the two ideas, personal responsibility and racial solidarity. . . . In this peculiar junction there may be, I sometimes hope, a fair mediation between Arminianism and Calvinism."

Dix, Beulah Marie. The fair maid of Graystones. N. Y., Macmillan, 1905. [S.] c. 5+351 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

The author's knowledge of the stress of the time of the Cavaliers and Roundheads is again shown in this story that is laid in a great country house called Graystones, situated in Suffolkshire, England. The time is 1648 just after the surrender of the Cavalier stronghold of Colchester to the Parliamentary forces. The hero is Cavalier, the maiden Roundhead. The form of fiction makes attractive the thoroughly authentic history.

Donnell, Annie Hamilton. Rebecca Mary; il. by Elizabeth Shippen Green. N. Y., Harper, 1905. [S.] c. 4+194 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Old New England is the scene of a succession of episodes in the life of the child Rebecca Mary, brought up in good old fashion by her Aunt Olivia. They were Plummers and the Plummers never showed their feelings. Aunt Olivia was upheld by her sense of duty, Rebecca by a white rooster, her only source of sympathy. Warm human nature and loving hearts at last subdue even the Plummer characteristics. About a child but written for grown people.

This little girl went from Maine to San Francisco more than fifty years ago. The city then was primitive enough, but even in her short life there she saw it grow to something like its present proportions. Laverne Westbury has a checkered life. Left an orphan when scarcely more than a child, she is adopted by an old friend of her mother's and taken to California. After some years her father, whom she thought dead, discovers her. He has made a fortune and married again, and carries Laverne to London, where she narrowly escapes marrying a lord.

Romantic episode in Venetian history. When the Huns appeared before Venice, in 1335, bent on pillage and conquest, a young nobleman was dispatched in command of three galleys to drive out the invaders from the neighboring island of Arbe. Landed on the island a prisoner, a young girl was brought before him and acknowledged herself to be the hated Princess Yaga, the leader of the Huns. But both man and girl immediately developed an all-consuming love for each other, which involved them in a series of surprising adventures leading to a wholly unexpected climax. The book is embellished by full-page colored illustrations, and there are decorations in tint on each page, and artistic binding.

Some twelve years ago Professor Goodnow wrote a work entitled "Comparative administrative law." The great interest in administrative subjects, now so manifest in this country, has led him since to believe that a fuller treatment of American administrative conditions than was possible in a book devoted to a comparison of different administrative systems was desirable. This is his reason for preparing this work. It follows the same plan adopted in his "Comparative administrative law," retaining in a number of instances the language used in the former work. In the main, however, the portions of the former work dealing with American conditions have been greatly amplified, if not absolutely rewritten.

The interest centres entirely in Ora Pinsent a popular English actress with a husband somewhere in the background and Ashley Mead, a barrister of few briefs, who falls in love with her. The study of Ora's character is a most careful one. She is only met in private life, with her friends and admirers, where she seems to be as much of an actress as on the stage. Her excitable, superficial nature and her love for dramatic situations, which often carry her to the very brink of immorality, are illustrated through a wealth of witty dialogue, and worldly philosophy. Ashley Mead is a good type of the modern society man, not without noble impulses. Ora sacrifices to her love of the stage both friends and lover.

"The chief idea underlying the preparation of this volume has been to present to the people of Michigan a true account of the life and work of John D. Pierce, our first superintendent of Public instruction. Almost seventy years have gone since he entered upon his educational work, and more than twenty years since his death, and as yet no adequate study of his career has appeared. . . . Falling as Mr. Pierce's labors in education did in the period coincident with the beginnings of our statehood, it has been thought desirable as an introduction to his life and work to offer some preliminary observations concerning our national and local educational inheritances, as well as to sketch briefly the course of Michigan history up to the close of the Territorial days."—Preface.

Hutten, Bettina, (Baroness v.) He and Hecuba: a novel. N. Y., Appleton, 1905. [O.] c. 4+299 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

King Hardy, an English clergyman, in his youth had loved an Italian woman and unintentionally killed her husband. Later he marries an English girl, and between poverty, pride, numerous children and an incompetent wife, he finds life a grim struggle to which remorse for the unsuspected tragedy of his youth is an added burden. At the home of his friends, Lord and Lady Yarrow, he meets a beautiful Spanish woman, supposed to be a widow, but whom he finds out is the wife of Lord Yarrow's dearest friend. Driven by poverty, Hardy turns the story of his early folly into a novel, which, published anonymously as "He and Hecuba," becomes the book of the hour, denounced for its immorality while admired for its power. But the Spanish woman, recognizing Hardy as its author and original, becomes madly infatuated with the man of the book. Hardy, wearied out with life's struggle, hating and distrusting himself, loses his life in a diphtheria epidemic, and the woman meets her deserved end.

Miss Cynthia at the age of thirty-five was informed by her physician that she had only one more year to live. She had lived a narrow life, tormented by a New England conscience and controlled first by her mother and then by an old family servant. She had plenty of means but lived a very frugal life. She decides to follow her own inclinations for the last year of her life. She shows her natural generous nature, makes all about her happy and finds herself growing stronger day by day. Finally, an old lover, now a doctor, takes her into his keeping and completes her cure.

Knowles, Rob. E. St. Cuthbert's: a novel. N. Y. and Chic., Revell, 1905. c. 3-339 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The author is in charge of the largest Presbyterian church in Canada, which is in Galt, one of the smaller towns. The story, told in first person, is of a call to the parish of St. Cuthbert's where he has some up-hill work owing to his being of Irish descent. His wife and daughter are ideal women and the daughter's love story strongly influences her father's work in the parish. The details of parish life among orthodox Scotchmen in Canada are told with humor and pathos.

A little book based upon a correspondence recently published in Germany that was carried on for many years between Richard Wagner and Mathilde Wesendonk. Frau Wesendonk is said to have inspired Wagner's most impassioned creation, his "Isolde," and to have been his confidant in all his musical inspirations. Gustav Kobbé tells his story through a selection of these letters and journals, to which he gives an introduction and the connecting narrative. It is a most romantic episode in the life of a great genius, and has stirred the musical world strongly.

While this work is a continuation of the author's previous volume (covering the years 1513-1561), the subject has been treated as a distinct episode in the history of the Spanish colonial enterprises, so that the story is complete in itself, irrespective of its relation to the preceding volume. The work embraces the period of the French settlement in Florida under Ribaut and Laudonniere, their expulsion of Pedro Menendez de Aviles, and the foundation of the first permanent Spanish colony. In addition to the relation of the events in Florida, the volume contains a review of the Spanish policy with regard to French aggression in North America, and the diplomatic relations between Philip II., and Catherine de' Medici in respect to their conflicting claims to Florida, both previous and subsequent to the massacre of the Huguenots by the Spaniards. It also gives the history of the various missions in Florida, South Carolina, and Virginia undertaken at the instigation of Spain.

Loyson, Mme. Emilie Jane Butterfield Meriman. To Jerusalem through the lands of Islam among Jews, Christians, and Moslems; preface by Prince de Polignac. Chic., Open Court Publishing Co., 1905. 8+325 p. il. O. cl., $1.25.

Mme. Loyson is the wife of Père Hyacinthe Loyson, the leader of the Catholic reform movement in France. During 1894-6 two journeys in the Orient were made by them, in the course of which they visited Algiers, Tunis, Egypt, and the Holy Land. These journeys, taken primarily for pleasure and recuperation, became inspired by the higher purpose of a reconciliation of races and religions. Père Hyacinthe and his wife mixed freely with the Mohammedans, studied their customs and faith, and held conferences with their leading men, so that they might ascertain the points of similarity between the religion of Islam and Christianity, with a view to a broader toleration and permanent peace between Christians and Mohammedans. Mme. Loyson's book is therefore both a record of travel and a study of Mohammedanism.

Mrs. Larkins was left a widow when her oldest daughter was fourteen and made a living doing family washing. A man who has buried four wives asks for the daughter's hand when she is eighteen. After some argument Mrs. Larkins consents. A young lover and a girl's club interfere. There is a great surprise on the wedding night and Mrs. Larkins, pitying the old suitor, takes him herself. The story is told with much humor.

The author in his preface says: "The stand-point from which this book is written is suggested by the title of the series. I regard Mohammed as a great man, who solved a political problem of appalling difficulty—the construction of a state and an empire out of the Arab tribes. I have endeavored, in recounting the mode in which he accomplished this, to do justice to his intellectual ability and to observe toward him the respectful attitude which his greatness deserves, but otherwise this book does not aim at being either an apology or an indictment. Indeed neither sort of work is now required."—Bibliography (3 p.)

Marshall, Archibald. The house of Merrilees. Bost., Herbert B. Turner & Co., 1905. [S.] c. 4+387 p. il. D. cl., †$1.50.

The scene is laid in the English lake district. A young boy living alone with his mother and a little girl the mother had adopted is puzzled all through his school and college life about the relationship of a man who takes full charge of his mother's affairs and of whom his mother seems to stand in awe. He becomes a barrister and is set to unravel the mystery of the "House of Merrilees" and finds it closely connected with his own life history. The plot is intricate and seasoned novel readers are kept mystified to the end.

Martin, Mrs. Helen Reimensnyder. Sabina: a story of the Amish. N. Y., Century Co., 1905. [O.] c. 5+233 p. D. cl., †$1.25.

As in her previous story, "Tillie: a Mennonite maid," the author has found her characters among the Pennsylvania Germans, but in this case they are of the Amish sect—people quite as uneducated, narrow-minded, and stolid, but judging from Sabina's family, less hard and unloving than the Mennonites. This is a pathetic little love story of eighteen-year-old Sabina who comes in contact with an artist from the outside world and is made dissatisfied and unhappy with her life. A face seen in a vision plays an important part in the story.

Older, Mrs. Fremont. The giants. N. Y., Appleton, 1905. [S.] c. 3+285 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

The story opens in Southern California some years back. A settler, almost ruined, "strikes oil" upon his property and all looks bright until the Standard Oil machinations lead to the loss of everything, even the settler's life. His son arrives in New York to earn a living and meets the head of the oil combination who offers him a fine position, as he has brains; the one requisite for success in the intricate scheme of monopoly. The son refuses and fights all his life to kill the giant of monopoly by opposing the giant of true American independence. Many facts of recent business transactions are realistically worked into an intricate plot.

Orczy, (Baroness —.) The scarlet pimpernel. N. Y., Putnam, 1905. 8+312 p. il. D. cl., †$1.50.

A romance of the French Revolution, 1792-3. The "Scarlet Pimperel" was the mysterious chief of a daring band of young Englishmen who worked to rescue the Emigré nobles from the French Terrorists. The scene shifts between Paris and London. The French heroine is as brave and enthusiastic as the English hero. The author also produced her story as a play in London, and the illustrations are photographs of the scenes and actors. She dedicates her novel to Julia Neilson and Fred Terry who made its success as a play.

Osbourne, Lloyd. Baby Bullet: the bubble of destiny. N. Y., Appleton, 1905. [S.] c. 4+288 p. il. D. cl., †$1.50.

The step-son of Robert L. Stevenson has written a rollicking story of ninety days sport in England. "Baby Bullet," is a little French automobile in which two southern California ladies take their vacation. Baby Bullet brought four people together and intertwined the threads of their lives. The author makes clear that "within the ranks of the Gasolene Brotherhood there exists a feeling only comparable to the primitive church. . . . Rank is forgotten in the common danger and the common need."

A sequel to "Mrs. Tree" (July 12, 1902) laid in the seaboard New England village that was the scene of "Geoffrey Strong" (August 17, 1901.) At the age of 102 the long widowed sea-captain's wife, who had been autocrat of the little town for most of the life-time of her neighbors, died quietly and left a will that equally surprised those who benefited and those who were disappointed. The consequences of this will affected the lives of many characters described with insight and humor. Old fashioned love triumphs after much tribulation.

The history of carbonic acid in medicine is very little known. At least text-books hardly speak of it. The material for the historical sketch here given the writer found in great part in French and German books not translated into English. Among the transactions of the Congress of Balneologists, which met in Berlin from March 9 to March 13, 1905, perhaps the most important were the papers read by Homberger and Fellner on the effect of carbonic-acid baths. Dr. Rose availed himself of these publications; they reached him just before he had finished his manuscript.

Squire, Frances, [Mrs. Frances Boardman Squire Potter.] The Ballingtons: a novel. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., 1905. [O.] c. 4+445 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

The story of two marriages. In one the husband was rich but allowed his wife no money for herself and forced her to stoop to deception to aid her mother and sister in their dire distress. In the other the woman was rich, but when she could not make her husband leave his position as bank-clerk and live on her income, became reckless and almost lost her reputation for one of the Ballingtons. How far a husband or wife must respect each other's individuality and grant each other freedom in the marriage relation is the author's study. The scene is laid in New York State.

For a quarter of a century Dr. Street passed his summers at Southwest Harbor, Mount Desert, becoming thoroughly familiar with the beautiful island, and by acquaintance with the permanent residents of Mount Desert and neighboring islands learning a great deal of local history and legend. This first-hand knowledge has been supplemented by exhaustive study of letters and documents relating to the early history of our country. At the time of his death, in 1904, Dr. Street had not entirely completed this work, so that it fell to the share of Samuel E. Eliot to put it into shape for publication. Herein are described the discovery of Mount Desert in 1604 by Champlain; the French Jesuit settlements on the island some years later; then the English occupation after the French and Indian War, and supsequent history as pioneer colony and summer resort. Written by the wife of Bayard Taylor who was the daughter of Hansen the noted mathematician and astronomer, Mrs. Taylor's life with her husband in Europe and America brought her into contact with the brightest minds of her time. Her book abounds with anecdotes of such famous figures as the Brownings, Thackeray, the Stoddards, George William Curtis, Boker, Aldrich, the Warner and Cary sisters, Horace Greeley, Bryant, Stedman, Swinburne, Freytag, Bismarck, General Grant, and so on; and naturally contains the most intimate picture yet published of Bayard Taylor and his work.

The author is an English barrister who wrote "Secrets of the courts of Europe" in 1897; and "Secret history of to-day: the revelations of a diplomatic spy," in 1904, both showing prophetic insight into the problems of the monarchs of Europe. In this story the author makes clear the sinking of the English fishing schooners by the Baltic fleet of Russia and brings in all kinds of events that seemed hallucinations when the story appeared serially, but which have since come true in startling manner.

Warner, G: H. The Jewish spectre. N. Y., Doubleday, Page & Co., 1905. [S.] c. 6+ 377 p. D. cl., $1.50 net.

A study of the Jew of history and of to-day. The author is an American and thinks the Jew will amalgamate with all the other foreigners in time. He thinks the religion of the Jews will resolve itself in time with all other religions into the one lasting religion which he words: "The human being is the thing." What the Jew really was and is and his contribution to civilization are put with effectiveness, clearness and humor. The author claims that every theology separated from state control works toward the same end, the survival of the truth regardless of fixed doctrine.

Wells, Herbert G: Kipps: the story of a simple soul. N. Y., Scribner, 1905. c. 6+ 479 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

In a little rural spot in England Kipps was brought up by an aunt and uncle until at the age of fourteen he was apprenticed for seven years to a draper in a little town. The old system of "bound help" is described in detail. Kipps inherits a fortune and is launched into society. A girl captures him and tries to educate him in the frills and fads of modern social circles. Kipps does not respond, the engagement is broken and a girl of his own class and from his old home finally makes him happy. He has no aspirations higher than a shop. He deals in second-hand books as merchandise and other articles needed by average people. Kipp's views of life afford the author room for many facts of modern social inanity.

Lois Page was a very unhappy little girl because she had no one to play with, being an only child. Her especial friend—Daisy, the daughter of the minister—had left the town with her father, when the story opens, and Lois is in the depths of woe. But consolation comes with the new minister and his flock of nice boys and girls, with whom Lois has "lots of fun."

Besides thrilling stories of adventure, with the big game of the far east—that is India, Sumatra, Malay, and Siam—information abounds relative to the natives, their lives, customs, etc. Nearly all the illustrations are from photographs taken by the author.

Wiborg, Frank. A commercial traveller in South America: being the experiences and impressions of an American business man on a trip through Panama, Ecuador, Peru, Chile, the Argentine and Brazil. N. Y., McClure, Phillips & Co., 1905. c. 26+ 159 p. il. D. cl., $1 net.

The author's route lay across Panama; thence, stopping at frequent ports, down the western coast of South America; over the Andes to the Argentine and by water up the eastern coast, thus visiting the chief countries of South America. Aside from interesting observations of people, places and customs, there is an informing chapter on the existing trade relations between South America and England, Germany and France, and the slight part the United States plays in the South American markets.

Wiggin, Kate Douglas Smith, [now Mrs. G: Christopher Riggs.] Rose o' the river; il. by G: Wright. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1905. [S.] c. 5+177 p. D. cl., †$1.25.

The Saco Valley, Maine, is the scene of a pretty love story. The heroine is the village belle, whose vanity leads her for a time away from the man who sincerely loves her. The hero is a logger, although a college man. Logging and jam-breaking on the Saco river play important parts in the narrative. The minor characters are quaintly humorous, realistic portraits of New England village types.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

OCTOBER 7, 1905.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

THE HARPER RE-REORGANIZATION.

FIVE years ago the Harper corporation was reorganized for the second time along the lines of the drastic methods of "high finance" on a financial basis which Colonel Harvey, the new president of the corporation, declared to be "absolutely impregnable," "equitable in every respect," and "assuring the ultimate payment of every dollar of indebtedness in full." Previous to this date the embarrassments into which the old firm of Harper & Brothers had fallen had been temporarily relieved by a loan from J. P. Morgan & Co. of $850,000, and a Harper & Brothers corporation had been formed which issued $3,000,000 first mortgage bonds as security for the Morgan loan. This scheme of tying up the assets of the corporation at a valuation of $3,000,000 in security for a loan of $850,000 produced the natural result, and a second reorganization was worked out, under a committee representing J. P. Morgan & Co. and the banks involved. This plan provided for $2,000,000 (instead of $3,000,000) first mortgage five per cent. bonds, of which $1,250,000 was turned over to J. P. Morgan & Co. as collateral for the $850,000 loan, $80,000 paid to secured creditors, and $170,000 placed in the treasury of the corporation to provide working capital; for $2,000,000 income bonds (to pay one per cent. for two years, two per cent. for three years and five per cent. thereafter) to be delivered in unstated amount to general creditors, the unstated excess to remain in the corporation treasury; and for $2,000,000 capital stock to be paid to "present stockholders" (of the preceding corporation) or to Colonel Harvey for his services as president for five years. It was stated by Colonel Harvey that the plan provided a working capital in cash of $175,000, supplemented by $170,000 treasury bonds. The hopes based upon this plan have not been realized, and but one per cent. per year has been paid upon income bonds.

On the expiration of the five-year period, September 30, 1905, the reorganization committee issued under date of September 25 a scheme for a still further reorganization, being the third, which is printed elsewhere. Comparison may be made with the earlier scheme of the same committee, printed in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY for February 24, 1900. The circular letter of the committee fails to give several important facts which are necessary for a judgment of the plan and the future prospects of the corporation under the proposed shape; for instance, it is not stated to what extent depreciation charges upon plant have been written off as operating expenses. It is stated, however, that the reorganized company "has prospered sufficiently" to pay out in cash in addition to operating disbursements the sum of $903,179.25—made up of $420,036.24 interest upon loans and the one per cent. on income bonds; $128,477.79 authors' royalties and taxes accrued under the old company; $154,531.37 other indebtedness incurred by the old company, whose liquidation in cash was necessitated, which it was difficult to trace in the former statement; and necessary additions to manufacturing plant costing $200,133.85. It is not stated whether this amount represents actual earnings or whether it was to some extent advanced from capital. The statement is made that the total indebtedness of the company other than income bonds can be liquidated at $1,370,161.78, "covering the entire amount stated in the reorganization plan" and also all accounts payable. As the secured indebtedness stated in the reorganization plan aggregated $930,000, there is an amount approximating $400,000, the nature of which, unless accounts payable, does not seem to be explained.

The committee's new plan proposes a new five per cent. first mortgage to the amount of $2,000,000 (in place of the $1,500,000), of which $1,500,000 are to be sold or exchanged to provide for or secure present indebtedness, and $500,000 left in the treasury for future requirements; and a new feature of $1,000,000 preferred stock, with non-cumulative dividends up to six per cent., for which the old creditors are to be asked to exchange their income bonds, on which it is declared no interest could be paid for many years to come, at the rate of fifty cents on the dollar, this compromise requiring $889,386.66, while of the balance, $53,363.20, is to be used to pay the additional one per cent. for three years which was not paid on the income bonds, a payment of interest from capital which is seriously open to criticism, and the remaining $57,250.14 is to remain as treasury stock for future use, this new class of preferred stock to have representation on the Board of Directors. Under this plan the capitalization and indebtedness of the company as reorganized will be the $2,000,000 stock which for five years has been in the hands of a voting trust holding it in the interest of Colonel Harvey, $942,149.86 issued preferred stock, and $1,500,000 five per cent. first mortgage bonds, providing further as working capital any excess of the bonds issued above amounts liquidated, which is not stated, and the unissued $500,000 first mortgage bonds, and $57,250.14 unissued preferred stock.

We have endeavored to translate the circular from the language of high finance into plain English, in comparison with the previous reorganization schemes, and for the present we prefer to let these facts speak for themselves.

PROPOSED READJUSTMENT OF THE AFFAIRS OF HARPER & BROTHERS.

THE following circular has been issued by the Harper & Brothers Reorganization Committee, consisting of Alexander E. Orr, chairman, William A. Nash, William M. Laffan, Stephen Baker and Augustine Smith:

To the Holders of Securities of Harper & Brothers (Incorporated):

The five years of operation of the business of Harper & Brothers, under the plan and agreement dated February 17, 1900, being about to expire on September 30, 1905, your committee begs to report that, under the executive direction of Mr. George Harvey as President, and of Messrs. Orr, Nash and Laffan as Finance and Advisory Committee, the reorganized company, without being obliged to raise new capital, has prospered sufficiently to pay out in cash, in addition to the disbursements required, in operation of the business, the sum of $903,179.25, as follows:

(1.) Authors' royalties accrued under the old company.....	$51,138 77
(2.) Taxes accrued under the old company, amounting to.....	77,339 02
(3.) Other indebtedness incurred by the old company, whose liquidation by cash was essential to the continuance of the business and reorganization expenses, amounting to...	154,531 37
(4.) Necessary additions to manufacturing plant, costing.....	200,133 85
(5.) Interest upon loans and income bonds, amounting to.....	420,036 24
Total.....	$903,179 25

It is not too much to say, in addition, that, despite its distressed condition at the time of voluntary liquidation, the company to-day is fully re-established in the confidence of the public, and has demonstrated a growing earning capacity eminently satisfactory.

Your committee, therefore, feels that the time has now come for a definite adjustment of securities upon a conservative and enduring basis.

The total indebtedness of the company, other than income bonds, can be liquidated at $1,370,161.78, that covering the entire amount stated in the reorganization plan and also all accounts payable.

It was provided in the original agreement that until the indebtedness secured by the outstanding mortgage bonds should be paid in full, and the bonds themselves cancelled, dividends upon the income bonds should not exceed two per cent. In view of the extraordinary payments out of net earnings to meet the heavy requirements under the reorganization plan, amounts equal to but one per cent. have been available for interest payments upon the income bonds. In order to secure an extension of the loans stated in the plan, it would be necessary to apply all net earnings, in excess of operating cost and interest, to payments on account of the principal of such indebtedness, so that no further payments of interest upon the income bonds could be anticipated for a considerable number of years.

In order to render net earnings immediately available for dividend purposes, your committee begs to submit a proposal designed to enable the company to cancel its outstanding mortgage bonds, by the sale of new first mortgage bonds, reserving in the treasury a sufficient number to meet the possible requirements of further expansion of business.

The proposal, in brief, is as follows:

1. That the Company make a new first mortgage for $2,000,000, bearing interest at the rate of five per cent. per annum, to be represented by 2,000 bonds of $1,000 denomination, of which $1,500,000 par value are to be sold, or used in exchange, to provide for the security of present indebtedness and the cancellation of the present outstanding bonds and mortgage (any surplus to revert to the treasury for uses of the Company); the remaining $500,000 to be retained in the treasury for future requirements of the Company.

2. That the Company authorize an issue of $1,000,000 par value of new preferred stock entitled to non-cumulative dividends at the rate of six per cent. per annum, such stock to the extent of $889,386.66 par value to be issued in exchange for outstanding income bonds pro rata — i. e., at the rate of $100 par value of new preferred stock for $200 par value of present income bonds; $53,363.20 of new preferred stock to be delivered to the holders of income bonds to represent an additional one-per-cent. interest per annum upon such bonds for the past three years; the remaining $57,250.14 of preferred stock to remain in the treasury for future uses of the Company; the preferred stock to have representation upon the Board of Directors.

In the event of the adoption of this plan and the liquidation of its present indebtedness from the proceeds of a sale of $1,500,000 of the new bonds, the total interest charge upon the company would be $75,000; six per cent. upon the new preferred stock would amount to $56,564.99—a total of $131,564.99 per annum.

The management expresses confidence in the belief that the company will be able to earn and pay these amounts out of net earnings, after making adequate allowance for depreciation and providing requisite sums for maintenance of plant.

Your committee, recognizing the unvaryingly considerate attitude of J. P. Morgan & Co., recommends assent to this proposal, not merely as the only alternative to a necessarily long period of waiting for payment of interest upon the present income bonds, but also as an equitable adjustment distinctly advantageous to the holders of the income bonds.

Pending negotiations for the sale of the proposed new bonds, the holders of the existing mortgage bonds have agreed to accept an equal amount of new bonds as collateral security for their loans.

In the event of the formation of a syndicate for the purchase of the new bonds, the holders of the present income bonds who exchange their holdings for new preferred stock will be given an opportunity to participate in proportion to their holdings.

HARPER & BROTHERS' REORGANIZATION COMMITTEE,
By ALEXANDER E. ORR, Chairman.

NEW YORK, September 25, 1905.

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE, 1887-1905.

A VERY interesting pamphlet comes to us from Charles Scribner's Sons, giving a brief retrospect of Scribner's Magazine during the eighteen years in which it has provided good literature in the widest sense to an ever-increasing public. After a short introduction the more important articles that have appeared in the magazine are classified, and brought together in this shape it is certainly a showing of which any house may be proud. The magazine has been specially rich in biographies, diaries and correspondence and reminiscences of notable people by others almost as notable. A special feature of Scribner's has always been the practical articles on the conditions of modern life and its contributions on railroads, ships, electricity, strikes, building and loan associations, trusts and various kinds of business have taught the people regularly about their own and other lands. Governments and political and social conditions have also always been impartially and fairly explained and criticized. Almost every author of renown has had novels run serially in Scribner's, and it has been unusually fortunate in the short stories it has selected and produced. Its articles descriptive of the organization, equipment and activities of the army and navy have been read throughout the world; and the wars that have taken place during the period it has covered were always brought carefully and dispassionately before its readers. The illustrations of Scribner's have always been of the best, and this pamphlet is specially interesting because it contains some of the most notable pictures that have appeared, reduced to a quarter of their original size.

HIGHER RATES OF DUTY ON FANCY POST CARDS.

IN a decision by I. F. Fischer, the Board of United States General Appraisers on September 20 overruled a protest filed by Meffert & Co., of New York, and held that elaborate postal cards made of paper and rubber must pay duty under the provision in the Dingley tariff law for manufactures of paper at the rate of 35 per cent. ad valorem. The board denied claims by the importers that the cards are dutiable at the specific rates provided for lithographic prints, or at 25 per cent., the rate prescribed for printed matter. The cards imported by Meffert & Co. are among the most elaborate that have so far reached this port. The cards are made of two layers of paper pasted together, with a thin sheet of soft rubber between. A portion of the message side has been cut out in different forms, such as balloons, bubbles, etc., while a small hole has been pierced in the front of the card. By blowing through this hole the rubber is distended in the form of the cut-out.

OBITUARY NOTES.

T. EDGAR PEMBERTON, dramatist and author, died at Broadway, Worcestershire, Eng., on September 28. Mr. Pemberton was born in Birmingham, July 1, 1849. In the sixties he became dramatic critic of the Birmingham Daily Post. He was the author of biographies of E. A. Sothern, T. W. Robertson, John Hare, Bret Harte and the Kendals; "Dickens's London," "Charles Dickens and the Stage," and of a number of plays.

HARRY M. TRASK, of Silver, Burdett & Company, died in Bridgeton, N. J., on September 20. For upwards of seventeen years Mr. Trask had been a member of the business staff of his firm, and for fifteen years had been manager of the Philadelphia General Agency. In every relation both within and without the business of the Silver, Burdett Company Mr. Trask had won the confidence and affection of all who knew him. His business associates all mourn him as a personal friend.

FRANK BEARD, the illustrator, died at his home in Chicago, on September 28, of cerebral hemorrhage. He was widely known as the originator of "Chalk Talks," and for many years had been connected with The Ram's Horn, a religious publication. Beard was born in Cincinnati sixty-three years ago. During the Civil War he acted as a special artist for the Harpers and other publishers. For seventeen years he lectured at Chautauqua, and for a considerable period he was Professor of Fine Arts in Syracuse University. While connected with The Ram's Horn his cartoons, directed against the evils of the liquor traffic, were often extremely effective.

JOSÉ MARIA DE HEREDIA, the poet and member of the French Academy, died in Paris on Tuesday, October 3. De Heredia, son of José Maria de Hérédia, who was considered to be the greatest of the Spanish-American poets, was born at Santiago, Cuba, in 1842, and received his preliminary education in Havana. He went to Paris and entered the Ecole des Chartes. On leaving college he engaged in literary journalism. His style at that time was terse and incisive, and this, with the vigor of his views on contemporary writers, especially the poets, speedily attracted attention, as did also his own poems, and as his talent matured and his verse became more realistic he had many followers. He was elected to the academy in 1894, following the publication of "Les Trophées," which was much talked about. Among other things he translated Diaz del Castello's "History of the Conquest of New Spain" and the "Life of the Nun Alferez."

PERSONAL NOTES.

JOHN C. WINSTON, the head of the publishing house of The John C. Winston Company, returned on October 27 after a three months' absence in Europe, much improved in health and with new ideas for the coming season. Mr. Winston, as chairman of the Committee of Seventy, has taken an active part in the reform movement of Philadelphia politics.

MISS FLORENCE E. BATE, well known through her connection with McClure, Phillips & Co., and for some time proprietor of a literary agency, has sold out to Miss F. M. Holly, at 156 Fifth Avenue, New York. Miss Bate has gone to San Francisco to engage in a new work which she thinks of taking up permanently. Miss Bate's successor here, Miss Holly, has been connected for nine years with the editorial department of The Bookman, and for a year or more has been in charge of the short-story department at the office of Paul R. Reynolds.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE first annual convention of the National Association of Stationers and Manufacturers of the United States of America will be held at St. Louis, October 10, 11, 12. This association was organized with enthusiasm a year ago, and it is hoped that this year's meeting will bring together the fraternity from ocean to ocean.

THE CENTURY COMPANY publish to-day "The Northerner," a love story by Norah Davis; "Plain Mary Smith," a romance of Red Saunders, by Henry Wallace Phillips; "The Long Day," the true story of a New York working girl; "Washington and the West," the diary of George Washington, with notes by Archer Butler Hulbert; and "How to Study Pictures," by Charles H. Caffin.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. publish to-day Henry James's recent addresses, entitled "The Question of Speech and the Lesson of Balzac," John Burroughs's "Ways of Nature;" Ferris Greenslet's "Biography of James Russell Lowell;" Margaret Sherwood's "The Coming of the Tide;" Alice M. Bacon's Japanese stories, entitled "In the Land of the Gods;" and Everett T. Tomlinson's "The Red Chief."

A. WESSELS COMPANY will publish shortly "Contrite Hearts," by Herman Bernstein, giving a dramatic picture of Russian Jewish life; "The Perfume of Eros," by Edgar Saltus, dealing with a Fifth Avenue incident; and "The Struggle," by the Hon. Sidney C. Tapp, of Atlanta, Ga., a novel said to give a startling picture of Wall Street and other American gambling combinations. They also have a long list of holiday books which will be described shortly.

THE BUTLER-WARD CO., New York City, have on hand a number of the books they were binding for Merrill & Baker, which they now propose to sell to cover in part the cost of manufacture. Among them are "Tale of Two Cities," "Ivanhoe," "Last Days of Pompeii," "Jane Eyre," "Thelma," "John Halifax, Gentleman," "The Sketch Book," "Emerson's Essays," "Prince of the House of David," and "Descent of Man." They will be sold in sets of ten volumes and the price will depend upon quantity ordered.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. publish to-day "The Ballingtons," a novel of modern social relations, by Frances Squire, a new Western author; "The Race of the Swift," a book of animal stories, by Edwin Carlile Litsey, illustrated by Charles Livingston Bull; "The Ward of the Sewing Circle," an appealing story of an adopted orphan, by Edna Edwards Wylie; "Amy in Acadia," the first of a new series of stories for girls, by Helen Leah Reed, author of the popular Brenda books; and "Wilderness Babies," stories of the babyhood of sixteen different mammals, by Julia A. Schwartz.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY have in press "The Wisdom of the Simple," by Owen Kildare, author of "My Mamie Rose," the story of two friends who became rivals in politics and in love in New York City. Norman Duncan's novelette of New York life, called "The Mother," is leading to much discussion; and Coulson Kernahan's little book, "The World Without a Child," draws a vivid picture of the world when the Anglo-Saxon race has died out. There is a constant increasing demand for "Esperanto," the new text-book of a universal language, which promises to have a greater following than Volapuk attained in its day.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. have postponed the publication of "Life and Religion," by Max Muller until October 19. This volume will contain much hitherto unpublished matter. The firm also announce for publication on the same date "The Country House," by E. C. Holtzoper. It is a complete manual of house building in the country, alternated by new Zoo photographs. The volume gives special advice on the site, planning and building of the house; on its outside finish, the style of doors, windows and fireplaces; on plumbing, heating, lighting and ventilation, water supply and drainage, and the style, size and equipment of every room. A chapter of specimen contracts and specifications is added.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will publish about the middle of this month Winston Churchill's play, entitled "The Title Mart;"

also, Emerson Hough's new story, "Heart's Desire, the story of a contented town, certain peculiar citizens and two fortunate lovers," with illustrations by F. B. Masters and N. C. Wyeth. Later in the month, or in November, they will publish "Miss Desmond," a new novel by Miss Marie Van Vorst, which is said to show that brilliant young writer in a new light; also, a work entitled "The Menace of Privilege," by Henry George, Jr., which is said to cover remarkably well the whole ground of social economic conditions in America to-day, and to treat the theme in all its complications in a scientific spirit.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will publish shortly, in two volumes, an "American Political History, 1763-1876," by the late Professor Alexander Johnston, of Princeton College, edited and supplemented by Professor James Albert Woodburn, of Indiana University, which presents the principal features in the political history of the United States from the opening of the American Revolution to the close of the era of Reconstruction. The first volume treats of the Revolution, the Constitution, and the growth of Nationality, 1763-1832. The second volume covers the Slavery Controversy, Secession, Civil War and Reconstruction, 1820-1876. They have in preparation "Pictures of Life and Character," a collection of 212 of John Leech's drawings with the humorous anecdotes which originally appeared in the London Punch; "Australian Life," by E. C. Buley, in the Asiatic Neighbors Series; "When It Was Dark," a novel by Guy Thorne, the theme of which is a conspiracy in modern days to overthrow the Christian religion; also, "In Fairyland," a collection of fairy stories by Louey Chisholm, with 30 full-page colored pictures by Katherine Cameron.

MCCLURE, PHILLIPS & Co. will publish shortly "The Work of Our Hands," a new novel by Mrs. H. A. Mitchell Keays, author of "He That Eateth Bread with Me." Mrs. Keays's new novel deals with the morals of American business life and the responsibility of wealth. She has made it a dramatic picture of a young woman brought up in a God-fearing atmosphere and struggling against the hypocrisy of professing Christians and the selfishness of wealth. Her chief masculine figure, Chris Bronsart, is a strong and faithful picture of the typical business man whose absorption in affairs has undermined his conscience. Another book to be brought out early this month is "The Fortunes of the Landrays," by Vaughan Kester. It is a big panoramic novel dealing with the pioneers in the Mississippi valley, and into its story come frontier days in Ohio, the gold rush to California, immigrants on the plains, the Civil War, the boom town period in the Middle West, and the beginning of the manufacturing epoch. The author narrates the lives and loves of four generations of the Landray family, and his book is so thoroughly an American novel that it may enter the lists for "the great American novel."

A. C. MCCLURG & Co. have just ready "Arts and Crafts of Old Japan," by Stewart Dick, the new volume in the World of Art Series; and "The Spalding Year Book," quotations from the writings of Bishop Spalding for each day of the year, selected by Minnie R. Cowan, the latest addition to the Helpful Thought Series. To the Library of Standard Biographies Thomas Carlyle's "Oliver Cromwell" is added, which has been abridged and edited by Edgar Sanderson; and to the Library of Standard Biographies are added Lockhart's "Life of Sir Walter Scott" and "Life of Robert Burns," both abridged and edited by J. M. Sloan; and Agnes Strickland's "Queen Elizabeth," abridged and edited by Ida A. Taylor. For young people the house has just issued a new edition of "The Widow O'Callaghan's Boys," by Gulielma Zollinger, from new plates; and "Lady Dear: the little mistress of a castle in Spain," by Millicent E. Mann. To the Life Stories for Young People are added Ferdinand Schrader's "Frederick the Great," translated by George P. Upton, who also has translated Ludwig Ziemssen's "Johann Sebastian Bach;" W. D. Van Horn's "Maria Theresa" and Franz Hoffmann's "The Little Dauphin."

DODD, MEAD & Co. will publsh shortly "The Artist's Way of Working," by Russell Sturgis. The work is addressed not to artists or art students, but distinctly to the art loving public. It tries to disclose to them in untechnical language so much of the methods by which the artist produces his effects as will enable them to enjoy and appreciate art works much more fully than ever before. It describes the processes of the sculptor, or worker in form; the processes of the painter, or worker in color, on the flat; in light and shade; the working of the different mechanical trades: building (giving us architecture when treated artistically); working in wrought metal (iron, lead, silver); working in cast metal (bronze, gold and silver); working in glass and enamel; working in baked clay (pottery, terra cotta, including tiles); working in textiles; working with the needle; and the decoration of books, both within and without. The illustrations will be a special feature of this book. They have nearly ready two new books by Esther Singleton. One is entitled "Great Portraits Described by Great Writers," and is a companion volume to "Great Pictures" and other of her books, fully illustrated with full-page halftone plates; the other is a volume of fairy tales selected from the folk-lore of all nations, entitled "The Wild Flower Fairy Book," handsomely illustrated and decorated.

THE JOHN C. WINSTON COMPANY are the publishers of the International line of Bibles, and during the four years of their possession of this line have added many new features, and have improved the various editions of the Bible published by them. They have added specialties from time to time which have attracted a great deal of attention. The "Christian Workers' Testament," which was issued two years ago, seemed to meet such a demand that they felt warranted in bringing out a month ago a "Christian Workers' Bible." Dr. Jesse Lyman Hurlbut, the distinguished lecturer at Chautauqua and former director of the Sunday-school work of the M. E. Church, undertook the task of marking the Old Testament in the same manner as the New Testament. It is indexed and marked in red on all subjects pertaining, for example, to the theme of salvation, enabling the reader to turn rapidly, and in consecutive order, to all texts bearing upon any particular subject selected. There are more than 3000 texts indexed and marked in this way. The book is published in six forms, including various bindings and with or without Teachers' Helps. The International "Complete Red Letter Bible" is also one of the new features of this year's trade. In this Bible both the Old Testament and the New Testament are printed in red and black. In the Old Testament the prophetic types and prophecies relating to Christ are printed in red, while in the New Testament the words of Christ are printed in red. This brings out in a striking manner the important portions of the Old and New Testaments. This Bible is also issued in six forms according to bindings and the helps that are issued for teachers' uses, and are printed in large and small type. Both the "Christian Workers' Bible" and "Red Letter Bible" are published in Art editions; that is, they are supplied with numerous half-tone engravings and color plates.

The Oxford University Press, (American Branch,) have now ready an entirely new series of Oxford Teachers Bibles, with new and up-to-date helps, being a practical Bible dictionary, including index, concordance, glossary, weights, measures, coins, botany, etc., all arranged under one alphabet. These helps in one alphabet also appear in "The Oxford Sunday School Scholars' Bible," making this a very useful and practical Bible for study. Also among the triumphs of Bible making are the two new black-faced type editions of "Oxford Text, Reference and Teachers' Bibles" on fine white paper and also on the famous Oxford India papers, or printed in pearl and gotten up as a 32mo, the other in brevier as a 16mo. These books seem to solve the problem how to get large type in a handy size. There are ten editions of the Oxford Prayer Books and Hymnals, and also the recently issued Oxford Elongated Red Rubric editions. There is also a new edition of "The Altar Service," printed in great primer type on exquisitely fine paper. The house is now publishing Oxford Bijou editions of "The Four Gospels," "The Book of Psalms" (prayer-book version); "Dickens Christmas Books," and the "Ellen Terry Shakespeare," in forty volumes. The Standard Oxford editions of poetry and prose now include Browning, Burns, Byron, Milton, Scott, Shakespeare, Tennyson, Wordsworth, and "Pilgrim's Progress," with Cruikshank's illustrations. The Oxford University Press also issues Archibald Little's "The Far East," a new volume in Regions of the World series; "The Elements of Railway Economics," by W. M. Acworth; volumes 11 and 12 of the "Letters of Horace Walpole;" and "The Complete Poetical Works of Shelley," edited by Thomas Hutchinson. Beautiful editons are also forthcoming of Grimm's "Fairy Tales" and the Lambs' "Tales from Shakespeare."

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print, of five nonpareil lines exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small, undisplayed, advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

☞ Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

Book News for the Trade

ON OCTOBER 5th we published five books, each of which is bound to appeal to a certain class of people. Two of these books are stories, but strong, powerful novels of American life. "The Work of Our Hands" is an unusual story of a woman's struggle against the shams of religion and the selfishness of wealth, a modern story in every particular. "The Fortunes of the Landrays" gives half a century of American romance in following the achievements of this family through all the different phases of its wondrous adventures. "The Torch" and "A Modern Symposium" are sure to take their unique places in literature. "The Torch" is a literary production showing the vital relation between human life and literature. "A Modern Symposium," by the author of "Letters from a Chinese Official," will speak better for itself. "The Horse in America" will appeal to every owner and lover of a horse.

¶ THE WORK OF OUR HANDS. By H. A. MITCHELL KEAYS, author of "He That Eateth Bread With Me." Cloth, $1.50.

¶ THE FORTUNES OF THE LANDRAYS. By VAUGHAN KESTER. Cloth. Illustrated by The Kinneys. $1.50.

¶ THE TORCH. By GEORGE EDWARD WOODBERRY. Cloth, postpaid, $1.30; net, $1.20.

¶ A MODERN SYMPOSIUM. By G. LOWES DICKINSON. Cloth, postpaid, $1.07; net, $1.00.

¶ THE HORSE IN AMERICA. By JOHN GILMER SPEED. Cloth. Illustrated, two in color. Postpaid, $2.20; net, $2.00.

You ought to know that "My Friend the Chauffeur," which has been on sale only a few weeks, is now printing the third edition. This will be one of the big sellers of the year. It will pay you to encourage the demand we have created.

which were bound for the bankrupt firm of MERRILL & BAKER, of New York City, and are now being offered for sale in part settlement of indebtedness due for manufacture. These books represent some of the standard works of fiction and history, and are printed on good paper, fully illustrated and handsomely bound in vellum, full gold back, gilt tops, and are much superior in every way to the ordinary cloth-bound novel. The titles of these books are as follows, viz.

Tale of Two Cities	Prince of the House of David
Ivanhoe	John Halifax, Gentleman
Last Days of Pompeii	Descent of Man
Jane Eyre	Emerson's Essays
Thelma	The Sketch Book

These sets of ten vols. each are adapted to the requirements of the book trade in general, and especially to the subscription houses for use as premiums and cash ups. They will be sold at about cost of manufacture, the price being regulated by the quantity desired.

Terms of Payment on Both Regular and Special Offers

Terms are always subject to special agreement, but in general they are as follows:

On sale for 90 days: all copies sold at the end of that time to be paid for, cash in full, pro rata, the remainder to be returned to us at our expense immediately thereafter, either upon receipt of our request or at the option of the dealer. If further pictures are ordered before the end of the 90-day period, the first lot is to be paid for before the shipment of the new lot. Prices and terms on which new lot may be furnished are a matter for future agreement.

Packing: The pictures are regularly put up in flat pasteboard boxes of 100 pictures each, 95 Sepia and 5 black, or 100 in full original colors, besides two mounted pictures for display purposes.

Window-Display: Dealers are urged to give the pictures a prominent and continuous window-display.

$100 Orders: Dealers who are selling the pictures well are urged to let us ship them in lots of 1,000. We pack the 10 boxes of 100 pictures each in a neat wooden box with sliding cover. The whole occupies only two cubic feet of space. We prepay the express and all unsold pictures are returnable to us at our expense (as stated above). The profit is then 150% on every retail sale, instead of 66⅔%.

Sample Copies: A sample in sepia or black will be sent in a mailing-tube, to any address in the world, on receipt of 20 cents in stamps (of any country); in full original colors for $1.10.

The Return of "She"

AYESHA

By H. RIDER HAGGARD

13th Thousand Already

To the thousands of readers who still remember the thrills of "She" and of "King Solomon's Mines," we commend this new book, "Ayesha," the conclusion (not sequel) to "She." The critic of the New York Tribune describes the book better than we can:

> "We are sorry for the solemn souls who care nothing for the heroic savage and his axe, and we are glad that after twenty years 'She' has come back. In publishing 'Ayesha' (pronounced Assha) Mr. Haggard does more than give his public a good story to read. He brings back memories of a time when the town was quite mad about his work. It is the kind of book which one naturally reads straight through, absorbed in every incident, and intensely concerned to know just what is going to happen before the curtain is rung down."

Illustrated by Greiffenhagen $1.50

A NEW EDITION of "RIP"

We publish to-day the most sumptuous edition of WASHINGTON IRVING'S "RIP VAN WINKLE"—with fifty illustrations in full color by Arthur Rackham.

When a member of our firm saw these pictures by Mr. Rackham, in London, a year ago, he bought the American rights of publication in book form, with the understanding that the original drawings were to be exhibited in this country—after being shown in London. Every picture was bought at this first exhibition in London, and the American display had to be abandoned. However, in the reproductions, every gradation of color is preserved, and the purchaser of the book is practically the possessor of fifty drawings by one of the most remarkable artists of our day.

LIPPINCOTT'S NEW GAZETTEER

Ready October 28

THE dictionary of universal geography that is now offered to the public is the successor of Lippincott's Pronouncing Gazetteer, which in its various editions has been before the English-speaking world for half a century. It is a new publication, printed from new type from title-page to cover. Only the framework or skeleton of its predecessor has been retained, together with the system of pronunciation introduced by that great master, Dr. Joseph Thomas.

The present publication will be found to present an accurate picture of the globe in its minutest details as it exists in the twentieth century. Each one of its 100,000 notices, varying in length from a single line to thousands of words, speaks for itself.

An important adjunct to the geographic treatment of places is the historic reference, which has been subjected to the same rigid scrutiny as the more purely geographical data, and the student in history will find in this publication a most valuable and reliable guide in the prosecution of his own particular work. The Gazetteer presents, further, the most complete and accurate guide in the pronunciation of place names that has yet appeared in the English language—in this respect holding a distinctive position of its own. Particular attention has been bestowed upon the proper rendering of East European and Oriental names,—Russian, Hungarian, Asiatic, etc. A most valuable feature of the work is the mention of classical names.

As an evidence of its comprehensiveness, it need only be remarked that the present work contains upward of 27,000 titles that do not appear in its predecessor.

London Films — By W. D. Howells

Mr. Howells carried a keen and appreciative mental kodak with him during his recent sojourn in London, and the record of the impressions made upon him by the great city shows this admirable writer in his happiest vein. His delightful talk about London is most engaging. He draws illuminating and humorous contrast between New York and the English metropolis, chatting delightfully of London weather, the street sights and noises, his rambles about town, the parks and churches, and his adventures with English lodgings and hansoms. The commentary is written in masterly style and enlivened with much humor and agreeable bits of gossip.

WE have just published a notable calendar of out-door life, The Country Day by Day, by E. Kay Robinson. Illustrated. ($1.75 net, by mail, $1.87)—and Extinct Animals by the celebrated authority Prof. E. Ray Lankester. The illustrations are numerous and striking. The author bases this book on his popular lectures, and has been able, without in the least diminishing its scientific value, to make it intelligible even to children. ($1.75 net, by mail $1.90.) We shall issue next week Mrs. Alfred Sidgwick's The Professor's Legacy, a striking love story with lifelike characters, much humor and vivid scenes of German University and English Country life.

Of our recent miscellaneous books, those in the most demand in the order of their popularity are the Williamsons' The Princess Passes (8th large printing, $1.50), of which we have sold in the seven months since its appearance five times as many as were sold in the same period of The Lightning Conductor (of which book the new illustrated edition—$1.50—is third in popularity in our list)—May Sinclair's The Divine Fire (9th printing, $1.50)—Mrs. Fraser's Maid of Japan with Bertha Stuart's charming decorations ($1.25)—Eldridge's Maine Mystery, The Millbank Case ($1.50)—Mrs. Rankin's humorous story for girls, Dandelion Cottage (Illustrated, $1.50)—The New Wallace's Russia ($5.00 retail)—Champlin's Young Folks' Cyclopædia of Literature and Art ($2.50)—Willis's Our Philippine Problem ($1.50 net, by mail $1.64)—the new popular edition of Lucas's Verses for Children ($1 net, postage extra)—Hale's Dramatists of To-day ($1.50 net, by mail $1.62)—Ular's Russia from Within ($1.75 net, by mail $1.84)—and Lavignac's Music and Musicians (Illustrated, $1.75 net, by mail $1.92).

Jerome K. Jerome is reading in America. His best known books are Three Men in a Boat (15th printing, $1.25) and Idle Thoughts of an Idle Fellow (17th printing, $1.25). List of his books and discounts on application.

Three important books we expect to issue in October are The Peter Newell Mother Goose, being the text of the Mother Goose Rhymes, with additional clever matter by Carolyne Sherwin Bailey, and pictures by Peter Newell ($1.50)—Misses Smedley and Talbot's droll Wizards of Ryetown with Miss McGregor's numerous and amusing pictures—Lottridge's remarkable Animal Snapshots, photographs and talks about familiar animals ($1.75 net, by mail $1.87).

ONE OF OUR MANY ADVERTISEMENTS CALLING ATTENTION TO A REALLY GOOD BOOK

Chronicles of the Little Tot

If you buy but one book this year let it be the CHRONICLES OF THE LITTLE TOT by Edmund Vance Cooke. No other book of poems will appeal to you as this one. It is full of the heart-throbs of child-life. You will laugh over it, and perhaps cry over it, for you cannot help loving the lovable "Little Tot."

We could print a page of lavish praise. Here's one unsolicited letter from a man you know full well—Leigh Mitchell Hodges:

> "Of all the present-day verse with which I'm familiar—and I have read a ream or two—I cannot recall five poems that approach these (the last five in the book), and I am quite content to wrap 'The Little Boy Who Left Us' in the lavender of love, and lay it away with 'The Dandelion,' 'The Chambered Nautilus' and 'Little Boy Blue'—my prime treasures—Americana. It towers above adjectives: it passes words in its sure journey to the heart."

Without advertising, it has reached its fourth edition because it is one of the few really good books that people insist their friends must enjoy with them.

The BLACK SPANIEL

By ROBERT HICHENS

Author of "The Garden of Allah," "Felix," etc.

"The Black Spaniel," the long story that with several shorter ones makes up this volume, is as unusual and original as the novels the author has given us previously. Aside from its compelling appeal against vivisection, the story has as its theme a most curious and realistic psychological motive growing out of the cruel treatment of a little dog, that baffles the reader and, even against his will, holds his attention to the last page.

The remaining stories are chiefly of the Arabian desert—the fascinating background of Mr. Hichens's masterpiece "The Garden of Allah."

"Shrew, no doubt, is too harsh a name for so dainty a piece as my young Lady Anne. Taming, again, is perhaps an over-weighty word to paint the conflict of hearts and wit—full of anxiety at times, but always of courtesy."

With four full-page illustrations in color by ETHEL FRANKLIN BETTS, and decorative title-page, initial letters, chapter titles, and end papers by FREDERICK G. HALL.

HOW DO YOU LIKE OUR WAY OF DOING BUSINESS THIS FALL?

Take for instance Mr. Crockett's new novel "The Cherry Ribband." We believed this book was the best work this author has done and we published it, not because Crockett wrote it, but in spite of that fact, because we believed it to be his best effort. And yet instead of trying to urge an over-supply we were compelled to print three separate editions to fill the first advance orders.

We published only six books of fiction this Fall and we shall have no surplus stock of any of them to work off. We have had to print three editions of "Squire Phin." We are now on the second edition of "The Heart of a Girl."

We shall hereafter sell our books on their merits alone and not because we have them to sell.

We shall not seek to overstock you, and all we ask is that you keep our books in stock.

Pinkey Perkins: Just a Boy

By CAPTAIN HAROLD HAMMOND, U. S. A.

"Give us plenty of Pinkey!" will be the cry of every boy who is a boy and who gets a chance at this book, with its portrayal of the ventures, adventures, and misadventures of the young hero. Pinkey is a genius, as full of fun and frolic as "Tom Sawyer." Turn him loose in the home—he is the best companion boys have had in a long time.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE CENTURY COMPANY have in preparation "Versailles and the Court Under Louis XIV.," by James Eugene Farmer, who is Master in History and English Literature at St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., and has made research studies on the spot for this work.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. publish to-day "The True Story of Paul Revere," by Charles Ferris Gettemy, with fine illustrations; "Sidney: Her Summer on the St. Lawrence," the first of a new series of stories for girls by Anna Chapin Ray; "The Divining Rod," a romance of the Pennsylvania oil regions, by Francis N. Thorpe; and Captain A. T. Mahan's important new book, "Sea Power in Its Relations to the War of 1812," which appears in two sightly volumes.

BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY have issued a truly original story in "Heart's Haven," by Katherine Evans Blake, of which the scene is laid in the Rappite Community of celibates and Second Adventists at New Harmony in early Indiana. The book gives a truthful and picturesque description of the place and the peculiar tenets of the sect. Adopted children were brought up by this community, and among two of these began the love story that finally influenced the whole community.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS publish to-day "The House of Mirth," Edith Wharton's powerful story, with illustrations by A. B. Wenzell; "Visionaries," by James Huneker, a new volume of extraordinary tales, showing all the queer genius and brilliancy of this suggestive writer; the last four volumes of the Biographical edition of "The Works of Stevenson;" and a holiday edition of "A Child's Garden of Verses," with illustrations by Jessie Willcox Smith, many of which appear in rich colors. Just out are: E. W. Hornung's "A Thief in the Night;" Carolyn Wells's "A Satire Anthology;" Ernest Thompson Seton's "Animal Heroes;" Clement K. Shorter's "Charlotte Brontë;" Edward Arlington Robinson's "The Children of the Night," the book of poems so highly praised by President Roosevelt; and "The City: the Hope of Democracy," by Frederic C. Howe.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish October 18 "Her Letter," by Bret Harte, of which they make a very beautiful holiday book. Bret Harte's famous poems, "Her Letter," "His Answer to Her Letter" and "Her Last Letter," are published with nine full-page pictures in colors and thirty full-page pictures in tint, besides sketchy head and tail pieces by Arthur I. Keller, whose sympathy with his author shows in every line. The Riverside Press has done its best work and this will be one of the most artistic of the holiday books. On the same date are promised: "The English Works of George Herbert," in three volumes, with George Herbert Palmer's notes; "Paradise," a story of country firesides by Alice Brown; "Part of a Man's Life," by Thomas Wentworth Higginson, a series of literary reminiscences and anecdotes; "A Romance of the Milky Way, and Other Studies and Stories," by Lafcadio Hearn, a final collection of seven essays and stories; "The England and Holland of the Pilgrims," by the late Morton Dexter, edited and largely rewritten by his son; a new edition of Lew Wallace's "The Fair God;" and the Riverside Press edition of Laurence Sterne's "Sentimental Journey."

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.

☞ The prices of net books published under the rules of the American Publishers' Association are preceded in this list by a double asterisk , and the word net follows the price. The hero is a young man who bids fair to become the most capable railroad man in the United States. He rises from switchman to division superintendent, then he gets a fortune which is swept away by misplaced confidence. He grows desperate, plunges into speculation, acquires great wealth and comes in contact with the greatest monetary force in the world. Here the plot becomes intricate and murder and suicide are threatened. In the course of events John Steele in the wild scenery of Lake Superior meets the richest, most capricious and discontented of her sex and both their lives are changed in a clever, original manner.

Beebe, C. W: Two bird-lovers in Mexico; il. with photographs from life taken by the author. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1905. c. 12+408 p. O. cl., $3 net.

Mr. Beebe, Curator of Ornithology of the New York Zoölogical Park, here records the experiences and observations of a trip across Mexico from Vera Cruz to the Pacific and back made during the winter of 1903-04. He and his wife roughed it, camping out with their guide and living in the saddle or on foot. Although birds were the author's chief interest he studied attentively the other forms of animal life about him. A concluding chapter by Mrs. Beebe gives hints for outfit, travelling, etc., and an appendix contains a list of the birds and mammals observed, with descriptive notes.

Blake, Katharine Evans. Hearts' Haven; il. by E. M. Ashe. Indianapolis, Ind., Bobbs-Merrill Co., [1905. O.] c. 8+496 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Describes the Rappito Community of celibates in early Indiana which was known as New Harmony. The peculiar tenets of this sect of Second Adventists and their strange system of rearing adopted children are worked into a telling plot. The author shows how much stronger than all loyalty to a religious leader is the true love a man to a woman and the love of good parents to their children.

Boston, L. Napoleon. A text-book of clinical diagnosis by laboratory methods; for the use of students, practitioners and laboratory workers. 2d ed., rev. and enl. Phil., W. B. Saunders & Co., 1905. c. 563 p. il. (partly col.) 8°, cl., *$4 net; shp. and hf. mor., *$5 net.

Bowne, Borden Parker. The immanence of God. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1905. [O.] c. 5+153 p. D. cl., $1 net.

The author's aim is to correct the popular confusion in regard to the natural and the supernatural; to show that there is no such thing as a natural world existing and acting on its own account while God is away in some remote realm of space, but that the world continually depends upon the ever-living, ever-present, ever-working God. He presents the practical results of this truth under four heads: God and nature; God and history; God and the Bible; God and religion. Prof. Bowne has for nearly thirty years held the chair of philosophy in Boston University.

In each chapter two artists are compared to contrast their motives and methods. This comparison gives the history of the times the artists lived; a short biography of each artist; the influences which helped to shape him and his special point of view; the method of his technique as illustrated in the examples selected. Twenty-eight double insets, full-page reproductions of notable paintings and a complete glossary of technical terms and a good index give the book value as a work of reference. There is also a parallel chronology of the painters included and a bibliography of works of art readily procurable.

It is evident that a physician has abundant opportunities for forming judgment upon many of life's problems, since he comes in contact with all classes of humanity. Dr. Chapin, a New York physician of wide reputation, here discusses some of the vital questions of society and the individual. Inequality, mental and physical, the unfit, the child, poverty, health, education, happiness, success, religion, are some of the topics treated in a scientific, broad minded and helpful manner.

Daring, Hope, [pseud. for Anna Johnson.] The appointed way: a tale of the Seventh Day Adventists. Phil., Griffith & Rowland Press, 1905. [S.] c. 3-336 p. il. D. cl., $1 net.

This sect believes that Christ will appear again on earth and that only those holding the tenets of this sect will be saved. A preacher of the sect, a man of great personal magnetism converts the father of a little family living a serene life in a pretty New York town. He dies shortly after, but has made promises to the Adventist that completely change the future of his household. The moral inculcated by a pretty story is that the foundation of all religious systems is love and that noble lives are best preachers of every doctrine.

Davis, Norah. The northerner. N. Y., Century Co., 1905. [O.] c. 8+324 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

A northern capitalist purchases a railroad and a lighting plant in a little Alabama town and goes there expecting to make money by northern energy and push. He meets southern sectional prejudice and is ostracized by the aristocratic families. The negro problem is also worked into the tale and the southerners' point of view is clearly shown. The busy Yankee falls in love with a southern belle and this leads to complications which finally bring about a satisfactory ending.

Davis, Oscar King. At the emperor's wish:

a tale of the New Japan. N. Y., Appleton, 1905. [O.] c. 5+149 p. il. D. cl., †$1.25.

An old Japanese nobleman lost his income when the government paid up its bonds and could not reinvest to advantage. His neighbor, a commoner and business man started a military school in which the old soldier nobleman could teach. At the emperor's wish all duty became a pleasure to him. The younger generation of both houses had various heart-burnings regarding rank and new methods of life in Japan. The Russian-Japanese war just ended made heroes of the sons of nobleman and commoner, and the nobleman's daughter finally makes all about her happy.

A dainty gift book is made of these thoughts of a loving wife during the first year of married life. The bride confesses her emotions, hopes, fears, joys and sorrows during the first year of married life. There is much humor and feminine philosophy in this story of home-making. Printed on cream-colored paper with delicate decorated margins in blue tints.

Dickinson, G. Lowes. A modern symposium. N. Y., McClure, Phillips & Co., 1905. [O.] c. 6+160 p. D. cl., $1 net.

The author sketches the different view points of life of a Tory, a Liberal, a Conservative, a socialist, an anarchist, a professor, a man of science, a journalist, a man of business, a poet, a gentleman of leisure, a member of the Society of Friends, and of a man of letters. These different people all belong to a club called "The Seekers" and make week-end visits to each other's houses where the host is always chairman. Every man tries to make his theories clear to his associates and the various theories of life are made vital for character and life by the different speakers. By the author of "Letters from a Chinese official" published anonymously.

Dickson, Harris. Duke of devil-may-care. N. Y., Appleton, 1905. [S.] c. 5+295 p. il. D. cl., †$1.50.

Noel Duke inherited a plantation in the delta of the Mississippi which he managed with great success, and with such liberality in all things towards whites and negroes that it gained the name of Devil-May-Care. He fell in love and his affections and a cock-fight took him to New Orleans just before the Mardi Gras festivities of 1898. He got into unexpected difficulties, was suspected of murder and a hustling detective story led to his final happiness.

Howe, F: Clemson. The city, the hope of democracy. N. Y., Scribner, 1905. [O.] c. 13+319 p. O. cl., $1.50 net.

"This volume is a reversal of method. It is an attempt at the economic interpretation of the city. It holds that the corruption, the indifference, the incompetence of the official and the apathy of the citizen, the disparity of wealth, the poverty, vice, crime, and disease, are due to causes economic and industrial. They are traceable to our institutions, rather than to the depravity of human nature. Their correction is not a matter of education or of the penal code. It is a matter of industrial democracy. The incidental conditions are personal and ethical. Whether we adopt the personal or the economic interpretation will determine our attitude towards the problems of modern city life."—Preface.

Long day (The): story of a New York working girl, as told by herself. N. Y., Century Co., 1905. 8+303 p. D. cl., $1.20 net.

A young country girl from Pennsylvania came to New York City to earn her living. Gives a truthful, intimate picture of the unfortunate, underpaid working girl. She worked in a box factory, she lined jewel cases, she sewed, she folded clothes in a laundry. She met every type of working girl. The author points out that the working-girl is largely responsible for what she suffers at the hands of her employers. Few girls have any definite training and they go from one kind of work to another in an irresponsible way and are often scarcely worth the pittance they earn.

North, S. N. D. Old Greek, an old-time professor in an old-fashioned college: a memoir of Edward North; with selections from his lectures. N. Y., McClure, Phillips & Co., 1905. c. 13+417 p. O. cl., $3.50 net.

Dr. North, familiarly and lovingly known as "Old Greek," was professor of Greek in Hamilton College (Clinton, N. Y.), during fifty-eight years, his long and useful life having been brought to a close in 1903. The intimate personal relations between professor and student possible in a small college are here exemplified. The author has made this work largely autobiographical—Dr. North's life as written by himself in poem, journal, lecture, and reminiscence. Incidentally the book may be considered as a plea for the restoration of the classics in the modern curriculum.

Our best society. N. Y., Putnam, 1905. c. 5+362 p. D. cl., $1.50.

A brisk satire on the inane features of so-called "best society" in the large cities of the United States at present. The idle rich and their imitators and hangers on are realistically described. A young author desiring peace and quiet is thrust into the giddy whirl by his wife who is at first fascinated by meeting authors, playwrights, painters and society leaders. The decadent stage of the day and the idiocy of the wit and repartee are done to the life. Some startling methods of social progress make the plot. After a pretty hard year the couple who have seen much decide that "our best society" may be found within their own cosy apartment.

Red Saunders here tells the story in his own picturesque style of his early years at home when he was qualifying to become the village pride, and of his hurried departure by sailing vessel for Panama. On shipboard he becomes involved with a pair of lovers, one of whom is "plain Mary Smith." Arrived in Panama, this eighteen-year-old giant is employed on a ranch, and of course gets mixed up with a small revolution and also plays the part of good angel to the lovers in unmasking the villain, a hypocritical missionary.

A typical New England town is the scene. The chief characters are the rich more or less related "upper ten" and the family of a mental healer who is an "impossible" woman controlled a little by her daughter. This daughter is a beautiful, capable, uneducated girl of fine character who is shop-girl in the village dry-goods store. The fortunes of Roland Wentworth and Bertha the seer's daughter become one; a marriage takes place and Bertha becomes head of the biggest house in town. She is a fine woman and has good influence in her new surroundings. By the author of "Boston neighbors."

"The appearance of the present work is in response to the expressed desire of the teachers of dogmatic theology in a number of institutions in various portions of the church. . . . The 'Lehrbuch,' of Dr. Seeberg has since its appearance (1895) been constantly used as a book of reference in our theological seminaries. The unchallenged pre-eminence of the author in this, his chosen field, the conservatism of his views, so well reflecting the spirit of our churches in America, and the condensation and lucidity of his style combine to commend his work as the most suitable for the purpose above indicated."—Translator's Preface.

Marriage is the irrational knot. The hero is an inventor who is wholly guided by self-interests. He marries an English lady and is soon bored by her conventionality and her total lack of sympathy in his life-work. The inventor's sister is a vaudeville actress. She refuses to marry but lives with a ne'er-do-well of the upper classes. Many characters are introduced and Shaw makes a repelling psychological study, full of wit and satire but hopelessly pessimistic. This story was written twenty-five years back and a new preface to the American edition gives its history.

A wild story of three women who loved the same artistic, visionary, erratic artist. He married one of them, loved another, and allowed himself to be specially influenced by the third. Letters and diaries tell the complicated plot. The scene shifts from the wild English coast of Norfolk to London and Paris. The "lost viol" was taken to be used as proof of a very startling situation. The gradual wearing off of the coast of England by the ocean leads to a peculiar combination of scenes.

"The subject of bacterial diseases of plants is older that the pomed-plate method of Koch, but until recently our knowledge of it has been in a very chaotic state, it having been for the most part for twenty-five years a recognized but uncultivated field. In recent years, however, publications on plant bacteria have multiplied and they now amount to several hundred titles. The writer's studies of the bacteria themselves and of the diseases which they cause, as distinct from the literature of the subject, began in 1893. At that time there was very little reliable information on this subject. The literature is now more extensive, but it is nowhere gathered together in one place and properly summarized. It has seemed, therefore, for a long time, that a work of the scope of the treatise here presented might be clarifying and useful to many people. . . More than 125 diseases will be treated or touched upon in this monograph. . . . The present volume contains an "outline method of work" which was written up four years ago in connection with the investigations of the Laboratory of Plant Pathology, Bureau of Plant Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture. . . . The bibliography (64 p.) at the end of this volume covers the general subject and bacteriology, exclusive of plant diseases, and is arranged chronologically by subjects."—Preface.

Strang, Herbert. The adventures of Harry Rochester: a tale of the days of Marlborough and Eugene; il. by W: Rainey. N. Y., Putnam, 1905. 9+418 p. O. cl., †$1.50.

The war of the Spanish Succession is the historical background of this tale of fighting, plotting, and adventure. The Duke of Marlborough and Prince Eugene appear repeatedly as characters. Harry Rochester is a daring English boy under twenty, who is pursued by the enmity of an English squire. Rescued from a slave ship, he goes to Holland where he rescues helpless women, sees much fighting and at length gets to the bottom of a mystery and finds himself a rich English landowner—no longer a soldier of fortune.

Van Dyke, Paul, D.D. Renascence portraits. N. Y., Scribner, 1905. [S.] c. 12+425 p. O. cl., $2 net.

These studies illustrate the period of the Renascence by describing three typical characters who were all living at the same time in Germany, England and Italy. These three men are the German Emperor, Maximilian 1.; the English chief minister, Thomas Cromwell; and the Venetian litterateur, Pietro Aretino. An introductory chapter on the Renascence prepares the reader for the separate treatment of each man; and there is an appendix relating to Cromwell and Reginald Pole, and also a seven-page list of books cited. Dr. Van Dyke is Professor of History in Princeton; and author of "The age of the Renascence."

Wagner, R: Lohengrin, son of Parsifal: a mystical drama, by R: Wagner; freely tr. by O: Huckel. N. Y., T: Y. Crowell & Co., [1905. S.] c. 19+77 p. il. D. cl., 75 c. net.

Warner, Anne, [Mrs. C: Ellis French.] The rejuvenation of Aunt Mary. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., 1905. [O.] c. 5+323 p. il. D. cl., †$1.50.

The author of "Susan Clegg and her friend Mrs. Lathrop" has created a new character in "Aunt Mary," who will be found quite as amusing as her predecessors. She is an extremely deaf and extremely rich maiden lady, who late in life becomes the guardian of several nieces and nephews. The chief of these is her nephew Jack, whom she quite adores. He is a tall, handsome fellow, who comes out of one scrape only to fall into another. Finally he is expelled from college and disinherited by "Aunt Mary." Jack represents himself broken-hearted and persuades "Aunt Mary" to visit New York. How he reinstates himself in her affections, with the aid of his college friends, by giving her "the time of her life" is a story of the wildest fun.

Washington, G: Washington and the west: being George Washington's diary of September, 1784, kept during his journey into the Ohio Basin in the interest of a commercial union between the great lakes and the Potomac river, and A commentary upon the same by Archer Butler Hulbert. N. Y., Century Co., [1905. O.] c. 6+217 p. il. maps, O. cl., $2 net.

Presents Washington's attitude toward one of the great national policies of the early Republic—expansion and internal improvements. This is the first time this diary, which shows Washington as country squire and landowner, has been printed in toto. The commentary prepared by the author of "Historic highways of America" combines an historical essay and explanatory footnotes. There are carefully drawn maps of Braddock's Road, Washington County, the route of Washington's trip in 1784 and Washington's own map of the country between the Potomac and Youghiogheny.

Wasson, G: Savary. The green shay; with frontispiece by the author. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1905. [O.] c. 4+305 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

A series of sketches depicting the present condition along the Maine coast where the inhabitants, fine old American stock, have somewhat degenerated. The characters are mostly retired fishermen. A "shay" is an old local type of fishing boat. Two connecting threads run through the book—one, the love of a young sea-captain for Clara Fairway, the niece and ward of his friend, a retired veteran; the other, the experience of a young minister who works sensibly and hard for the regeneration of Kentle Harbor.

The idea underlies the book that as each race reaches perfect development, it normally dies and passes on to another race, with the results of its own culture, the mission of the humanization of mankind. The titles of lectures are: Man and the race; The language of all the world; two papers on The Titan myth; Spencer; Milton; Wordsworth; Shelley. The author is equally interested in every race and in literature as the possession of the human spirit.

Wylie, Edna Edwards. The ward of the sewing-circle. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., 1905. [O.] c. 3-202 p. 1 il. D. cl., †$1.

Story of a little orphan boy, who is adopted by the members of the Smithville Sewing Circle. Each member agrees to take care of him in turn for periods of two months. Poor Johnny's experiences in his various homes are both humorous and pathetic; but he finally finds a permanent abiding place with a maiden lady who dearly loves him. A little romance winds up the story.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

OCTOBER 14, 1905.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE "FLASHLIGHT BOOK" CONTROVERSY.

THE remarkable achievement of the German naturalist, C. G. Schillings, in "flashlighting" African wild beasts in their native lair, which naturally attracted the admiration of the mighty hunter of the White House, has unfortunately led to a revival of the publishing controversies of a generation ago, before the passage of the International Copyright Amendment in 1891. Harper & Brothers are publishing this week an edition of the book which is met by the announcement of Doubleday, Page & Company that they have in press the only authorized and complete edition, and that the Harper edition is a "pirated" and incomplete one.

The facts, as seen from the two sides, seem to be as follows: The book was published in Germany nearly a year ago, before the passage of the recent amendment to the copyright law, which permits the rights in such a book to be held over for a year before an American-printed translation is issued. Had this amendment been then in force the present controversy would scarcely have arisen. Arrangements were made with an English publisher for the English and American markets, and the American market, which had for some time been held at a high asking price, was sold with sheets to Messrs. Doubleday, Page & Company. The Harpers meantime, finding the book "in the public domain," to use a phrase of copyright law, prepared an American edition, reproducing the illustrations from the German work. On learning of the Harper announcement the Doubleday house called the attention of the Harper house to the fact that they had an authorized edition in preparation and were met by the statement that the Harper edition was already printed, that the work was scheduled for immediate publication, and that the house had agreed to pay the author the usual royalty, coupled with an offer to transfer the edition at cost, provided the royalty agreement should remain in force. On learning of this agreement the Doubleday house cabled to the author or his representatives and were informed that no such agreement was known to them. The Harper house then explained that they had no knowledge that the German and English publishers had already disposed of the book, but had, in conformity with their custom, promised to pay the author a royalty of 10 per cent., though under no legal obligations to do so, and finally fell back upon their legal position, and, consequently there are to be rival editions in the market, though happily without the useless under-cutting which used to be resorted to in the bad old times.

All this emphasizes the need of the revision of the copyright law now under way, which should assure to authors and publishers such definite rights that there can be no misunderstandings "as to what is whose."

THE long-awaited decision of Judge Colt in the Ogilvie-Merriam cases was handed down last week and is given elsewhere. These cases took the intricate shape of a complaint by Mr. Ogilvie that the Merriams were interfering with his business by threatening legal proceedings against the customers, and of a cross bill from the Merriam house against Mr. Ogilvie, seeking to enjoin his publication of Webster's Imperial Dictionary. Judge Colt has denied the Ogilvie application for an injunction on the ground that the Merriams are within their legal rights, and has declined to issue a preliminary injunction against Mr. Ogilvie pending full hearing of the case. The principles and proofs on the main issue, Judge Colt held, were not sufficiently established to justify a preliminary injunction. In fairness to the trade it seems the duty of the Merriam Company to press the final hearing, and we are glad to learn that a hearing is noticed for October 17. At present nothing is decided. Injunctions have been formally granted against Webster's dictionaries issued by the Federal Book Company and the Hampden Publishing Company, but this action was in default of defence by these two companies, and though it restrains the sale of the editions published by them, has no real bearing on the general case.

THE GENERAL PAPER COMPANY CASE.

In the suit of the United States against the paper trust known as the General Paper Company, of Milwaukee, the trust from which secession by several of the individual companies was reported in The Publishers' Weekly of July 15, Judge Vandeventer, of the United States District Court, sitting in St. Paul, has denied the motion for stay of proceedings pending an appeal to the United States Supreme Court on the ground that the matter in question is not appealable, and ordered that the component companies must answer the questions of the special examiner and produce the company books. The court held that a corporation under the Constitution stood in the same relation to the statute of immunity as an individual. It held that a corporation could testify against itself so far as a corporation could speak through its officers, its books and receipts, and that in the case at issue it should give the testimony desired, but that under the statute of immunity it could not be prosecuted criminally for any revelations that might be made on the witness stand.

In respect to this case J. A. Kimberly, president of the General Paper Company, said in a recent interview:

"The General Paper Company has saved its individual company's money in various ways. Formerly there were sixteen men on the road fighting for the trade over each other's shoulders. They were all high salaried men, too, getting from $5000 to $6000 a year. Their work is now done by four men. All the wood for the several mills is now bought by one company and distributed.

"Since the beginning of this suit the price of print paper has gone down from $2.25 a hundred to $1.90. The Eastern mills have come in here. There is no money in paper at $1.90. Before the formation of the General Paper Company the price ranged from $1.75 to $1.80, but the conditions are very different now. Three of my mills are not paying a dollar, and I have two more that have not paid a dividend in three years.

"The public should understand that. As far as I am concerned I am willing that the Government should see my books. If we are wrong we might as well know it. I do not believe that the company is doing anything in violation of the anti-trust laws. The company has not the power to close any mill in restriction of trade or to compel any member to sell for the posted price."

WEBSTER'S DICTIONARIES SUITS.

In the cases of George W. Ogilvie vs. G. & C. Merriam Company, and G. & C. Merriam vs. George W. Ogilvie regarding rival editions of Webster's Dictionary, Judge Colt of the Circuit Court of the United States, District of Massachusetts, has on October 5, 1905, handed down the following decision:

These are counter motions for a preliminary injunction, brought under the original bill filed by the complainant (Geo. W. Ogilvie) and the cross-bill filed by the defendant (G. & C. Merriam Co.).

The complainant and defendant are publishers of rival dictionaries. The complainant's book is entitled "Webster's Imperial Dictionary," and the defendant's book, "Webster's International Dictionary."

The complainant contends that he has the right to publish and sell a book under the title of Webster's Imperial Dictionary, and he seeks a preliminary injunction against the defendant to restrain it from interfering with the "publication, circulation and distribution" of his book.

The bill charges that "the defendant corporation has undertaken to unlawfully interfere with your orator in the prosecution of this enterprise, and in order to embarrass your orator in connection therewith and to frighten the trade from purchasing the work has threatened the trade that if they purchase and the publisher if he issues said work, they will commence suits against them 'all along the line,' and thus has attempted to prevent if possible, the issuance of said Webster's Imperial Dictionary."

It appears from the affidavits that this interference consists in certain letters written by the defendant to the complainant, stating that the publication of the complainant's book will be an infringement upon the rights of the defendant, and its purpose to use all legal means to prevent the issue; and, further, certain circulars sent out by the defendant to the trade and to publishers declaring substantially that the defendant has the exclusive right to the use of the word "Webster" as applied to dictionaries; that long and exclusive use has made the word "Webster" the trade name of the dictionaries prepared and published by the defendant; that the publication by the complainant of his proposed book is a wrong committed against the defendant, and that the defendant will hold all parties responsible for any damage which may arise by reason of the wrongful sale of the complainant's book.

It is not charged in the bill, nor is there any proof, that these acts of the defendant were not done in good faith. On the contrary, it appears that the defendant or its predecessors acquired in 1847 all the rights then existing in "Webster's Dictionary," and that since that time it or its predecessors have published numerous editions of these dictionaries, all of which have borne the name and been known and described as the production of the defendant or its predecessors. Upon this state of facts, and certainly before any judicial determination adverse to its claim, the defendant was clearly within its legal rights in sending out the letters and circulars in question. It follows that the complainant's motion for a preliminary injunction must be denied.

The defendant's counter motion, under its cross-bill, for an injunction against the complainant, presents a more serious question. If it were perfectly clear that the defendant was entitled to the exclusive use of the name "Webster" as applied to dictionaries, either upon the ground of a technical trademark, or upon the ground that the word had acquired a secondary meaning, and now indicated to the public the dictionaries published and sold by the defendant, or if it were perfectly clear that the use of this name by the complainant is of necessity misleading, especially when supplemented by the complainant's printed notices and circulars, and therefore constitutes unfair competition, I should not hesitate to grant the injunction prayed for. But upon the face of these papers it is not entirely clear that the defendant is entitled to this relief upon any one of the several grounds upon which it is urged.

The questions raised are of very great importance to the defendant. These questions cannot be satisfactorily considered or determined upon the present record, and the case should stand over until the full proofs are presented on final hearing. The defendant's motion for a preliminary injunction is denied.

INJUNCTION AGAINST THE HAMPDEN PUBLISHING COMPANY.

On Tuesday, February 8, 1905, the following injunction was given under default before the justices of the Circuit Court of the United States within the District of Massachusetts regarding the publishing and sale by the Hampden Publishing Company of Webster's "Common Sense Dictionary:"

You shall not directly or indirectly publish, offer for sale, or sell any dictionary bearing the title Webster's Common Sense Dictionary, nor publish, offer for sale, or sell any dictionary bearing the title Webster's Dictionary, either alone or in conjunction with other word or words, other than those of the complainant, nor publish nor circulate any notices or advertisements wherein said dictionaries are designated by a name or title in which the word Webster or Webster's appears either alone or in conjunction with other words or any other notices or advertisements, in such manner and form that the natural and probable tendency and effect thereof will be to deceive and mislead the public into purchasing such dictionaries as and for the genuine dictionaries of said complainant, or as and for an edition or the latest edition of either of the series of said dictionaries published by the complainant or its predecessors or either of them.

A similar injunction was granted in default against the Federal Book Co. in respect to "White's Peoples Webster."

PUBLISHERS' BOWLING LEAGUE.

Several book houses have signified their intention of joining the proposed Publishers' Bowling League, and if the Oxford University Press team hear from a few more the league will be assured. If there are five men in any one concern who will represent it on the bowling alley the league can be organized and the games started. There are to be no expenses or charges of any kind excepting that the losing teams will pay for the use of the alley, as is customary in regular open games. The only purpose of the league ought to be good, clean sport and a closer acquaintance among the men of the publishing trade.

LIPPINCOTT'S NEW GAZETTEER.

On October 28 J. B. Lippincott Company will bring out "Lippincott's New Gazetteer," edited by Angelo and Louis Heilprin, whose names stand for the most learned scholarship and conscientious work that can be obtained. This dictionary of universal geography is the successor of "Lippincott's Pronouncing Gazetteer," which in its various editions has been before the English-speaking world for half a century. It is a new publication, printed from new type from title-page to cover. Only the framework or skeleton of its predecessor has been retained, together with the system of pronunciation introduced by that great master, Dr. Joseph Thomas. The present publication will be found to present an accurate picture of the globe in its minutest details as it exists in the twentieth century. Each one of its 100,000 notices, varying in length from a single line to thousands of words, speaks for itself. An important adjunct to the geographic treatment of places is the historic reference, which has been subjected to the same rigid scrutiny as the more purely geographical data, and the student in history will find this publication a most valuable and reliable guide in the prosecution of his own particular work. The gazetteer presents, further, the most complete and accurate guide in the pronunciation of place names that has yet appeared in the English language—in this respect holding a distinctive position of its own. Particular attention has been bestowed upon the proper rendering of East European and Oriental names—Russian, Hungarian, Asiatic, etc. A most valuable feature of the work is the mention of classical names. As an evidence of its comprehensiveness, it need only be remarked that the present work contains upward of 27,000 titles that do not appear in its predecessor.

LECTURES ON PRINTING.

"Printing" was the subject of the meeting of the New York Library Club, held on Thursday evening, October 12. Mr. Ingalls Kimball, of the Cheltenham Press, described modern bookmaking from the printing side, saying that nowadays the manufacturing man, not the printer, was the real book maker. The quality of the paper used in modern books is such that few are likely to survive a century. Illustrations for any other than technical books are superfluous and generally undesirable. In books where illustrations are needed great care should be taken to make them explanatory and effective, but with the utmost skill in diagrams, plates and explanations it has not yet been found possible to "make a book fool-proof." The Government carries on one of the greatest printing plants in existence, but in its management the technical excellence of its work is little regarded. The public printer is criticised or considered as a government appointee, as a maker of contracts, as head of a Government department, but no one ever asks whether he knows the book-making business or what kind of books he turns out. Government publications as a whole are among the worst made and most poorly bound of any class of books.

Henry Lewis Johnson, editor of Printing Art, spoke on some of the influences affecting modern printing. He said that a very strong influence in raising public taste in matters of printing was the work done by pupils in the public schools in preparing their school themes in neatly made pamphlets, with artistic decorations and covers. Samples of some of this work were shown. Mr. Johnson spoke also of the Boston Society of Printers and the recent establishment, under its auspices, of a school of printing, which he regarded as a great step toward advancement of the printing art.

The meeting was held in the dining hall of the General Theological Seminary, in Chelsea Square, and was attended by about 150 persons. An exhibition of examples of fine printing and of rare books from the society's collection were shown in the library of the seminary.

The officers of the New York Library Club this year are: Henry W. Kent, Metropolitan Museum of Art, president; Miss Alice Wilde, New York Public Library, secretary; and Victor H. Paltsits, Lenox Library, treasurer.

BOOKS PRINTED IN THE SOUTH DURING THE CIVIL WAR.

Most of the new books read by the people of Alabama during the war between the States, 1860-1865, according to an article in The Magazine of History, written by Walter L. Fleming, were published in Atlanta, Ga., Richmond, Va., or Charleston, S. C., though during the last two years of the war. Mobile, (Ala.,) publishers sent out many thousand volumes. W. G. Clark & Co., of Mobile, confined their attention principally to text books, works on military science and tactics, fiction, translations, music, etc. The best-selling Southern novel published during the war was "Macaria," by Augusta J. Evans, of Mobile. It was printed by S. H. Goetzel, who also published Mrs. Ford's "Exploits of Morgan and His Men," which was pirated or reprinted by Richardson, of New York. Walker, Evans & Cogswell, of Charleston, published Miss Evans's "Beulah." Both "Macaria" and "Beulah" were reprinted in the North. Goetzel bound his books in rotten pasteboard and in wall paper. In 1864 he published (on wrapping paper) a four-volume translation, by Adelaide de V. Chaudron, of Mühlbach's "Joseph II. and His Court." He published other translations of Miss Mühlbach's historical novels—indeed, he was her first American publisher. Wagner's "Tannhauser" was first printed in America in Mobile. Hardee's "Rifle and Infantry Tactics," in two volumes, and Wheeler's "Cavalry Tactics" were printed in large editions by Goetzel for the use of Alabama troops. Clark published "The Confederate States Almanac and Repository of Useful Knowledge," a kind of annual encyclopædia. Lieutenant Colonel Fremantle's book, "Three Months in the Southern States," was published in Mobile in 1864, and in the same year the works of Dickens and George Eliot were reprinted by Goetzel.

OBITUARY NOTES.

Professor Baron Ferdinand von Richthofen died on Saturday, October 14, in Berlin. He was born in 1833. He was the author of many works, including "The Comstock Lode," "Principles of the Natural System of Volcanic Rocks," and "Letters to the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce."

Edward Francis Weeks, fifty-eight years old, a manufacturer of stationery at 68 Pine Street, New York City, was taken sick on a Jersey Central Railroad train on Thursday evening, October 5, while en route from Jersey City to his home in Elizabeth. He was removed from the train at the Greenville station in a dying condition. He lived only a few minutes. Mr. Weeks lived at 44 Monroe Avenue, Elizabeth.

Henry B. Hoyt, of the firm of Hoyt & Adams, booksellers and stationers of Rochester, N. Y., died October 1. At a meeting of the booksellers and stationers of Rochester, at the store of Scrantom, Wetmore & Company, Richard G. Powers was made chairman, William H. Williamson, secretary, Erastus Darrow and Lansing G. Wetmore Committee on Resolutions. The following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we hear with profound regret of the death of Henry B. Hoyt. Born to the trade, the son of the eminent bookseller of his time, David Hoyt, and afterward of the firm of Hoyt & Adams, and until the death of the late Charles E. Morris active in the book and stationery business with him. We express our sincere sympathy with his wife and surviving sister and brothers. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to his family and the trade and daily papers.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

Helen Pitkin, author of "Angel by Brevet," a story of aristocratic life in old New Orleans, is at work on a new story of Southern life, which is expected to be ready this fall.

Before sailing for Europe last Thursday as director of the Egyptian Expedition of the University of Chicago, Professor James H. Breasted read the final proofs of his book, "A History of Egypt," which the Scribners will publish the end of this month. Professor Breasted's book is addressed both to scholars and to tourists. Its scholarship rests upon the surviving original records themselves, of which new translations have been made; while the clearness, freshness, picturesqueness and vigor of the narrative will make the book acceptable to the general reader. In the preparation of the work, the popular character of which, by the way, is emphasized by the fact that it will contain no fewer than two hundred illustrations and maps, a related enterprise was of the greatest assistance to the author. A mission to the museums of Europe to collect their Egyptian monuments for a commission of the four Royal Academies of Germany (Berlin, Leipzig, Goettingen and Munich), in order to make these documents available for a great Egyptian dictionary endowed by the German Emperor, enabled Professor Breasted to copy from the originals practically all the historical monuments of Egypt in Europe.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE MOODY CORPORATION, 35 Nassau Street, New York City, will shortly begin the publication of Moody's Magazine, a monthly review for investors, bankers and men of affairs. It will present in the most popular form all the essential facts for investors. It will exhibit the underlying social and economic forces that govern prices and values. It will discuss railroad rate legislation, municipal ownership, insurance scandals, reciprocity, the tariff, and other public and political questions from the standpoint of the ordinary business man and investor. It will analyze and criticize, freely, fairly and fully, reports of railroads and large industrial corporations. The first number will contain a symposium on the effects of the increasing supply of gold. The fact that the world's yearly output of gold is now twice what it was in 1895, and four times what it was in 1885, and that the effects of a depreciating standard of value upon prices, wages, interest, etc., are many and varied, will make this discussion by banking, financial anl economic experts most timely and interesting.

THE first two numbers are out of The New York Review, a periodical to be issued bimonthly and to stand for what are considered advanced views amongst Catholics in questions of philosophy and theology. No article will be published which does not recognize and do justice to modern points of views and modern scholarship. It is true that many Catholic scholars, especially in Europe, are doing excellent work along the lines above indicated. But, as their productions are, for the most part, scattered through various reviews, many of which are not available for the average English-speaking public, there will be a manifest advantage in bringing together in one special periodical the combined results of their scientific labors. Among the contributors are Wilfrid Ward, Brunetière, Francis E. Gigot, Padre E. Ginocchi and many known through the religious and scientific world. The periodical will be edited by professors of the Diocesan Seminary at Yonkers.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

DE WITT & SNELLING, 236 Stockton Street, San Francisco, Cal., have in press a catalogue of the Americana in the collection of the late I. W. Lees, for some time chief of police of San Francisco, the sale of whose library is progressing favorably. They desire to sell as a whole the very complete and valuable collection of criminology, comprising upwards of 800 bound volumes, 1000 pamphlets and 60 scrap books, representing a thirty years' search through the book markets of the world. They also offer in one lot the Spanish collection of 300 bound volumes and many early manuscripts and prints.

THE AMERICAN NEWS COMPANY have already issued their catalogue for the holiday season, and to the initiated it shows at once how generous has been the outlay to make it attractive at first glance. Bound in blue stiff paper covers, it has decorations of embossed books bearing the titles of the great favorites of the hour, gotten out by all the publishers of note. It contains upwards of 250 pages, well printed and profusely illustrated with pictures from all the books expected to be the holiday sellers. It has also many fine tinted and colored illustrations, several of them just tacked in as insets and worthy to be taken out from their business surroundings and neatly framed to decorate the home. Every page is certainly a temptation, and any one who receives the handsome volume from the American News Company ought certainly to study it carefully and select wisely from its vast embarrassment of riches, books, calendars and pictures that will need to be replaced over and over again throughout the season.

DES MOINES, IA.—Jordan Bros., (University Bookstore,) have been succeeded by C. H. Aurner.

DETROIT, MICH.—Anna Mason has sold out her business, formerly at 33 State Street.

NEW YORK CITY.—James F. Drake, who was three years with J. W. Bouton, two and a half years with George H. Richmond and five years with Dodd, Mead & Co., and is well known in the trade, has opened business for himself at 4 West 40th Street under the name of Association Book Company. Here he hopes to have a fine selection of first editions, fine bindings, Americana, sporting books, dramatic works, etc. He will make a specialty of autographs.

NEW YORK CITY.—James Pott & Co. have incorporated in New York to carry on their publishing business. The directors are James Pott, R. M. Pott, New York, and F. W. Hallam, Brooklyn.

WAYNE, NEB.—M. S. Davies has sold his bookstore to Jones & Felver.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

D. APPLETON & COMPANY have just ready "The Young Man and the World," by Senator A. J. Beveridge; "The Game and the Candle," a new story by Frances Davidge, author of "The Misfit Crown;" also, "The Duke of Devil-May-Care," by Harris Dickson.

THOMAS WHITTAKER has just published a new volume of meditations by the Rev. Dr. A. G. Mortimer, rector of St. Mark's, Philadelphia, entitled "It Ringeth to Even Song: Thoughts for Advancing Years." The purpose is to afford suggestion and help towards usefulness and happiness in the autumn time of life.

BRENTANO'S are fortunate in securing Bernard Shaw's "The Irrational Knot," which with "Man and Superman" is now discussed throughout the land. "The Irrational Knot," written some years ago, now appears for the first time in book form. Mr. Shaw has written one of his most characteristic prefaces which whets curiosity for this novel that is a severe study of marriage.

THE HOBART COMPANY, New York City, announce a new story by General Charles King, entitled "A Soldier's Trial: an episode of the canteen crusade." This will be a strong story in favor of re-establishing the canteen, as this privilege has proved the one sensible way of dealing with the evils of army life. The general has written another stirring tale of border warfare.

JOHN C. WINSTON CO. have a valuable contribution to the literature of the time in "The United States a Christian Nation," by the Hon. David C. Brewer; and a book deserving careful study in "The American Boy and the Social Evil," by Dr. Robert N. Wilson, physician to the University of Pennsylvania. Also important is Dr. J. G. Griffith's "Helps and Hints on Nursing."

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. have issued "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," by Anne Warner, a story of Aunt Mary's adventures in New York City, combined with a pretty love story of irresistible humor and of the pathos that always lies so near true humor. "The Ballingtons," by Frances Squire, issued last week, is a psychologic story of marriage relations worked out with insight and, at times, daring logic.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will bring out during the fall "In the March and Borderland of Wales," by A. G. Bradley, with sketches by W. M. Meredith; and "Counsels and Ideals from the Writings of William Osler. The following announced books have been put off until spring: "Charles Godfrey Leland," by Mrs. Pennell; "The Subconscious," by Joseph Jastrow; and "The Fixed Period," by William Osler.

W. C. KEENER & Co. have just ready a third edition of "A Manual of Chemistry," by A. P. Luff and Frederick James M. Page, the ninth revised edition of Hygiene and Public Health," by B. Arthur Whitelegge and George Newman; "The Care and Management of Delicate Children," by Lewis Percy; and a third revised edition of George Herschell's "Indigestion: treatment of functional derangements of the stomach."

WILLIAM R. JENKINS, New York City, will bring out this autumn Dr. Robert Ostertag's "Handbook of Meat Inspection;" Dr. Kenelm Winslow's "Veterinary Materia Medica and Therapeutics;" Dr. G. Moussu's "Diseases of Cattle, Sheep, Goats and Swine;" P. J. Cadiot's "Treatise on Surgical Therapeutics of Domestic Animals;" Dr. Fred. Smith's "Manual of Veterinary Hygiene;" Neumann's "Parasites and Parasitic Diseases of Domesticated Animals;" a second edition of Dr. T. M. Legge's "Cattle Tuberculosis," translated by Harold Sessions.

DANA ESTES & Co. have a find in "Eve's Daughters," compiled by a Mere Man and portrayed by Arthur G. Learned. It consists of epigrams about woman drawn from the literatures of the world, breathing eulogy, satire, philosophy and wit, all set off by dainty line illustration, marginal decorations and full-page illustrations, making a holiday gift-book in its bright gold-stamped cover. The house have just ready "The Brass-Bound Box," by Evelyn Raymond; "Mary 'n' Mary," by Edith Francis Foster, a finely illustrated story for young girls.

B. W. HUEBSCH, New York City, will publish shortly "In Peril of Change," essays on the present times and the possibilities of coming events by C. F. G. Masterman, with a look back on the times of Gladstone, Huxley, Spencer and others that have worked for their day and generation; and "Moral Leaders," a handbook of twelve lectures by Edward Howard Griggs, covering leaders from Socrates to Tolstoi. It is a preparation for the lectures Professor Griggs will deliver in the large cities this winter, suggesting topics for study and giving a carefully selected bibliography.

MCCLURE, PHILLIPS & Co. have just ready "The Pang Yanger," by Dr. Elma A. Travis, which has been awaited for some time, publication having been postponed for a time to get enough ready for the great advance demand. The book is a novel of American life, with scene in the Catskill Mountains. The hero, Abijah Beade, has been deserted by his wife, who took advantage of there being no witnesses to her marriage, and he, a son of the soil, vigorous and primitive, seeks revenge upon her. She has married again and the complications of the plot are full of interest.

DODGE PUBLISHING COMPANY have ready "The Chronicles of the Little Tot," by Edmund Vance Cooke, whose verses always show such deep understanding of child nature; and "Thought Transference," by Northcote W. Thomas, who deals critically and sympathetically with the question in a manner to be understood by the average reader. In rapid succession they will bring out the Oriental edition of "The Rubaiyat" with photogravure illustrations by Adelaide Hanscombe; "Mother Stork's Baby Book," with verses by Field and Stevenson; and "What to Have for Dinner," by Fannie Merritt Farmer.

THE CENTURY COMPANY are bringing out a delightful children's book in "Queen Zixi of Ix," in which L. Frank Baum, the inventor of "The Wizard of Oz," again shows his rare genius at pure fun and nonsense, in which he is ably aided and abetted by his illustrator, Frederick Richardson; and also promise the boys a wonderfully stirring book in "Pinkey Perkins, Just a Boy," by Captain Harold Hammond, of the United States Army. Pinkey is a genius and as full of adventure, fun and frolic as the immortal "Tom Sawyer." The books bear the Century imprint; needless to say they are models of bookmaking.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have just published "The Old Road," by H. Belloc. The illustrations are fine examples of the skill of artist and engraver. The volume contains eleven photogravure plates and seventeen line illustrations, besides a map in six sections. The same house have also just issued "Facts and Fancies About Java," by Augusta De Wit. A most interesting and informing description of Java, its life and its people, with something of its history and legend. The author has drawn her material from a long residence in the island. The book has more than 160 illustrations finely reproduced in half tone from original photographs.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just ready "Caroline of Courtland Street," by Weymer J. Mills, a captivating tale of old New York, illustrated in color by Anna Whelan Betts and gotten out in holiday attire, as are also "London Films," by W. D. Howells, in which Mr. Howells's mental kodak has taken humorous snap-shots of contrasts between the English and American metropolis, all happily illustrated in pictures; "The Pleasant Tragedies of Childhood," drawings by F. Y. Cory and verses by Burges Johnson; and "Wee Winkles and Wide Awake," by Gabrielle E. Jackson, a story for little folk just beginning to read for themselves, very happily illustrated.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have just ready "Romance of the French Abbeys," by Elizabeth W. Champney, which fully carries out Guizot's advice, "If you are fond of romance. read history;" "Mohammed: the Rise of Islam," by D. S. Margoliouth, professor of Arabic, Oxford University, the newest in the Heroes of the Nations Series; "The Principles of the Administrative Law of the United States," by Frank J. Goodnow, intended for the general student of American institutions; and two novels: "At the Sign of the Jack O' Lantern," a story of a New York newspaper man and his young wife, by Myrtle Reed; and "The Scarlet Pimpernel, a romance of the French Revolution by Baroness Orczy.

GEORGE W. JACOBS & Co., Philadelphia, are preparing a most attractive gift book under the title "Shakespeare's Sweetheart," a story by Sara Hawks Sterling, with full-page illustrations in color by Clara Elsene Peck. The text will be printed in two colors throughout and the pretty book will be neatly boxed to look more festive. "The Girl and the Deal," by Karl Edward Harriman, is meeting with deserved success. The hero, who is a finished product of Boston culture, learns much on a trip to San Francisco to put through a "deal" for his father, and the descriptions of the beauties of our vast country are remarkably well written. The book is to be steadily advertised and dealers will no doubt be asked for it.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. on October 19 will issue "Life and Religion," by Max Muller; "Child's Rainy Day Book," by Mary White Talbot; "The Home Library of Law," by Albert S. Bolles; and Part 5 of "The Dog Book," by James Watson. On the 26th they will publish "The Tree Book," by Julia S. Rogers, illustrated by 350 photographs taken by A. Radcliffe Bugmore, the skilled nature photographer; and "Country Homes of Famous Americans," by Oliver Bronson Capen, with introduction by T. Wentworth Higginson. We note with pleasure that "The Clansman" has reached its eightieth thousand, and that "The Missourian," by Eugene P. Lyle, is at the moment among the "six best sellers" in the United States.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY have a fine story in James M. Ludlow's new novel, entitled "Sir Raoul: a story of the theft of an empire, a fitting successor of "The Captain of the Janizaries" and "Deborah." The plot is based upon historical facts concerning the failure of that crusade of the thirteenth century, which was diverted from conquering the Moslems to the capture of the Christian city of Constantinople. Ludlow has again made his readers acquainted with a woman that they can never forget. Also ready and most promising are "St. Cecilia of the Court," by Isabella R. Hess; "The Village Artist," by Adeline M. Teskey; "The Wisdom of the Simple: a tale of lower New York," by Owen Kildare; and W. J. Dawson's "Makers of English Fiction."

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY will issue "The Black Spaniel," by Robert Hichens, author of "The Garden of Allah;" and "The Heart of Lady Anne," by Agnes and Egerton Castle, a new story of the charming circle made famous in "The Bath Comedy." Two instant successes have been "The Speculations of John Steele," by Robert Barr, a wonderful story of railroads and "trusts;" and "A Servant of the Public," by Anthony Hope, of which there is already a second large edition almost exhausted. During the month they will have ready a handsome edition of Lewis Carroll's "Through the Looking Glass," and "Sir Toady Crusoe," another of S. R. Crockett's juveniles, telling of the adventures of two boys and a girl in a picturesque spot on an English seacoast.

THE novelists are not the only authors whose books are entitled to be classed as "best sellers." Not infrequently books of which the general public rarely hears achieve this enviable distinction, as, for example, Dr. Frederick H. Sykes's "Elementary English Composition." In the short time since its publication, last May, by Charles Scribner's Sons, Dr. Sykes's book has been adopted for exclusive use for a period of five years in all of the schools of Mississippi. In addition to this, three editions have been required by the demand resulting from the adoption of the book throughout the country in many of the largest and most representative cities, the sales in these few months amounting to about 16,000 copies. Dr. Sykes is connected with the Teachers' College, Columbia University.

HENRY HOLT & COMPANY will issue next week "The Professor's Legacy," by Mrs. Alfred Sidgwick, a novel of German university and English country life; "The Lincoln and Douglas Debates," edited by Professor Archibald Lewis Bouton, of New York University; and "The Wizards of Ryetown," by A. C. Smedley and L. A. Talbot, a charming fairy story reinforced by Miss McGregor's quaint and funny illustrations. Very shortly will be issued Professor E. Ray Lankester's "Extinct Animals," by arrangement with Archibald & Co., of London, with the remarkable illustrations of the English edition. These English publishers have also contracted to bring out on the other side Beers's two books on "English Romanticism" on the 18th and 19th centuries, respectively; and Henry S. Pancoast's "An Introduction to English Literature."

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have among their latest books "The Elements of Sociology," by Frank W. Blackmar; "The Garnett and Gosse "English Literature," in a cheaper edition in four volumes; "Roman Education," by A. S. Wilkins; "Surgical Aspect of Digestive Disorders," by James G. Mumford; "Government Regulations of Railway Rates," by Hugo Richard Meyer; a new edition of Arthur Lachman's "The Spirit of Organic Chemistry; "Tables and Constants to Four Figures," compiled by William Hall; "The Works of Mr. Abraham Cowley;" "On Models of Cubic Surfaces," by W. H. Blythe; and "Vedic Metre in Its Historical Development," by E. Vernon Arnold. In lighter vein are Emerson Hough's "Heart's Desire," the story of a contented town; Jack London's "Tales of the Fish Patrol;" and Samuel Merwin's "The Road Builders," an exciting story of railroad building in Texas.

A. S. BARNES & Co. have just ready "The Cherry Ribband," by S. R. Crockett, specially dedicated to the readers of "The Lilac Sunbonnet;" "Squire Phin," by Holman F. Day, a story of "Down East" full of pathos and humor about people who are not rubbed down to a commonplace by the friction of cities; "Lodgings In Town," by Henry Arthur, who here completes a delightful trilogy of which the first two books, "An Island Cabin," and "The House In the Woods," gain in popularity day by day; and "The Shakespeare Story Book," by Mary McLeod with introduction by Sidney Lee, giving the story of all the best known plays in animated narrative. The popularity of Prof. R. K. Duncan's "The New Knowledge" remains unabated and England has just called for a fourth edition. Quite new and of great importance is "The Business of Life Insurance," by Miles Menander Dawson, a comprehensive work for the public on which the author has spent twenty-five years of earnest study.

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO PRESS will issue for the first week of November "General Sociology," by Albion W. Small," which is an exposition of the development of social theory from Spencer to Ratzenhofer; "A Decade of Civic Improvement," by Charles Zueblin, a vigorous optimist who reviews the work done in the past ten years for the betterment of our cities; and "Primary Facts in Religious Thought," by Alfred W. Wishart, who starts with the conception of religion as a universal, inevitable, human experience, and shows how the essence of religion can be kept and do its work in the life of society in spite of changing views on minor points. Important books of recent issue are Milyoukov's "Russia and Its Crisis," "Christian Belief Interpreted by Christian Experience," by Charles Cuthbert Hall; "The Prophetic Element in the Old Testament," by William R. Harper, who is also author of "Religion and the Higher Life" and of "The Trend in Higher Education; and "Place of Industries in Elementary Education," by Katharine E. Dopp.

ROBERT GRIER COOKE, of New York, has in hand a sumptuous edition of the proceedings at the Nineteenth Annual Lincoln Dinner of the Republican Club of New York, which will be published privately by the club. The volume will contain President Roosevelt's notable address, and the instructive speech Senator Dolliver made on that occasion, and also Senator Knight's address in response to the toast, "The Republican Party." Mr. Cooke has also brought out for J. Pierpont Morgan an edition of 250 copies of a work describing Mr. Morgan's collection of "Chinese Porcelains," with over 70 plates in many colors; a booklet for the Peary Arctic Club, which contains a portrait of Commander Peary and a picture of The Roosevelt, in which Peary expects to reach the North Pole; also a limited edition, on Japan paper, in colors, of the "Portrait of Mme. Sarah Bernhardt," drawn from life by Gardner C. Teall, which will prove of unusual interest in anticipation of Mme. Bernhardt's forthcoming American tour. These books are all exquisite works of typographic art and decoration.

JOHN LANE COMPANY, The Bodley Head, call attention to "Great Japan," a study of national efficiency by Alfred Stead, with introduction by the Earl of Rosebery; "Heretics," by Gilbert K. Chesterton, who sets forth the heresies of Kipling, Yeats, Shaw, Omar Khayyám, etc.; "The Ford," a novel by A. E. J. Legge; "The Duke of Reichstadt," the life of Napoleon's son L'Aiglon, by Edward de Wertheimer; "Napoleon, the First Phase," an account of the youth and boyhood of the emperor, by Oscar Browning; "The Singing of the Future," by David Ffrangcon-Davies, with a preface by Sir Edward Elgar; "Life and Romance in the Indian Jungle," by Captain A. I. R. Glasfurd, of the Indian Army; "Moorish Remains in Spain," by Albert F. Calvert, of which the first volume, now ready, deals with Cordova, Seville and Toledo; "The Poems of William Watson," edited by J. A. Spender, in two volumes; "Last Poems," by Laurence Hope; "Collected Poems of Ernest Dowson, with illustrations by Aubrey Symons; "The Creed of Christ," said to be as remarkable as "Ecce Homo;" and "Memoirs of a Royal Chaplain, 1729-1763," edited by Albert Hartshorne; "Jane Austen: Her Homes and Friends," by Constance Hill, has been added to the Crown Library; and there is also a volume on "Jane Austen's Sailor Brothers," by J. H. and Edith C. Hubback.

L. C. PAGE & Co. will issue late in the month "China," by the late Colonel Charles Denby. This famous diplomat served under four administrations as minister to China for thirteen years, and splendidly improved this rarest of opportunities to gain an insight into the life and heart of the Orient. His book of observations, reminiscences and conclusions is a most valuable contribution to the literature on China, and even to the casual reader is a fascinating volume. Colonel Denby's son, Charles Denby, at present a resident of China, which he bids fair to know nearly as well as his father, has added a chapter or two on the events subsequent to his father's death. The illustrations are from photographs owned by Colonel Denby, many of which were presented to him by his Chinese friends and associates, and enhance the personal atmosphere of the book which renders it so attractive. The house also announces the following new printings: "The Rival Campers," the juvenile by Ruel P. Smith issued a few weeks ago, second impression; "Poetry of American Wit and Humor," third impression; "Cathedrals of Southern France," by Francis Miltoun, fourth impression; "Among English Inns," Miss Josephine Tozier's delightful book of travel in rural England, sixth impression; and "The Heart of the Ancient Wood," Professor Charles G. D. Roberts's nature romance, the tenth impression.

THOMAS Y. CROWELL & Co. have just ready a handsome edition of Scott's Waverley Novels, in twenty-five volumes, printed from new large type on fine paper, with a number of illustrations from paintings, photographs and drawings. They have nearly ready "The Diary of a Bride," which deals with intimate matters of the heart; "The Happy Life," a new edition of a book, by Charles W. Eliot, of Harvard, which has aroused some discussion as to its similarity of theme with Pastor Wagner's books, though originally published some time before Wagner's books appeared; "Benjamin Franklin's Selected Essays," edited by U. Waldo Cutler; "Best Hundred American Poems," selected by John R. Howard; "Lohengrin," by Oliver Huckel, who retells Wagner's music drama in the spirited English verse which distinguished his "Parsifal," published last year; "The Melody of God's Love," a study of the twenty-third Psalm, by Oliver Huckel; "Irving's Selected Works," in the Crowell's Miniature edition, printed on India paper from readable type, forming the smallest and daintiest edition of Irving on the market; "The Minister as Prophet," by Charles E. Jefferson, who defines some of the duties of the minister and explains his mission in a practical way; "The Loves of Great Composers," by Gustav Kobbé, containing entertaining accounts of the romances of Chopin, Schuman, Mendelssohn, Liszt and others, with twenty-four full-page illustrations printed in colors; "Is Life Worth Living?" by Frederick Lynch, a well-worded brief discussion of the subject, thoroughly logical and to the point; "The Life That Counts," by Samuel Valentine Cole, president of Wheaton Seminary, who describes the life that serves other lives and counts for something in the world, and shows this good life has been essentially the same in all ages; also, "Greatness in Literature, and Other Papers," by William P. Trent, of Columbia University, consisting of eight papers, the first dealing with great names in authorship, the second giving a word for the smaller authors and for popular judgment, and the other six treating of all kinds of aims and methods in literary study.

ISAAC PITMAN & SONS. 31 Union Square, NEW YORK

This book is worth your while.

We want all booksellers to take especial note of "The Pang-Yanger" by Elma A. Travis, M.D., published about October 25th. Primarily, we, the publishers, and you, the bookseller, are in the book business for the same reason—for making money. It is a great thing for both of us when the selling power of a book can be recognized in advance. When it is a good book by the author of a previous good seller, we all know that the book will sell well. Such a book is "My Friend the Chauffeur."

The Pang-Yanger, is a new book by a new author, but when we bought this book, and now that we have brought it out, we are convinced that it has that power which will make it one of the larger sellers.

We call your attention to the following facts:

"The Pang-Yanger" will be published Oct. 25th. It is the usual 12mo novel, at the publisher's price of $1.50.

It will be advertised in a list of the leading newspapers of the United States, reaching a circulation of five million people.

Herewith is reproduced the first advertisement which will appear Friday, October 20th. We propose to keep up this sort of advertising until every person, whether a regular book reader or not, will read this book from sheer interest in its preliminary advertising.

Do not fail to have a good-sized order of "The Pang-Yanger" on your list of books, because we believe it is going to make a popular appeal.

What is a Pang-Yanger?

A new book, with strange and unusual features, is "The Pang-Yanger" by Elma A. Travis, M.D. Abijah Bead is the Pang-Yanger, a man with a strange and almost weird sense of justice and revenge who punishes his faithless wife by bringing her son to grow up in the community where she is best known so that his startling resemblance will be a constant punishment to her. This is a real and stirring story. The author rounds out her tale with vivid pictures of the life in Pang-Yang, the Catskill village where it all happens. Cloth, 12mo. $1.50. All booksellers.

Flashlights in the Jungle

Translated by FREDERIC WHYTE from the German with the co-operation of the author

C. G. SCHILLINGS

With over 300 photographs of African wild animals taken by day and night.

We bought the American book and serial rights of this important work, and shall publish it immediately in one very handsome volume of 900 pages, containing the author's complete series of 302 untouched photographs, uniform with "The Opening of Tibet"—that is, a $6.00 book for $3.80. DISCOUNT TO THE TRADE OF ONE-THIRD ON ONE OR MORE COPIES WILL BE GIVEN.

Sir H. H. Johnston has written an introduction to this epoch-making volume, and Mr. Roosevelt has written the author to express his admiration of the achievement.

Mr. Schillings is a well known traveller, hunter and scientist; in 1903 he went for a fourth time through equatorial East Africa with a caravan of 170 carriers and an elaborate photographic outfit suitable for telephotography and flashlight work; and the results of these expeditions show the reader incredibly clear and intimate details of the wild life of lions, elephants, rhinoceroses, hippopotami, giraffes, hyenas, zebras, condor, and almost every other important beast and bird of the region.

These are the only reproductions from the original negatives of these pictures which have appeared in America. Messrs. Harper & Brothers have issued a "pirated" version containing a portion of the text and only one-third of the illustrations copied from the half-tones in the German edition, without sanction of the author or the German or English publishers—and in the face of our information that we had paid a high price for the American rights. Up to the day of publication of the Harper edition the author had had no communication with them whatever. We have changed the title of our book to emphasize the difference. This is the only version which is in any sense adequate or authorized.

Uniform with "The Opening of Tibet." $3.80 net. (Postage 38 cents)

American Standard Revised Bible

A new translation from the original by eminent American and British scholars who worked 29 years to give to the world of to-day

The Bible IN Plain English

It is not a new Bible — The American Standard is simply the Great Book made plain for every reader.

"It is not the Bible that is being revised; it is man's fallible translations from one human language into another that are capable of constant improvement in order to better convey the Father's message." — Charles Gallaudet Trumbull, Editor of the Sunday School Times.

"The most perfect English Bible in existence. It embodies in itself the greatest number of good qualities, and is the best representative of the ripest scholarship at the close of the nineteenth and the beginning of the twentieth century." — Prof. Ira M. Price, Ph.D., LL.D., University of Chicago.

All booksellers have in stock, or can quickly get from us, any style of the American Standard Revised Bible you order. Prices 35c. to $18.00, according to size and binding. See that you get the American Standard Edition. Look for the Nelson imprint and the endorsement of The American Revision Committee on the back of title page. We sell direct where booksellers will not supply.

Terms of Payment on Both Regular and Special Offers

Terms are always subject to special agreement, but in general they are as follows:

On sale for 90 days: all copies sold at the end of that time to be paid for, cash in full, pro rata, the remainder to be returned to us at our expense immediately thereafter, either upon receipt of our request or at the option of the dealer. If further pictures are ordered before the end of the 90-day period, the first lot is to be paid for before the shipment of the new lot. Prices and terms on which new lot may be furnished are a matter for future agreement.

Packing: The pictures are regularly put up in flat pasteboard boxes of 100 pictures each, 95 Sepia and 5 black, or 100 in full original colors, besides two mounted pictures for display purposes.

Window-Display: Dealers are urged to give the pictures a prominent and continuous window-display.

$100 Orders: Dealers who are selling the pictures well are urged to let us ship them in lots of 1,000. We pack the 10 boxes of 100 pictures each in a neat wooden box with sliding cover. The whole occupies only two cubic feet of space. We prepay the express and all unsold pictures are returnable to us at our expense (as stated above). The profit is then 150% on every retail sale, instead of 66⅔%.

Sample Copies: A sample in sepia or black will be sent in a mailing-tube, to any address in the world, on receipt of 20 cents in stamps (of any country); in full original colors for $1.10.

Christmas Bookselling

How to Help it Along

Every live bookseller at this season is considering plans for holiday cataloging. The vital question with him is how to make his Christmas announcements with both dignity and effect without spending too much time and money in the production of an adequate list.

This question is answered economically in the use of "The Christmas Bookshelf" (the Christmas number of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY) with the dealer's own imprint. It is a magazine-catalog of about 240 pages, copiously illustrated with specimen illustrations from the best books of the year. It contains unquestionably the most attractive assemblage of the best new issues of all the publishers, with ample descriptive notices. A feature is the carefully-prepared purchase list, which, with the publishers' own advertisements, gives a comprehensive survey of about all a bookseller would be likely to keep in stock during the holiday season.

It is a Christmas Catalog that your customers will feel flattered in receiving!

The price for editions with the bookseller's own imprint, is based on cost of paper and press-work only, without counting cost of composition (which is done as the Christmas issue of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY), and, therefore, is below the cost of a catalog made by any bookseller for himself.

Per 100 Copies.	$10.00
" 250 "	20.00
" 500 "	38.00
" 1000 "	75.00

A small edition is printed on thick paper, with dealer's imprint, at $20.00 per 100 copies.

We remind you that it is necessary to have orders early, so that we may regulate the size of the edition. Usually, the edition, even when we print somewhat above our orders, has been promptly exhausted as soon as specimens could be shown, so that you cannot depend on a supply unless you order now. We shall be glad to send you a sample copy of last year's issue, if you will send post card request.

Christmas Bookselling

How to Help it Along

Every live bookseller at this season is considering plans for holiday cataloging. The vital question with him is how to make his Christmas announcements with both dignity and effect without spending too much time and money in the production of an adequate list.

This question is answered economically in the use of "The Christmas Bookshelf" (the Christmas number of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY) with the dealer's own imprint. It is a magazine-catalog of about 240 pages, copiously illustrated with specimen illustrations from the best books of the year. It contains unquestionably the most attractive assemblage of the best new issues of all the publishers, with ample descriptive notices. A feature is the carefully-prepared purchase list, which, with the publishers' own advertisements, gives a comprehensive survey of about all a bookseller would be likely to keep in stock during the holiday season.

It is a Christmas Catalog that your customers will feel flattered in receiving!

The price for editions with the bookseller's own imprint, is based on cost of paper and press-work only, without counting cost of composition (which is done as the Christmas issue of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY), and, therefore, is below the cost of a catalog made by any bookseller for himself.

Per 100 Copies.	$10.00
" 250 "	20.00
" 500 "	38.00
" 1000 "	75.00

A small edition is printed on thick paper, with dealer's imprint, at $20.00 per 100 copies.

We remind you that it is necessary to have orders early, so that we may regulate the size of the edition. Usually, the edition, even when we print somewhat above our orders, has been promptly exhausted as soon as specimens could be shown, so that you cannot depend on a supply unless you order now. We shall be glad to send you a sample copy of last year's issue, if you will send post card request.

Christmas Bookselling

How to Help it Along

Every live bookseller at this season is considering plans for holiday cataloging. The vital question with him is how to make his Christmas announcements with both dignity and effect without spending too much time and money in the production of an adequate list.

This question is answered economically in the use of "The Christmas Bookshelf" (the Christmas number of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY) with the dealer's own imprint. It is a magazine-catalog of about 240 pages, copiously illustrated with specimen illustrations from the best books of the year. It contains unquestionably the most attractive assemblage of the best new issues of all the publishers, with ample descriptive notices. A feature is the carefully-prepared purchase list, which, with the publishers' own advertisements, gives a comprehensive survey of about all a bookseller would be likely to keep in stock during the holiday season.

It is a Christmas Catalog that your customers will feel flattered in receiving!

The price for editions with the bookseller's own imprint, is based on cost of paper and press-work only, without counting cost of composition (which is done as the Christmas issue of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY), and, therefore, is below the cost of a catalog made by any bookseller for himself.

Per 100 Copies.	$10.00
" 250 "	20.00
" 500 "	38.00
" 1000 "	75.00

A small edition is printed on thick paper, with dealer's imprint, at $20.00 per 100 copies.

We remind you that it is necessary to have orders early, so that we may regulate the size of the edition. Usually, the edition, even when we print somewhat above our orders, has been promptly exhausted as soon as specimens could be shown, so that you cannot depend on a supply unless you order now. We shall be glad to send you a sample copy of last year's issue, if you will send post card request.

PUBLISHED THIS WEEK

A YELLOW JOURNALIST

By MIRIAM MICHELSON

Author of "In the Bishop's Carriage"

Illustrated. 12mo. Ornamental Cloth, $1.50

This novel has the true newspaper thrill in it from beginning to end. The intense desire to "cover" one's assignment completely and well is brought out in the midst of the melodramatic atmosphere of a modern newspaper.

The Staircase of Surprise

HARPER'S NEW PUBLICATIONS

From "The Debtor"

THE DEBTOR

By MARY E. WILKINS FREEMAN

THIS popular author, whose New England tales have touched the hearts of thousands of readers in a way that few books have done, has in this novel drawn a hero of no common sort, and his chequered career is appealingly portrayed. It is a searching study of character and also a well-told tale—told in the true Mary E. Wilkins style. There is here a love story of the most alluring type, while the fortunes of "the debtor" are sure to be followed with eager interest.

Illustrated. Price, $1.50

A History of Our Own Times

(Volumes IV. and V.)

By JUSTIN McCARTHY

IN THESE new volumes (IV. and V.) the author carries his admirable history from the Diamond Jubilee of the Reign of Queen Victoria to the accession of Edward VII. This is one of the very few histories that deserve a place also as literature. The author is master of a vigorous, yet smooth and lucid style, and he is especially happy in his portraiture of the various statesmen, reformers, authors, and scientists whose lives figure prominently in the times of which he writes.

Vols. IV. and V. (Uniform with Vols. I.-III.). Illustrated Price, $1.40 net each

For the Mikado

By KIRK MUNROE

A BRAND-NEW and stirring story of two boys' adventures in the Russo-Japanese War. Daring exploits in submarine-boat warfare are a novel feature. It is a capital story, offering something new and yet wholesome to satisfy the craving of youthful readers for adventure.

Illustrated. Post 8vo, Cloth. Price, $1.25

THE DELUGE

"THE DELUGE" is a story of high and frenzied finance. It is important to every fiction-lover because it grips the attention in a vise of steel. It is important to every patriotic American because it lays absolutely bare the financial dilemma toward which the country has drifted.

But in the clash of the great business conflict, the love element is not for a moment forgotten. It is the refreshing and glorifying touch in a novel of magnificent proportions and persistent absorption.

"A cross-section out of the very heart of our life to-day, with its big and bold energies and passions, the swiftest and intensest human life ever lived by the human race."

TO THE TRADE

The complete copies of the new holiday leader, "HER LETTER," by Bret Harte, with the forty-four splendid illustrations by Arthur I. Keller, in color and tint, are so superior to anything which is now on the market and so much more attractive even than the dummies indicated that the first edition was entirely inadequate to supply the advance orders.

A second edition was called for last week and a third is now "on press," although the book was published only last Wednesday.

Aside from the warm reception which "HER LETTER" has received from the members of the Book Trade, the critics have prophesied its success and have pointed out that as a poem and as an artistic piece of book-making, it is calculated to please all classes and all ages of readers.

"For once, no publisher's promise or critic's praise can exaggerate," says the New York Globe in reviewing "HER LETTER."

An additional and no less important feature is the price, $2.00, a figure far below the artistic value of the book and one which places it in the hands of the public at a bargain.

The dealers are advised to send in their orders early, as the demand is sure to be pressing as Christmas time approaches.

EMERALD CITY—LAND OF OZ

No. Z44Y 9TH DAY—4TH PERIOD—REIGN OF OZMA VOL. Ω

IN GREAT DANGER

THE WOGGLE-BUG WOOS TOO MANY

Gets Tangled In His Love Affairs But All Ends Well. Story In Detail Published In Book Form Under the Title:—"The Woggle-Bug Book."

Our distinguished fellow citizen, Mr. H. M. Woggle-Bug, T. E., has just passed through a series of strenuous adventures that came close to ending his career. His curiosity aroused by reading of the exploits of Johann Hoch, Mr. Woggle-Bug began a series of passionate courtships that led him into many ridiculous and compromising positions.

So full of interest to all Ozmanites were these affairs "de coeur" that Mr. Woggle-Bug engaged our famous historian, Mr. L. Frank Baum, to set them forth in chronological order with the result that The Reilly & Britton Co. of Chicago have published the volume in the most attractive form. We reproduce herewith a cut of the book.

It is an extremely interesting and amusing narrative and the make up of the book is most novel.

It is lavishly illustrated in many colors by Ike Morgan and is

THE WEATHER

The Ozmapolitan is pleased to announce that hereafter its weather predictions will be penned by Jack Pumpkinhead, who will be assisted by The Scarecrow. We have engaged them at an enormous salary.

First prediction by the new prognosticators:

Generally fair with clouds and sprinkles of rain or snow gradually changing to something else. Temperature stationary or rising or falling in accordauce with the amount of sunshine. Winds southerly or westerly or variable.

THE REILLY & BRITTON CO., CHICAGO, BOOK PUBLISHERS. (Adv.)

EXTRA! EXTRA!

60,000 KILLED?

No! Almost. Our Reporter made a Slight Error. It was 60,000 SOLD

A reporter for THE OZMAPOLITAN was riding home in a wireless trolley car last night when he overheard a conversation between two strap hangers in which he heard the words, sixty thousand. Of course he thought it had to do with a war or an accident and accordingly telephoned the office. We at once set our headline writer (employed at $500 a week,) to work on this extra.

It turns out that one of the strap hangers is in the book business and was telling of the wonderful sale—60,000 copies—of the Christmas Stocking Series—six little books for little children, published by The Reilly & Britton Co., of Chicago. These little books are put up in miniature book cases made of Japanese wood, with doors that open and shut. They are sure to please all children. The titles embrace "The Night Before Christmas," "Fairy Tales from Grimm," "Little Black Sambo," "Cinderella," "A Child's

THE YELLOW PERIL

WASHEE WASHEE

Oz Endangered by Invasion of Heathon Chinee!

Mars, 8th day, 4th period. (Special wireless aerogram to The Ozmapolitan—Delayed.) Bulletins from hundreds of bookdealers in the United States announce the remarkable popularity of Washee Washee—a heathen Chinee.

The local government at first feared that the Yellow Peril was about to engulf Mars and extend to Oz and Jupiter but late advices dispel all apprehension.

Washee Washee is not a real Chinaman but a "shape-book," an original idea of W. M. Rhoads and published by The Reilly & Britton Co. of Chicago. It contains Laundry Lists for a year—is cut out on the outlines of a Chinaman and is printed on firecracker-red paper. Each page contains a quip or maxim—funny, wise or cynical. It is a useful novelty that

PERSONAL MENTION

L. Frank Baum, the official historian of The Marvelous Land of Oz, will spend the winter in Italy. (His publishers will remain at home.) While abroad Mr. Baum will write a weekly letter exclusively for THE OZMAPOLITAN—subscribe now.

Schuyler Staunton has just delivered to his publishers, The Reilly & Britton Co., the Ms. of a new novel. It will probably be published early next year.

EMPIRE FALLS

DOM PEDRO OVERTHROWN

This news is a little old, but our wireless telegraph system is out of gear and we had to have a good display head for this column. But whether it is old or new news, you will enjoy reading Schuyler Staunton's novel called The Fate of a Crown (The Reilly & Britton Co., Chicago.) It grips your attention at once, and the quick, snappy action with its plots and mysteries, romance and love, sustains your interest to the final chapter and a denoument as unlooked for as it is satisfying.

The scene is laid in Brazil at the time of the revolution which dethroned Dom Pedro, but the hero is an American. Of the character drawing we can only speak in the highest terms of praise. Every Ozmanite should buy a copy of The Fate of a Crown.

It is handsomely bound, well illus-

Practical Selling Points About

XEN  BLAIX

Published To-Day

We believe that this story of South Dakota, by a new writer, has more selling possibilities than almost any novel we have yet published.

1. A good, well-written story of ranch life is popular with almost everyone just now, especially if there is the right amount of dashing love-making and stern fighting.

2. THE COVER is the kind that arrests attention. On a counter it can not be overlooked.

3. It has been effectively advertised in one hundred newspapers on and before publication day—creating active advance interest.

4. THE POSTER in full color is, we believe, the most striking ever made for a book. If displayed in your window or store it is bound to excite comment and interest. If you have seen it you will understand why.

The BLACK SPANIEL

By ROBERT HICHENS

Author of "The Garden of Allah," "Felix," etc.

"The Black Spaniel" the long story that with several shorter ones makes up this volume, is as unusual and original as the novels the author has given us previously. Aside from its compelling appeal against vivisection, the story has as its theme a most curious and realistic psychological motive growing out of the cruel treatment of a little dog, that baffles the reader and, even against his will, holds his attention to the last page.

The remaining stories are chiefly of the Arabian desert—the fascinating background of Mr. Hichens's masterpiece "The Garden of Allah."

The Mystery of June 13th

A New Novel by Melvin L. Severy

Author of "THE DARROW ENIGMA"

IN the heart of this book there is a mystery as extraordinary as any in the realm of sensational fiction. It is a mystery which absolutely defies a solution by the most ingenious student of the plots and the contrivances of the novelist. We read of the apocryphal performances of the Fakirs of India—how in plain sight of a hundred onlookers, the magician will throw a rope up in the air, climb up it and actually disappear. In a literary way, the author of "June 13th" does something fully as extraordinary. Sherlock Holmes at his best would have been unable to find the slightest theory to explain the extraordinary disappearance of James Moreton. Those who read the same author's "The Darrow Enigma," which was so popular last year, were vividly impressed with its absolute originality, its difference from the conventional story of the kind. Yet when compared with "The Mystery of June 13th," "The Darrow Enigma" itself seems almost trite and usual.

THE BALLINGTONS.

An Uncommonly Original and Powerful New Novel by Frances Squire.*

IT must be confessed that when a novel by an unknown author comes into the hands of a reviewer he is likely to open it with the listless mental exclamation of "Yet another!" The most sated reader, however, cannot turn many pages of "The Ballingtons" without becoming aware that it is by no means "another," but distinctly itself, a book of striking originality and power, and of intense human interest.

It has a double drama in the lives of two married pairs, in one of which the husband holds the purse, in the other the wife. In the one financial despotism makes the situation insupportable, in the other the wife's refusal to recognize her husband's manly resolution to be independent. . . . We have rarely seen a picture more accurate in detail, more logical in consequences, more true in all its coloring, more subtle in every "nuance" than this of the wedded life of Ferdinand and Agnes Ballington. The writer has felt and thought deeply, with the result of a wonderfully true presentation of marriage under certain conditions, and of the inevitable effect upon a woman's character. . . .

There is never a point where the author swerves from absolute truth. . . . Take it all in all, it is the most remarkable novel that has come to our desk for many a long day. It is written with distinction of style, with large sympathy, with clear vision, but not these qualities nor its absorbing interest put it upon a height unapproached by the great majority of even the best novels of the day; it takes its rare and high place because, as we read we say again and again, not "This is lifelike," but "This is life."

NOTES IN SEASON.

JOHN LANE COMPANY. Bodley Head, has ready "The Little Farm," a new volume in the Country Handbooks, which deals specially with fruit and poultry; and "Underneath the Bough," by Theodora Thompson, who has made a very good anthology which bears as sub-title "A Posie of Other Men's Flowers," and is gotten up as a holiday book.

A. C. MCCLURG & Co. publish to-day "Ben Blair: a Story of a Plainsman," by Will Lillibridge, a tale of ranch life in South Dakota, full of dashing love making and stern fighting, of which they have printed 15,000 before putting it on the market; and "The Moon Princess," a new fairy book by Mrs. Carter Harrison, illustrated in color and black and white by Lucy Fitch Perkins, and gotten up uniform with the author's great successes, "Prince Silverwings," now in the fourth edition, and "The Star Fairies," already in the second edition. Very shortly the house will have ready a holiday gift book by Blanche Elizabeth Wade, entitled "A Garden in Pink," which tells an idyllic love story of two young married people who take delight in making themselves a garden, and for which the illustrations are also furnished by Lucy Fitch Perkins.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. publish to-day Captain A. T. Mahan's new work, entitled "Sea Power in Its Relations to the War of 1812," in two handsome volumes, illustrated with photogravure frontispieces, maps, battle plans and twenty-three full-page plates in half-tone, from original illustrations by Henry Reuterdahl, Stanley M. Arthurs, Carlton T. Chapman, etc.; "The Divining Rod," a realistic romance of the oil regions of Pennsylvania in their early days, by Francis N. Thorpe; "Select Poems of Robert Browning," arranged in chronological order, with biographical and literary notes, by A. J. George, editor of "Poetical Works of Wordsworth," etc; also, "The Joy That No Man Taketh from You," by Lilian Whiting. They will publish on the 30th inst. "The Brotherhood War," by John C. Reed; "Two in Italy," by Maud Howe; also, "French Pathfinders in North America," by William Henry Johnson.

DODD, MEAD & COMPANY publish to-day "Old-Fashioned Flowers," by Maurice Maeterlinck, illustrated in colors; "The Mystery of June 13," by Melvin L. Severy; "My Lady's Slipper," by Cyrus Townsend Brady; "Humpty Dumpty," by Anna Alice Capen, author of "Babes in Toyland," with illustrations in color by Ethel Franklin Betts; "The Great World," a book of essays by Hamilton Wright Mabie; Tennyson's "Maud," illustrated and decorated by Margaret and Helen Maitland Armstrong; and "The Romance of Royalty," by Fitzgerald Molloy, published in two volumes, with portraits and illustrations. The royalty includes Isabella II. of Spain, Ludwig II. of Bavaria, the Duchess d'Alençon and the Empress Eugenie. "Ancient Legends of Roman History," by Dr. Ettore Pais, is translated by Mario E. Casenza, of the College of the City of New York; "The Silken East," by V. C. Scott O'Connor, is a record of life and travel in Burma; and A. Barbara has written an important book on "The World of Fashion and of Letters at Bath Under Queen Anne and the Georges." All these books are now on the market.

Armour, J. P. Edenindia: a tale of adventure. N. Y., G: W. Dillingham Co., [1905. S.] c. 4-317 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

The hero, a rich young man about New York City, is suddenly informed by his mother that his fortune is gone and on the same day learns that his fiancée has broken her engagement. He goes to work and for a rest goes to Vermont. On a hot night he goes to sleep in his uncle's airship after pulling it up 200 feet above the ground. It breaks loose, and when the young man awakens he is in Edenindia, somewhere the other side of the world. He meets many adventures, finds a long-lost sister and returns to retrieve the fortunes of his family.

Atherton, Mrs. Gertrude Franklin Horn. The travelling thirds. N. Y., Harper, 1905. [O.] c. 3+295 p. D. cl., †$1.25.

Mr. and Mrs. Moulton and their two daughters, intensely proper and quite commonplace Americans, decide to include Spain in their itinerary even if they have to travel third-class for obvious reasons. Catalina Shore, a California heiress who has lived her days on a ranch, is a member of their party and is constantly outraging their ideas of conventionality. Complications arise with the appearance of an English army officer and an enamoured Spanish peasant, and love making even in the Alhambra and Toledo and at a bull fight becomes difficult and full of surprises.

Bacon, Alice Mabel. In the land of the gods: some stories of Japan. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1905. [O.] c. 7+273 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

The author of "Japanese girls and women," who was a teacher at the Peeresses' School in Tokyo, here gives ten stories dealing with some of the popular beliefs and superstitions of Japan which even today actuate the lives of some forty million wide-awake, progressive and intelligent people. The Japanese stand out among the nations for their actual, practical faith in the close relations between the invisible and visible world and the continuity of all existing life.

Baldwin, May. The girls of St. Gabriel's; il. by Percy Tarrant. Phil., Lippincott, 1905. 3+296 p. D. cl., †$1.25.

Story of a young English girl who is sent to a French boarding school, kept by the Sisters. Descriptions of school customs are given and glimpses of French home life in the beautiful old chateau owned by Ursula's uncle. A mystery connected with the chateau proves Ursula's undoing.

Bangs, J: Kendrick. Mrs. Raffles: being the adventures of an amateur crackswoman narrated by Bunny; ed. by J: Kendrick Bangs; il. by Albert Levering. N. Y., Harper, 1905. [O.] c. 5+180 p. S. cl., †$1.25.

A clever parody of Hornung's famous stories. Mrs. Raffles, left a widow, follows in her husband's footsteps. She is connected with many burglaries and finally elopes with another woman's husband. Among her adventures she induces Andrew Carnegie to donate a library to Raffles-Hurst-by-the-Sea, and she also obtains a magnificent loan on the strength of a few steel bonds.

A series of essays on animal life and nature study written since March, 1903, when Mr. Burroughs contributed a paper to the Atlantic on "Real and sham natural history," which was a vigorous protest against the growing tendency to humanize the lower animals. This article brought down upon its author both good and harsh criticism. The essays here collected are answers to these attacks made upon him, embodying the author's opinions concerning the modern school of romantic nature writers. Some of the separate titles are Bird-songs; The wit of a duck; Animal communication; Do animals think and reflect, etc.

A self-willed little princess, running away from home in order to escape being married, reaches an enchanted forest where the most extraordinary things happen to her, and she has many strange escapes, all of which teaches her that "happiness consists in being good to others as well as to yourself."

Corbett, Mrs. G: Little Miss Robinson Crusoe; with col. frontispiece and other il.

Phil., Lippincott, 1905. 6-269 p. D. cl., †$1.25.

A girl of fourteen is carried out to sea in an open boat; later is rescued from drowning by the vessel that has run her down. This ship is driven on the rocks some weeks later, and when the girl regains consciousness she is alone in a tropical land. Then begin her Crusoe-like experiences; geysers, rich jewels, deserted cottages, and a monkey are discovered, and after months of incredible adventures endured alone, she finds other human beings, including survivors of the wreck; and wealth and happiness eventually come to pass for all hands.

Cornaro, L: The art of living long: a new and improved English version of the treatise, by the celebrated Venetian centenarian, Louis Cornaro; with essays by Joseph Addison, Lord Bacon, and Sir Willam Temple. Milwaukee, Wis., W: F. Butler, 1905. c. '03. 5-214 p. por. O. cl., $1.50.

Louis Cornaro, who died at the age of 98 in 1566, wrote three discourses on "The temperate life," wherein he advocates temperance, simple diet and a quiet life as means to health and a long life. These discourses are now newly translated and supplemented by historical matter relating to Cornaro, his family and house by W: F. Butler. There are also selections from Bacon's "History of life and death," Sir William Temple's "Health and long life" as well as an introduction by Addison.

Day, Holman Francis. Squire Phin: a novel. N. Y., A. S. Barnes & Co., 1905. [S.] c. 7+393 p. 1 il. D. cl., †$1.50.

The first long story of the author deals with quaint old characters in a Maine village. The "Squire" is a lawyer who knows the hearts and lives of his neighbors. His brother, who has made great trouble in his day, arrives after long absence in charge of a circus in which he has made money to pay his debts. This brings in the comic element of the story. Squire Phin feels the responsibility of the whole town and lives a useful life wholly for others.

Dole, Nathan Haskell. The Latin poets: an anthology. N. Y., T: Y. Crowell & Co., 1905. c. 13+365 p. O. cl., $2; hf. cf., $3.50.

Follows the same method as "Greek poets." Gives short sketches of the poets from Plautus and Terence to Juvenal and Lucan, then gives selections in the most celebrated translations from the greatest poets. Should be of utility to schools, colleges and libraries, and also furnishes a compact anthology for the general reader of the reading that has influenced all other reading.

President Eliot of Harvard wrote "The happy life" about six years before Charles Wagner gave the world his "Simple life." Certain striking parallels between the two books have been pointed out by leading reviews. They both make a plea for simple living and expound the philosophy of the life worth living. This new edition of "The happy life" was printed at the Merrymount Press, in two colors, and contains a portrait in photogravure of President Eliot.

Ellis, E: Sylvester. Deerfoot in the forest; il. by J. Steeple Davis. Phil., J. C. Winston Co., 1905. c. 366 p. col. front., D. (New Deerfoot ser., no. 1.) $1.

"Deerfoot, the Shawanoe," whom the boys learned to love through the Log Cabin and Deerfoot Series, is again brought to the fore, though he shuffled off the mortal coil in the final volume of the Deerfoot series. This new Deerfoot series, chronologically precedes the old Deerfoot series. The time as in the other books is when Lewis and Clark and their little band of devoted followers, journeyed through the wilderness and prairies from the Ohio to the Pacific. George and Victor our old friends again appear.

Greenslet, Ferris. James Russell Lowell, his life and work. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1905. [O.] c. 10+309 p. il. por. D. cl., $1.50 net.
The author has tried to make Lowell tell his own story as far as possible in brief extracts from letters, journals and private note books. He has with special pains traced out the chronology of Lowell's life and has endeavored to present him in the many-sided phases of his activity, and to give the reader a sense of his personal attraction. There are two concluding chapters containing an analysis of his prose and poetical work based on long study of Lowell's writings. Dr. Greenslet is the author of a life of "Walter Pater," and is also associate editor of the Atlantic Monthly.

Henry, Arthur. Lodgings in town. N. Y., A. S. Barnes & Co., 1905. [S.] c. 7-327 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Like "An island cabin" and "The house in the woods," this last story, completing the trilogy, tells of experiences in New York City where the narrator first came with only a poem to seek his fortunes. His descriptions of New York scenes and conditions are vivid and the illustrations are excellent. The author did not want to be rich or successful in the usual adaptation of the term. He found a helpmeet and chose the obscurity of a farm in the Catskills from where he sent his optimistic messages to the toilers in lodgings. They are burnt out and make a visit to the city and take an automobile tour in which all the characteristic sights are described in a manner to convey much information.

Ingersoll, Ernest. An island in the air: a story of singular adventures in the Mesa country. N. Y., Macmillan, 1905. [S.] c. 6+303 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

More than 50 years ago, Captain Manning, an ex-U. S. A. trooper, started with his family and servants across the plains to California, tempted not only by the gold craze, but by the opportunities offered his boys and girls to find occupations. The story deals with one special episode of the little band. The young people travel ahead of the father and mother, and are separated from them by a cloudburst, finding themselves isolated on a portion of land separated from the main land. Being attacked by a puma, finding an Indian who has been bitten by a rattlesnake, with other equally wonderful adventures, are among the things which happen to the young people before they rejoin the rest of their party.

Macleod, Mary. The Shakespeare story book; with introd. by Sidney Lee; il. by Gordon Browne. N. Y., A. S. Barnes & Co., [1905.] 21+460 p. O. cl., †$1.75.

A new rendering for young people of sixteen of Shakespeare's comedies and tragedies. Sidney Lee in his introduction criticizes Lamb's Tales from Shakespeare as leaving out a great many of the characters and much of the plots of the plays they interpreted for young readers, claiming truthfully that these renderings are fuller and more representative of the spirit of the author.

McSpadden, Jos. Walker. Stories from Wagner. N. Y., T: Y. Crowell & Co., [1905.] c. 14+329 p. il. S. cl., †60 c.; limp leath., †75 c.

The book is directed primarily to the needs of young people, but readers of all ages will find it instructive and entertaining. The author takes the legends and dramas which form the basis of Wagner's operas and has woven each into a direct story. Thus the Ring Cycle, which opens the series is told in four chapters, and the long gaps which come between the librettos of the operas are filled with easy-flowing continuous narrative.

Part of the story of the building of railroads in Southern Texas appeared serially in The Saturday Evening Post under the title "A link in the girdle." The leading spirit in the enterprise is a man of fine character, great knowledge of human nature, and inexhaustible resource. The petty vengeances of rival contractors and the great ingenuity and quick judgment necessary to outwit and baffle old railroad men make an intricate plot, of which the details are really instructive.

The son of one of New York's richest "millionaires" is supposed to have reached nearly forty years of age and to have found his great interest in study of electricity, mechanics, railroads, etc. His father insists upon his marrying and he chooses wisely a girl of fine family and great personal charm. They travel, return to their beautiful home at Newport, then to New York. The husband overloads his wife with gifts, but shows he does not need her companionship. The wild extravagance and unrest of the rich and idle are pictured, but the author works toward a logical and happy ending.

The author of "Daphne" tells the story of a Virginia girl who spends the summer after her mother's death on the coast of Maine. Here she finds a school friend of her mother in great trouble about her son, who has abandoned his profession of law, allowed the family estate to go to ruin and given himself up to vague philosophy and dreams. The girl from Virginia opens his eyes to the beauties and real values of the world and reminds him "that in the Garden of Eden there was a 'tree of life' as well as a 'tree of knowledge.'"

Shorter, Clement King. Charlotte Brontë and her sisters. N. Y., Scribner, 1905. [O.] c. 12+247 p. por. D. (Literary lives.) cl., *$1 net.

Since Mrs. Gaskell wrote her life of Charlotte Bronte, much new material relating to the author of "Jane Eyre" and her family has come to light, but has not been in the interval, gathered into one brief narrative. While making use of a portion of this published material, Mr. Shorter has also added other unpublished material to his little book. To the Brontë enthusiast this will be easily discernible, as it is rich in fresh interest. Charlotte Brontë is permitted to tell her own story mostly in her own words through letters brought to light in recent years. With a story so often told, one could scarcely expect to find the literary charm and earnestness that invest this brief biography.

Welsh, C:, ed. Famous battles of the nineteenth century, 1875-1900; described by Archibald Forbes, G: A. Henty, Arthur Griffiths and other well-known writers. N. Y., A. Wessels Co., 1905. c. 414 p. il. O. cl., $1.25.

With this volume, the account of the famous battles of the 19th century is brought to an end, with the second war of the British against the Boers still in progress. "It was a long period," the editor says, "and its scenes are laid in every quarter of the globe. We chronicle the passing of the red man as a hostile enemy on our own continent, and the beginning of the development of the United States as a world power by the war against Spain and other events which occurred towards the close of the nineteenth century."

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

OCTOBER 21, 1905.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE HARPER INCOME BOND CONVERSION.

As the general creditors of the Harper corporation, at the time of the reorganization of 1900, had their claims adjusted by the issue of income bonds, dollar for dollar, with assurances that an increasing rate of interest could be paid on these bonds and that they would ultimately be worth par, the circular of the present reorganization committee, proposing to take up these bonds at 50 cents on the dollar, by exchanging for them preferred stock with a non-cumulative 6 per cent. dividend simultaneously with an increase of first mortgage bonds from $1,500,000 to $2,000,000, is of general importance and of interest to the trade. The circular is signed by Alexander E. Orr as chairman of the reorganization committee, and anything bearing his signature is entitled to the respectful and careful consideration of business men; but the circular is singularly lacking in the information necessary to acquaint holders of income bonds with the actual circumstances and enable them to form a business judgment.

An income bond is a junior security compared with a first mortgage, but takes precedence of stock and is entitled to interest before any dividends can be paid. The likelihood of a dividend on preferred stock in comparison with interest on income bonds is lessened in the present case by the proposed increase of the first mortgage, which means that $100,000 per year, instead of $75,000 per year, must be earned and paid as interest before there is anything for preferred stockholders. Under the scaling of income bonds to 50 per cent. in preferred stock, the return to creditors on their original claims would be limited to 3 per cent. of the par of such claims, instead of the 5 per cent. originally planned, while the security would not be increased but lessened. It is not evident from the circular how much of the $903,000 disbursed during the past five years represents actual earnings, or indeed, whether the earnings have been and would be sufficient to do more than pay interest on the first mortgage bonds, and on this point some specific statement is certainly due to creditors who are asked to exchange income bonds for preferred stock.

The inducement is offered in the circular that the preferred stock shall be represented on the board of directors. But as the preferred stock would be to the amount only of $1,000,000, and the common stock represents nominally $2,000,000, the preferred stockholders would be in a permanent minority. Under the reorganization plan of 1900 the reorganization committee was to be authorized to deliver this $2,000,000 stock to "present stockholders" (of the preceding corporation) "or to Colonel Harvey for his services as president for five years," the stock to be held during the five years in a voting trust. No information has been vouchsafed to creditors as to the disposition or proportioning of this stock, or whether the voting trust will continue. In short, the circular is notable for a surprising paucity of information as to the real facts in the case, and creditors who are asked to exchange bonds for stock at 50 cents on the dollar, without either guarantee or estimate of the possible returns from year to year, are certainly entitled to know the facts It may be unfortunate, from one point of view, that such facts should be made public property and, as in this case, made subject to newspaper discussion — but that is a necessity arising from the fact that the concern is now a corporation and in a position which requires it to ask from its creditors a further readjustment of claims.

THE INTERNATIONAL ADVERTISING ASSOCIATION.

At the second annual convention of the International Advertising Association in the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, on October 17, O. H. Blackman, of the Frank Presbrey Company, spoke on "Who Creates Advertising?" He said that advertising is created by the great public itself in the new demands which are made by it. Contrary to public opinion, advertising is a very old custom. He traced it back to the days of Pompeii. He deplored the unclean methods in the business, but hoped they would soon be eliminated.

Ben B. Hampton, president of the Ben Hampton Company, dealt with the question "Who Patronizes the Advertiser?" His answer was everybody except those few unfortunates who are listed as inmates of the insane asylums. People think they are not influenced by advertising, but they are. It acts on them unconsciously.

John Lee Mahin, president of the Mahin Advertising Company, of Chicago, next discussed, "Who Pays for the Advertising?"

"The people who buy advertised articles are the ones who pay for the advertising," he said. "In the same way you pay for the mail trains, letter carriers and postmasters by the purchase of a two-cent stamp."

The convention wound up with a dinner on the evening of the 18th inst. The toastmaster was Job E. Hedges. James M. Beck, Charles Emory Smith, Samuel L. Powers, of Boston; J. Ham Lewis, corporation counsel of Chicago, and John McNaught responded to the toast "Advertising."

THE BEST-SELLING AUTHOR.

"Not long ago," according to The Book Monthly, "there walked into a London bookshop a gentleman who said: 'I should like the works of your best-selling author.' It was not quite a usual demand, and the bookseller thought for a moment before responding to it. Then he went to the other end of his shop, picked out a complete edition of Shakespeare and brought it, with the remark, 'This, sir, is our best-selling author.' The inquiring customer looked and laughed, and said, 'Well, it wasn't Shakespeare I wanted, but I'll take the edition, and I'll not forget the hint that Shakespeare is always first.'"

BOOKS IN DEMAND IN ENGLAND.

According to The Book Monthly the following books are at present most in demand in England:

A Servant of the Public. Anthony Hope.
Starvecrow Farm. Stanley Weyman.
Rose o' the River. Kate Douglas Wiggin.
The Yarn of Old Harbor Town. W. Clark Russell.
By the Gods Beloved. Baroness Orczy.
The Man. Bram Stoker.
The Freemasons. L. S. Gibson.
The Household of Peter. Rosa Nouchette Carey.

BOOKTRADE ASSOCIATIONS.

THE BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE.

The Booksellers' League gave its first monthly dinner of the season on the evening of the 18th inst., at the Aldine Association. There were present nearly one hundred members of the League and their friends, who were cordially welcomed by the president, F. D. Lacy. Among the guests of the evening were Arthur Henry, author of "The House in the Woods," etc., who spoke pleasantly on the relations of the author with the booktrade, and made an earnest plea for less and better work by the author; John William Sargent, author of "Toasts for the Times," who performed some sleight-of-hand tricks; and Charles H. Caffin, author of "How to Study Pictures," who dwelt at length on the effeminacy of modern literature and art and denounced in vigorous language what Bernard Shaw calls the "Aphrodesiac" tendency of the modern artist.

During the evening there was presented to each member of the League a copy of a book entitled "The Booksellers' League, a history of its formation and ten years of its work," prepared for the association by A. Growoll. In recognition of this and his other services on behalf of the Booksellers' League its members presented to Mr. Growoll a handsome silver loving cup suitably inscribed, and a set of resolutions, together with a number of complimentary letters from the leading publishers who had received advance copies of the volume referred to above, handsomely bound in green crushed levant morocco, a loving gift of James Macdonald—a very masterpiece of the bibliopegic art. Mrs. A. H. Leypoldt, who prepared the excellent index to the history of the League, and who has rendered other services to the association, was elected an honorary member of the League and received a gold League button enclosed in a gold locket with an appropriate inscription.

CONVENTION OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF STATIONERS AND MANUFACTURERS.

The first session of the first annual convention of the National Association of Stationers and Manufacturers of the United States was called to order at the Planters' Hotel, St. Louis, Mo., at 10:40 A.M., on October 10, by President Fletcher B. Gibbs.

Ninety-five delegates responded to the roll call. There were present almost two hundred representatives of the stationery trade. The secretary reported that the association had on record fifteen associations with a membership of 461, and 55 individual members, making a total of 516. The treasurer reported a balance on hand of $248.

The election of officers resulted in the choice of the following: President, John A. Schlener, Minneapolis; first vice-president, John A. Walker, Jersey City; second vice-president, W. J. Kennedy, St. Louis; third vice-president, Theo. L. C. Gerry, New York; secretary, R. J. Smith, Minneapolis; treasurer, Abner K. Pratt, Boston; auditor, H. C. Bainbridge, Brooklyn.

The Committees on Inks and Mucilages,

Pens and Pencils and Hardware and Glassware then made their reports, which concluded the morning's work.

The second session was called to order at 2:30 P.M., the president, Mr. Gibbs, reading a letter from the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce inviting the members of the association to visit the floor of the Board of Exchange during the hour of its session.

After the discussion of the reports submitted during the morning's session and the disposal of miscellaneous business, C. W. Burrows, of the Burrows Brothers Company, delivered an address on postal rates, discriminations and abuses.

W. J. Kennedy, the vice-president of the National Association, and president of the St. Louis Stationers' Club, concluded the day's session by extending a hearty and cordial welcome to the delegates. In bringing his address to a close he said: "I now desire, on behalf of the St. Louis Club, to present to our National President a slight token of esteem in the shape of a gavel, appropriately engraved, which we trust will enable him to maintain order during our sessions and afterwards occupy a place of honor among the other ornaments in his den. We hope that its presence in this collection will always keep fresh in his memory the esteem in which he is held by the St. Louis Club."

The remaining sessions were of equal interest, and into the banquet was crowded all the entertainment and amusement the members could hold. All in all the convention was a splendid success, and was well worth the time given to it.

COMMUNICATIONS.

THE FLASHLIGHT BOOK CONTROVERSY.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: In your editorial upon what you call "The Flashlight Book Controversy," in the last number of your publication, you say: "The Harper House then explained that they had no knowledge that the German and English publishers had already disposed of the book, but had, in conformity with their custom, promised to pay the author a royalty of 10 per cent., though under no legal obligation to do so," etc., etc. The fact is that the Harpers had a definite knowledge that the American rights had been disposed of, as you will see by the following letters written to and by Voigtlaender, the German publisher and owner of the copyright:

45 Albemarle Street,
LONDON, July 10, 1905.

"DEAR SIR: Our New York House have had their attention called to a book published by you entitled 'Mit Blitzlicht und Büchse,' and they desire us to ask you if you would supply them with electros of the fifteen full page illustrations, of which a list is enclosed, and if so at what price. The idea is that our New York House should use these in connection with an article, the result of which would probably increase the sale of the original work. We would be obliged to you if you would let us have a reply as soon as possible."

HARPER & BROTHERS.

To this letter the German publisher replied on July 12, 1905:

"Permit me to inform you that Messrs. Hutchinson & Co. have arranged for an edition of 'Flashlight and Rifle' in the English language for both England and America. I am therefore not in a position to accede to your wishes, and beg that you will communicate regarding them with the firm above named."

We bought the American rights from Messrs. Hutchinson after Harper & Brothers had an opportunity to purchase them, but they were unwilling to pay the price asked and pirated the book in the face of full information as to the value of the American market. Only a few days before publication did they offer to pay a royalty to the author which was, of course, refused. The proof is ample that Messrs. Harper acted after full information, and they did not finally publish the book until October, nearly three months later than the date of these letters.

Yours very truly,

PROTEST AGAINST CARELESS HANDLING OF AUTHORS' MS.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: In behalf of authors I wish to protest against careless handling of manuscript. It is often the case that a freshly typewritten story, submitted crisp and readable to a publisher, is returned from its journey dogeared, torn, soiled and sometimes ruthlessly marked "Return" or "N. G." with a heavy blue or indelible pencil. Suppose the manuscript is a story of 5000 words; the author who does not own a typewriter must usually pay the market price for copying, five cents a folio or 100 words. If he has two copies made, (as he should do to guard against loss,) the cost will be eight cents a hundred—$4 for copying.

If an author is sure of his sale, $4 perhaps is not much of an item. But where he must expect several refusals before acceptance, and the chance of ultimate refusal, while he does not grudge the first $4, it seems an unnecessary expense to be forced to have the story recopied after its first or second reading simply because "readers" consider manuscript as so much merchandise. Then take the case of a 75,000-word novel. The chances are that an author could not get this well copied for less than $30, or two copies for $45 (these figures are below market price).

If the novel is worthy of real consideration it is probably read by three "readers" and then reported upon to the firm. Two of the reports perhaps being favorable, then it is handed over to the sales department for a reading and opinion, and perhaps read by two there; then it goes to the firm for reading.

If the novel is finally "turned down" its freshness is often totally destroyed, and as one author said despairingly, "My child looks as if it came out of the ark and I can't afford to have it recopied." The next publisher to whom the novel is sent receives a manuscript which shows much careless handling, and the impression is that it has been "travelling" for months. Every publisher naturally likes to have the "first chance."

Is there not some way in which authors, agents and publishers can combine to protect the interests of the authors and at the same time make the publisher's burden lighter? For burden it undoubtedly is to read thousands of manuscripts of different shapes, sizes and colors. I refer to publishers of books, magazines and also newspapers.

If every one who "reads" a manuscript, whether a professional reader or not, would bear in mind the fact that he is handling the precious property of a brother struggler who probably cannot afford to pay for the recopying of the manuscript, I believe a good deal of wear and tear could be saved.

This protest is naturally one-sided. The author has much advice given to him in various pamphlets and printed slips sent him by the publishers, about typewriting, quality and size of paper, punctuation, ink, etc.; and I think publishers will agree that the labor of reading the average manuscript submitted in 1905 is less than that connected with those submitted in 1900, authors having been glad to adopt the various suggestions made to them.

The question now is: Will the publishers see that the golden rule is practiced as regards the careful handling of manuscripts at all times and in all places?

I believe authors will appreciate this and reciprocate when possible.

AN AUTHOR, AGENT AND PUBLISHER.

NEW YORK, October 10, 1905.

OBITUARY NOTES.

WILLIAM LEWIS FRASER, until 1897 manager of the art department of the Century Magazine, etc., under Superintendent Alexander W. Drake, died on October 16 at the home of his son at Brookhaven, L. I. Mr. Fraser was born in London, Eng., November 5, 1841, and went to Canada with his parents in 1856. In 1881 he came to New York to take the position of art manager for the Century Company, which he held until about eight years ago, when he resigned to devote his time to the literary side of art and to lecturing. In 1896 he was president of the Salmagundi Club. He also belonged to the Players, Grolier and Black and White Clubs, and was a member of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Architectural League and the Municipal Art League. He leaves a widow, a son, Malcolm, an artist, and a married daughter.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

AT the final accounting of the estate of Edward Noyes Westcott, the author of "David Harum," it was stated that the surrogate had received about $125,000 in royalties from the sale of the book.

THE true name of the author of the audacious novel, "The Storm of London," in which the doings of the populace of London, after being deprived of all clothing, are depicted, is Mme. F. Blaze de Bury. Mme. de Bury is at present in France engaged on another novel. John Long, the English publisher of "The Storm of London," has sold over one hundred thousand copies of the book, and the American publishers, Herbert B. Turner & Co., report a brisk sale.

DR. W. A. P. MARTIN, who has been for the past three years associated with Viceroy Chang Chih Tung of Central China helping him push the cause of education, is again in the United States for a short stay. He brings the news that on his return he will assist in the formation of a great Union College in Peking, an institution which will be supported jointly by the missionary societies of the Methodist, the Congregational and the Presbyterian churches. This is a tremendous enterprise and it is planned to be a sort of model for the guidance of the Chinese government schools. Dr. Martin expects to publish through the Revell Company a small book embodying his two latest lectures, "The Opening of China," a drama in five acts, and "Three Years in Central China with Viceroy Chang."

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE Atlantic Monthly for November will contain an article by Henry Holt, senior member of Henry Holt & Co., on "The Commercialization of Literature," which is an illuminating review of the half-truths of "The Publisher's Confession."

WITH its current number Longman's will cease to exist. It is a matter of regret that so good a periodical as Longman's has, since its inception, failed to find support enough to warrant its publication in these days; but such seems to be the fact, and so we must say good-bye to an old friend—with his "At the Sign of the Ship," and all.

The Printing Art for October contains a suggestive "Analysis of Design in Advertisements," by Oscar Percy Hatton; a report on the advertisement competition for which Printing Art awarded two prizes, with a reproduction of the most promising and striking designs submitted; an article on "Ornament in Type Composition," with a number of examples furnished by the School of Printing in Boston and others; an editorial on "Education for Printing" and a number of notes and comments. Besides the pages of text there are a number of inserts and artistic advertising pages. This particular number should be in the hands of every one interested in good printing and advertising.

THE London Publishers' Circular, after an independent existence of sixty-two years, is about to go again into the hands of a limited company, consisting chiefly of publishers and booksellers, including the Messrs. Longmans and Mr. Murray—A. H. Hallman Murray and Hubert Longman being directors with R. B. Marston, the editor of the Circular. The Publishers' Circular was started in 1836 by a number of London publishers, prominent among whom were the Longmans and Murrays, who chose the late Sampson Low as editor. Mr. Low took over the publication in 1843, and since then he and his successors have published the paper as an independent journal. During the process of liquidating the affairs of Sampson Low, Marston & Co., it became a question whether the Circular and the other bibliographical publications of the house might profitably be continued. It is therefore gratifying to note that the English booktrade has been public-spirited enough to assure the continuance not only of the Publisher's Circular, but of the other bibliographical properties connected with it as well.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. have this month begun the publication of Dutton's Monthly Readers' Guide, which will be devoted to a review of their recent and forthcoming books, giving a frank concensus of current critical opinion and comment upon them. The intimate connection of the Dutton house with a number of the leading London houses enables them to secure a large variety of the leading foreign modern books.

THE October number of the Bulletin of Bibliography, published by the Boston Book Company, contains a note on the "Origin of the North American Review," another instalment of Mr. Cole's Bermuda bibliography; a reference list "On the Art of Prolonging Life," by Eugene Fairfield McPike; also, the seventh contribution to "Magazine Perplexities," by F. W. Faxon, who deals with the Magazine of Western History and the National Magazine, two hard nuts for bibliographers to crack. There are also the usual departments, etc.

THE GROLIER CLUB, of New York, will publish next month a "Catalogue of Original and Early Editions of Some of the Poetical and Prose Works of English Writers from Wither to Prior," with collations, notes and more than 200 facsimiles of title-pages and frontispieces. This work, in three volumes, which was undertaken by a special committee of the club, is the second in a series of bibliographies of English writers, the first, issued in 1893, covering the period from Langland to Wither. Like the earlier series, this one has been prepared for the use and guidance of collectors. The present series will conform in style to the volume of 1893. The volumes will be of royal octavo size, on Holland paper of a special tint, similar to that of this announcement, and the edition will be limited to 400 copies on paper and three on Roman vellum.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BALTIMORE, MD.—Goldsmith Bros. have taken a temporary store on Baltimore Street, near Howard, pending the construction of their own building elsewhere, and request the publishers to send their catalogues and announcements.

GREENFIELD, IND.—B. F. Daily has sold his bookstore to D. D. Pike.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—George Brumder, H. C. Marcker, manager, in announcing that he has sold his complete stock of English books to A. C. McClurg & Co., of Chicago, writes: "While retiring from the English book business only, we thank you and all other publishers for their kind support they rendered us in conducting a first-class bookstore, and we are sorry to say that the conditions are such at present that a fair profit cannot be realized in the retail book business. We kindly ask you to cancel all fall orders given to your travelling salesman, also all standing orders for imprint circulars and review copies for the various local papers and journals, formerly sent through the International News Co., New York, or other channels."

NEW YORK CITY.—James Kelly has removed to 129 West Twentieth Street.

NEW YORK CITY.—S. F. McLean & Co. have removed from 430 Sixth Avenue to No. 46 Bible House. They are discontinuing efforts for transient trade, and in their new quarters will push their catalogue and mail order business in old books, which in the past year or two has grown to be the most important part of their business.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

GEORGE A. MOSHER, who has been for five years connected with the Burrows Brothers Company of Cleveland, has been appointed superintendent of the Lorain County Children's Home at Oberlin, O.

THE first edition of Bret Harte's "Her Letter," in holiday form, with illustrations in color and tint by Arthur I. Keller, was entirely inadequate to supply the advance orders received by Houghton, Mifflin & Co. A second edition was called for last week and a third is now in press, although the book was published only last Wednesday, the 18th inst.

THE PILGRIM PRESS have just ready "St. Abigail of the Pines," a stirring story of outdoor life on sea and shore, by William Allen Knight, author of "The Song of Our Syrian Guest," of which 60,000 copies have been sold. The new book tells a tale of old New Bedford whaling days, with a mastery of seamanship and a rare knowledge of human life and love. It is the author's first work of fiction.

THE CENTURY BOOK COMPANY, Whitewater, Wis., have purchased from William J. Park Salibury's "Orthœpy," which after twenty-five years holds its own among the books on its subject. High schools and colleges are giving more and more attention to the pronunciation of English, and there would seem a good field for this book, which has been endorsed by some of the best educators.

B. HERDER, St. Louis, has among his newest publications "In Quest of Truth," glimpses of Roman scenes during the reign of the Emperor Domitian, by Robert Muenchgesang; an edition of Anne Manning's "Household of Sir Thomas More;" "Joan of Arc," by Mrs. Maxwell-Scott, of Abbotsford; and "Health and Holiness," by Frederick Thompson, a study of the relations between "Brother Ass," the body and "his rider," the soul, with a preface by George Tyrrell.

ANDREW CARNEGIE has ordered an edition of 500 copies of "The Collected Poems of Wilfred Campbell," published by Fleming H. Revell Co., for he thinks so highly of the Canadian poet's work that he intends to present a copy of his poems to every one of his libraries in the English-speaking world. The edition will be substantially bound, and will bear the simple inscription, "Presented by Andrew Carnegie." Mr. Campbell's work is known to all readers of the better magazines, and from the time when his poems first appeared the critics prophesied that he would eventually make his mark.

ARNOLD & COMPANY, Philadelphia, announce two new books by Mrs. Rorer, who is inexhaustible in her ideas about making useful, practical and fascinating cook-books. "The Every-Day Menu Book" contains a program for every meal in the year, arranged by months and days, with special menus for special occasions, and a department of menus without meats, very useful for those having to entertain vegetarian friends; and "Cakes, Icing and Fillings," which will be a mine of information to any one interested in the cake problem, always one of anxiety and unrest to average housekeepers.

D. B. UPDIKE announces the establishment of a bindery at the Merrymount Press, under the charge of Peter Verburg, whose work is already favorably known in Chicago and New York. Mr. Verburg, who studied for some time under Douglass Cockerell, was at one time an associate of Miss Starr in her bindery at Hull House, Chicago, and later on was employed by Ralph Randolph Adams at his bindery in New York both as a designer and a binder. He undertakes not alone decorative bindings, but makes a specialty of the plainer, more severe, half and full leather bindings at moderate prices.

GEORGE W. JACOBS & Co. have prepared for the holiday season two very clever and attractive gift books. The one is entitled "Shakespeare's Sweetheart," by Sara Hawks Sterling, and five full-page illustrations, in color, by Clara Elsene Peck. The other book is entitled "Knocks, Witty, Wise and ——," by Minna Thomas Antrim, uniform with "Phases, Mazes and Crazes of Love." The volume is printed in colors, with illustrations by Clara E. Peck and Blanche Creer. They also call attention to "That Reminds Me," containing 220 stories such as the title suggests, a net book with the regular discount.

THE STATUTE LAW BOOK COMPANY, Washington, D. C., are preparing photo-facsimile reprints of five more collections of early laws, viz.: "Laws for the government of the District of Louisiana," E. Stout, 1804; "Laws of the Territory of Louisiana," Joseph Charless, 1810; "Acts passed by the General Assembly of the Territory of Missouri in October, November and December, 1818," Joseph Charless, 1819; "Journal of the Missouri State Convention," I. N. Henry & Co., 1820; also, "Private, local and temporary laws . . . of Nebraska," Journal Company, 1873. The edition of each has been limited to fifty copies.

IT is a singular coincidence that three of the new novels this fall by well-known authors find their leading characters in the world that touches the theatre. Anthony Hope's "Servant of the Public" is the personal side of a popular actress's life. Norman Duncan's "The Mother" is a vaudeville actress whose life is transformed by her love for her boy, and Mary E. Wilkins Freeman's "The Debtor" is an unfortunate man who finds his vocation in doing a turn before the footlights. There is absolutely no similarity at all in the stories other than this. It shows, however, how the minds of authors may start from the same point and see wholly diverse things.

FUNK & WAGNALLS have a timely book in "That They All May Be One," by Amos R. Wells, editor of The Christian Endeavor World, in which the author deals with the unification of religious denominations and the doing away with all strife and with whatever hinders union and concord among the great religious bodies. In connection with the celebration of the anniversary of the 100th birthday of William Lloyd Garrison they call attention to their publications on the subject—"William Lloyd Garrison, the Abolitionist," by Archibald K. Grimke; and "The Moral Crusader, William Lloyd Garrison," a biographical essay by Goldwin Smith.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. will issue immediately "Napoleon's Notes on English History," which were written on the eve of the French Revolution and are now edited, with the findings of later research, by Henry Foljambe Hall; "The Furniture of Windsor Castle," by Guy Francis Laking, who has done his work under the personal supervision of King Edward VII., and describes all the artistic furniture of the castle which has been acquired since 1640; and "B. R. Haydon and His Friends," in which George Paston has brought together delightful information about the celebrated contemporaries among whom the great English painter lived his interesting life.

L. C. PAGE & COMPANY announce "The Art of the Venice Academy," by Mary Knight Potter, which will be the fifth volume in the well-known Art Galleries Series, which already contains "The Louvre;" "The Pitti Palace;" "The Vatican;" and "The National Gallery of London." They also complete the list of their juvenile publications for this year with Mrs. Johnston's new volume in the Little Colonel series, which bears the name "The Little Colonel's Christmas Vacation," with a special holiday edition of "Two Little Knights of Kentucky," a companion volume to last year's "The Little Colonel;" and with "Our Little Mexican Cousin," the new volume in the Little Cousin series.

HENRY HOLT & Co. have now ready "The Professor's Legacy," by Mrs. Alfred Sidgwick, who lets an Englishman studying in a German university inherit a daughter and an unfinished work on "Corals" and find his life somewhat complicated thereby. During the month this house expect to issue "Loser's Luck," a story of a Central American revolution, by Charles Tenney Jackson; "Animal Snapshots and How Made," by Silas A. Lottridge, of East Orange, N. J.; and "The Peter Newell Mother Goose," in which Caroline Sherwin Bailey relates some very quaint adventures of a little girl among the characters of Goose Land, which Peter Newell draws in very humorous and artistic manner.

According to the Philadelphia Item Governor Pennypacker is reported to have replied to the query why he proposed selling a collection that was so dear to him as his books and pictures: "Tell those who wonder that it is an evidence of the honesty of the State officials. They are obliged to sell their books and pictures in order to live, their salaries not being sufficient." We wonder whether the difference between the probable selling price and the price that was actually paid for the collection was not after all the main reason for offering the collection for sale. The difference has been variously estimated by those who are well informed to be between eighty and one hundred thousand dollars.

D. Appleton & Co. have just ready "Purple and Fine Linen," a story of a Newport society woman and her millionaire home in New York; "The Flute of Pam," in which John Oliver Hobbes shows her poetic imagination and perfect technique; "A Yellow Journalist," by Miriam Michelson, author of "In the Bishop's Carriage;" "The Staircase of Surprise," a thrilling story of the Chinese-Japanese war, by Frances A. Mathews; "The Game and the Candle," by Frances Davidge; and "The Carlyles," by Mrs. Burton Harrison. They have received many applications for permission to translate Senator Beveridge's "The Young Man and His World," and to publish it simultaneously in France and Germany.

The Fleming H. Revell Company are issuing this week "When Joy Begins," by Clara E. Laughlin; "The Pen of Brahma," by Beatrice Barband. A new edition of James M. Ludlow's "Deborah," whose "Sir Raoul" was issued last week. They are putting out a new edition of Hugh Black's "Friendship" in an edition de luxe, this going into its 50th thousand; Caroline Atwater Mason's "Little Green God," a sixth edition, 12th thousand; William Geo. Jordan's "Self Control," a third edition. Other recent books that are going into new editions are Gunsaulus' "Paths to Power," a third edition; "St. Cecilia of the Court," by Isabella R. Hess; "St. Cuthbert's," by Robert E. Knowles, and a second edition of Norman Duncan's "The Mother."

Bobbs-Merrill Co. have just issued "Letters of Labor and Love," containing letters of help and counsel which Samuel M. Jones, the famous "Golden Rule" mayor of Toledo, wrote from time to time to the men who worked for him in his machine shop, which have been pronounced by many to be little masterpieces on the relations between employer and employee; "Radiant Motherhood," by Margaret E. Sangster, a friendly message to mothers who believe in the life simple and the life beautiful, who think this a good world to live in, and are striving to bring up their children to make it a better one; and "Everyday Etiquette," a practical manual of social usages by Marion Harland and Virginia Van de Water, for which there promises to be a great demand.

Reilly & Britton Co. have just ready "Roasts," designed and compiled by W. M. Rhoads, a "cut-out" or "shape book" representing a bunch of half-opened ears of Indian corn reproduced in natural colors. The body of the book, however, contains "roasts" of people and places and of the fads and foibles of mankind, done to a turn by the author of "The Stein Toast Book." A little later the same happy hand will have ready "My Artist Friends," which is to be a birthday book and autograph album combined, with blank spaces left for drawings of objects or characters and illustrations of well-known nursery rhymes as specified under each date. The cover of this compilation will be a reproduction in many colors of an artist's palette cut to exact shape.

The Century Company have brought out this week "Versailles and the Court Under Louis XIV.," by James Eugene Farmer, an accurate, chronological record of the daily life of the Grand Monarch and his brilliant court, fully illustrated; "With the Empress Dowager," by Katherine Carl, the story of the daily life of the Chinese Court, its gay parties, its jealousies and tragedies, by one who lived there for eleven months while painting four portraits of the Empress; "Jules of the Great Heart," by Lawrence Mott, stories of an adventurous French-Canadian outlaw trapper, some of which appeared in The Century magazine; also, "The Wheat Princess," by Jean Webster, the love story of an American millionaire's daughter in Italy that will appeal to the many admirers of "Patty."

Longmans, Green & Co. have a new novel by Stanley J. Weyman, entitled "Starvecrow Farm," in which the author of "A Gentleman of France" leaves Gallic scenery and Gallic impulsiveness for the scenes and atmosphere of the Lake Poets in the years following the battle of Waterloo, when labor riots and an untried, unstable government were in the air. It is a highly dramatic story, in which suspense is the dominant quality. Andrew Lang's new Christmas book for the children is also ready, and this year bears the title "The Red Romance Book." The old stories of heroic times are edited and reworded with Lang's rare sympathy with children's likings, and H. J. Ford has furnished abundantly of vivid, suggestive and decorative illustrations.

Harper & Brothers have just issued the two concluding volumes of Justin McCarthy's famous "History of Our Own Times," which cover from the Diamond Jubilee of Queen Victoria to the accession of King Edward VII. Among the new material is a retrospective survey of the "Victorian Age," in which is given a summary of the careers of the statesmen, reformers, authors, artists and scientists that have dominated English thought for the past seventy years, many of whom were personally known to the author. Also ready is Mrs. Wilkins-Freeman's "The Debtor," a story of life in a New Jersey village, full of keen psychological studies; and "For the Mikado," by Kirk Munroe, a capital book for boys, with a Japanese and an American boy as heroes, and many adventures, some of the most exciting dealing with submarine warfare.

SMALL, MAYNARD & COMPANY have issued a new edition of "Low Tide on Grand Pré," by Bliss Carman, including also "Ballads of Lost Haven;" "John Fiske," by Thomas Sergeant Perry, forming volume 27 of the Beacon biographies; "A Handbook of Figure Skating," by George H. Browne, arranged for use on the ice; "Where Copper was King," a tale of early mining days on Lake Superior, by James North Wright; "Gumption," a tale of Yankee push and progress, by Nathaniel C. Fowler, Jr.; "Bacon Cryptograms in Shakespeare and other studies," by Isaac Hull Platt; and "The Fleeing Nymph," a new volume of lyrical poetry, by Lloyd Mifflin. For younger readers the house will issue "Football Grandma: an Auto-baby-ography," as told by Tony, edited by Carolyn S. Channing Cabot, with an introduction by Thomas Wentworth Higginson, with many illustrations showing Tommy's life up to his first pair of trousers.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have just ready the following books: "The Beautiful Birthday Book," with colored designs and decorated paging; Walter Jerrold's "Charles Lamb," issued in the Bell's Miniature Series of Great Writers; "Hans Holbein," by Arthur B. Chamberlain, in the Bell's Miniature Series of Painters; "The Last Chance," a tale of the Golden West, by Ralph Boldrewood; "A Waif's Progress," by Rhoda Broughton; the second volume of Agnes B. C. Dunbar's "Dictionary of Saintly Women;" Edmund Gosse's "Sir Thomas Browne," in the English Men of Letters Series; "New Creations in Plant Life," an authoritative account of the life and work of Luther Burbank, by W. S. Harwood; Hewlett's "Forest Lovers," in the edition de luxe; "Essays on Mediæval Literature," by W. P. Ker; "A Wanderer in Holland," by E. V. Lucas, with illustrations in color; "Character of Renaissance Architecture," by Charles Herbert Moore; and "Greatheart: Some Talks with Him," by A Pilgrim. Crawford's eagerly expected novel, "Fair Margaret," will be ready shortly.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. will publish October 26 "Sons o' Men," by G. B. Lancaster; "Old Lim Jucklin," by Opie Read; "Myths Every Child Should Know," edited by Hamilton Wright Mabie; volume VIII. of the Harriman "Alaska;" "Country Homes of Famous Americans," by Oliver Bronson Capen; Pt. v. of "The Dog Book," by James Watson; and "Child's Rainy Day Book," by Mary White Talbot. Next month will be issued C. G. Schillings' book on African animals, of which title has been changed to "Flashlights in the Jungle" to clearly differentiate it from the rival edition in the market. This edition is complete, translated by Frederic Whyte and illustrated with 320 animal photographs taken by the author when he went for the fourth time through Equatorial East Africa with a caravan of 170 carriers and a most elaborate photographic outfit. During the winter will be brought out a new and revised edition of Perceval Landon's "The Opening of Tibet," now accepted as the authoritative account of the Younghusband expedition, and already in its third large edition.

MCCLURE, PHILLIPS & Co. announce for early publication "A New Idolatry," a series of discourses by Washington Gladden, who speaks with all his usual quiet impressiveness on the worship of money and devotes his first chapter especially to "tainted money." A very fine work of which the publishers are justly proud will be known as "A Portfolio of Bird Portraits." The artist is Bruce Horsfall, who has spent many years in studying the cat-bird, the meadow lark, the robin, the bluebird, the wood-thrush, the brown-thrasher, the bobolink and the starling in Professor W. E. D. Scott's bird laboratory at Princeton University. Professor Scott supplies the text and has superintended the reproduction of the plates, which were made by a special photolithograph process and are highly artistic replicas of the original water colors. John T. McCutcheon, "the Mr. Dooley of the pencil," is to have a book entitled "The Mysterious Stranger, and Other Cartoons," containing about 150 cartoons of men and events contributed during the last year or so to the Chicago Tribune. This is just about ready.

THE GRAFTON PRESS, New York, have just ready "The Days and Hours of Raphael," by Rachel A. La Fontaine, who has gathered from many sources information about Raphael's wonderful paintings, which is illustrated by twenty reproductions of his work; "The Bivouac of the Dead and Its Author," by George W. Ranck, tells the story of Theodore O'Hara's famous elegy, which was once known and quoted from one end of the country to the other, but with which the present generation is not so familiar; and "Milton Blairlee and the Green Mountain Boys," by the Rev. Willard Goss Davenport, which is based on authentic history and written in a style specially attractive to boy readers. In their genealogical department the house have issued "Concerning Genealogies," which goes minutely into the best ways of collecting, printing and publishing genealogical data; "The Grafton Genealogical Chart Index," arranged for the indexing of ten generations; and "The Grafton Genealogical Notebook, American Form," a self-compiling notebook for practical genealogists, amateur or professional.

FREDERICK A. STOKES COMPANY announce for the holiday an attractive little Flower Series under the authorship of N. Hudson Moore, which will include volumes on lilies, roses, violets, lilacs, tulips and chrysanthemums, made up of the legends of all lands that have gathered around these popular flowers. Each little book will be appropriately illustrated with prints in duotint after many unusual photographs of natural flowers. Another work of the same conscientious compiler will soon be out under the name "Old Pewter, Copper, Brass and Old Sheffield Plate." Lillie Hamilton French has also written a delightful book for this house called "The Joy of Life," in which she puts before her readers the duty of joyfulness and the great help of cheerfulness in daily life. For younger readers will be "Ideals for Girls," inculcating the much-needed sweet womanliness so sadly lacking to-day and most happily worded by Mrs. Frank Learned, well known under her pen-name, "Priscilla Wakefield." Outcault also is to delight the youngsters with "Tige: His Story," and "Buster Brown's Pranks."

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS publish to-day "The Voyage of Discovery," a complete and elaborate account of the important Antarctic expedition undertaken by Captain Robert F. Scott, which is fully illustrated from photographs and sketches, many of which are reproduced in color; "The Wood Fire in No. 3," in which F. Hopkinson Smith tells a number of genial and pleasant stories, connected by a slight thread that makes them almost read like a novel, and whose work has been illustrated in colors by Alonzo Kimball; "Our Neighbors," including the best of Charles Dana Gibson's work during the past year, and a number also of hitherto unpublished drawings; "The Story of the Champions of the Round Table," by Howard Pyle, with the author's own happy drawings and decorations; and "The Philosophy of Religion," a work in two volumes by Prof. George Trumbull Ladd, offering a critical and speculative treatise on man's religious experience and development in the light of modern science and reflective thinking. The house has just ready "John Chinaman at Home," by E. J. Hardy, author of "How to be Happy Though Married."

PAUL ELDER & COMPANY, San Francisco, Cal., will publish shortly an authorized translation from the Italian, by E. L. Murison, of Neera's "Anima Sola," which will be brought out under the title of "The Soul of an Artist." The work is said to be suggestive, slightly, of Amiel, but is original in conception. It has elicited the most conflicting criticism in Italy and in Germany. They have also nearly ready "The Critique of Socialism," by Edward F. Adams, first delivered as an after-dinner address before the Russian Club of Oakland. It is an arraignment of Socialism, in style somewhat droll, but with a serious purpose. They announce that the third edition of "Prosit," a book of toasts, is just off the press, and that second editions of "Joke Book Note Book," "Blue Monday Book," and "Good Things and Graces" are now ready. Their successful "Matrimonial Primer" is issued in a first edition of 25,000 copies, of which the greater number were sold before publication, and this year's issue of the "Cynic's Calendar" brings its total sale to 100,000 copies. The sixth edition of "101 Sandwiches," a celebrated epicurean classic, is just ready, as well as the second edition of "101 Salads" and "101 Chafing Dish Recipes."

HERBERT B. TURNER & Co., of Boston, will publish this fall the following nine volumes of Robert Louis Stevenson's works, in limp leather, with decorations in gold designed by T. B. Hapgood: "Virginibus Puerisque, and Other Papers;" "Memories and Portraits;" "Familiar Studies of Men and Books," two volumes; "An Inland Voyage;" "Travels with a Donkey;" "A Child's Garden of Verses;" and "Underwoods;" "Essays and Criticisms," a collection of essays published for the first time outside of subscription edition; "Story of a Lie," a collection of three stories for the first time published outside of subscription edition. Special type has been used in these volumes—initial headbands and tail-pieces have been especially designed for the set. Each volume has a different photogravure frontispiece portrait of Stevenson, including reproductions of photographs taken at San Francisco, New York, Bournemouth, Eng., Sydney and Hawaii, also Hollyer's etching, Alexander's head, and St. Gaudens's Tablet. A vignetted photogravure embellishes each title-page, and among them are included Stevensons birthplace, Edinburgh home, Bournemouth House, The Old Manse, Vailima and the Edinburgh University. In addition to these a number of the volumes are illustrated. Other titles will be added to the set at an early date.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish October 28 "English Hours," by Henry James, with 80 illustrations by Joseph Pennell uniform in general style with the author's "Little Tour in France" and Howells's "Italian Journeys;" "James G. Blaine," by Edward Stanwood, in the American Statesmen, Second series; "In Our Convent Days," by Agnes Repplier, giving reminiscences of her childhood in a French-American school in which her bosom friend was the girl who became Mrs. Joseph Pennell; "Louisiana," by Albert Phelps, in the American Commonwealths series; and "Letters From the Dead to the Dead," collected, edited and arranged with notes by "Oliver Lector," a learned and ingenious series of cleverly fabricated letters from De Bruck to Bacon, from Henry Briggs to John Napier, from Shakespeare to Bacon, etc. There will also appear a Special Cambridge edition on Oxford paper of the works of Robert Browning, of which the edition in levant binding will make a fine gift-book; a new edition of "The One-Hoss Shay," with colored illustrations and decorations by Howard Pyle; Dickens' "A Tale of Two Cities," in the Riverside Literature series; a volume of "Selections from the Poems of John Godfrey Saxe;" and "The Great Adventure," by George Cabot Lodge, a sonnet sequence divided into three parts, dealing respectively with life, with love, and with death.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. publish to-day Captain A. T. Mahan's new work in two volumes, entitled "Sea Power and Its Relations to the War of 1812," sumptuously illustrated; "The Divining Rod," a romance of the oil regions of Pennsylvania in their early days, by Francis N. Thorpe; "The Joy That No Man Taketh from You," by Lilian Whiting; and "Select Poems of Robert Browning," arranged chronologically with biographical and literary notes by A. J. George, editor of "The Poetical Works of Wordsworth." On October 30 there will be ready "The Brothers' War," by John C. Reed, a prominent attorney of Atlanta, Ga., dealing with the slavery question and other problems that brought on the Civil War; and "Two in Italy," by Maud Howe, who did such fine work in "Roma Beata" last year. For November are announced: "The Florence of Landor," by Lilian Whiting; "Il Libro D'Oro," a collection of more than 120 miracle stories and sacred legends translated from the Italian by Mrs. Francis Alexander; "American Railroad Rates," by Judge Walter C. Noyes, author of "The Law of Intercorporate Relations;" "In and About the Old Missions of California," a historical and pictorial account of the Franciscan Missions by George Wharton James; "The Oak Tree Fairy Book," edited by Clifton Johnson, and profusely illustrated by Willard Bonte; "Men of Old Greece," biographical stories for children by Jennie Hall; and "Memoir of Colonel Henry Lee," prepared by John T. Morse, Jr., editor of the American Statesmen Series; "French Pathfinders," (Marquette, Cartier, La Salle, etc.,) by William Henry Johnson, will be ready shortly, but the date of publication is not yet fixed.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print, of five nonpareil lines exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers, to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

All other small, undisplayed, advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

☞ Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly" does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

These Ads. Will Sell these Books

That is what we both want. Here are "The Pang-Yanger" and "My Friend the Chauffeur," two books that are really good—read them yourself and you will see—that we are advertising in papers having a circulation of 5,000,000—at least 15,000,000 readers. You can sell these books. They are utterly different, but both good.

A Personal Note

WE are using this space at this busy season, when so many are calling your attention to their publications, in order to thank you for the cordial and appreciative reception given our efforts to build up a line of beautiful, useful and artistic books at reasonable prices.

WE have just moved our offices to 40–42 East 19th Street (a few steps from Broadway), where, our friends advise us, we have the most artistic sample rooms in New York. We want you to feel perfectly free when visiting New York to have your mail addressed in our care, and make our comfortable reception room your headquarters.

WE feel much indebted to you for the prominent display you have always made of our publications, not only, we believe, because we have tried to make our line your most profitable one, but because of your desire to encourage our efforts. On this account we know you will be glad to learn that with our larger quarters we will have every facility for turning out a finer and more artistic line than ever before, and at the same time keeping in mind a popular price and good profit for you.

WITH all good wishes for a most prosperous season, we are, Cordially yours, FOX, DUFFIELD & COMPANY'S famous juveniles lead off this year with "Verses for Jock and Joan," by Helen Hay (Mrs. Payne Whitney), a handsome quarto, with full-page pictures in four colors, and a border design in two colors, by Charlotte Harding. Another winning book for little folks is "More Adventures of the Happy Heart Family," with pictures in color, as well as many little sketches scattered through the book, by the author, Virginia Gerson. The little heart-shaped people in "The Happy Heart Family," published last year, were hailed everywhere as successors to the Brownies, and here are more of them. The price of this book—$1.00 postpaid—brings it within everybody's reach. Two capital books of humor in verse are "At the Sign of the Dollar," by Wallace Irwin," and "More Misrepresentative Men," by Harry Graham. Captain Graham's last book, "Misrepresentative Men," is now in its fifth edition. An extra amount of interest has been taken in his work since his engagement to Ethel Barrymore. Mr. Irwin's "At the Sign of the Dollar" has started off with a dash equal to its own illustrations by Kemble. "The Fusser's Book" has "caught on" beyond a doubt, reaching a second large printing before publication. A powerful story, worth keeping an eye on, is "An Eye for an Eye," by Clarence S. Darrow.

Schillings's achievement is of the greatest scientific and popular interest. In spite of the fact that the book is not copyrighted in the United States and anybody can issue it, the Harpers, following their usual custom, are paying the author a royalty on every copy sold, thus yielding him a large and unexpected revenue.

THE above is from an editor's sheet sent out by Harper & Bros. relating to their "pirated version" of Schillings's remarkable work, "With Flashlight and Rifle," the authorized and complete edition of which we bought.

The facts are that up to the day of their publication neither the German publisher nor author had had any communication from them whatever, except that their London representative wrote on July 10 trying to buy 15 electrotypes of full-page pictures from the German publisher, and was told that he had sold the American rights. So the Harpers were fully aware three months ago that they were taking without any authority a work for which another publisher had paid a high price.

The pictures reproduced in Harper's Weekly, as well as those in their book (only a third of the complete series), were copied from the half-tones in a copy of the German edition.

The World's Work, for December, and our authorized edition of the book (called "FLASHLIGHTS IN THE JUNGLE"), will be the only adequate presentation of Mr. Schillings's extraordinary achievement. The volume has been delayed because the translator has been collaborating with the author, but it will probably be ready early next month.

COMPLETION OF THE

American Catalog
1900-1905

The Second (or Supplementary Volume) nearly ready

We are now completing the printing of the second volume of the new "American Catalog, 1900–1905," which will be ready for delivery in November.

The first volume, issued in June last, is a complete record in itself, being a dictionary-catalog of all books recorded between January 1, 1900, and January 1, 1905. In its one alphabet every book is entered at least three times (by author, title and subject), with information as to size, price, publisher, year of issue, etc. It forms the latest addition to the old series of the "American Catalogue," published in quarto form, while the newest volume is an octavo, which is generally conceded to be a much handier shape. We can reasonably affirm that every dealer needs such a permanent catalog in his business, while every library of importance should have this standard bibliographical work on its shelves, since its usefulness in the world of books is on a par with a time-table in the railroad world.

The second, or supplementary volume, contains the full title entries, with annotations, given in the "Weekly Record" of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY during the five years 1900, '01, '02, '03, '04, cumulated into one alphabet for each year; that is, into five alphabets. This is planned to answer the demands of librarians, booksellers and others who wish this valuable material, in available shape, for classifying and describing and for permanent reference.

For the book dealer the second volume is a very useful record of book valuation. It gives in form for ready reference brief descriptive notices of the important books published during the period mentioned, describing concisely the contents of each work and explaining many titles which, in themselves, mean little or nothing or are misleading. For descriptive cataloging, a bibliographical work of this kind is almost priceless.

The two volumes are uniformly bound in half morocco. The price is $12.00 for both or $7.50 for either separately. The edition is limited, but 240 copies of the first volume and 145 of the second volume remain unsold. We reserve the right to advance the price when the balance of either is reduced to 100 copies.

Terms of Payment on Both Regular and Special Offers

Terms are always subject to special agreement, but in general they are as follows:

On sale for 90 days: all copies sold at the end of that time to be paid for, cash in full, pro rata, the remainder to be returned to us at our expense immediately thereafter, either upon receipt of our request or at the option of the dealer. If further pictures are ordered before the end of the 90-day period, the first lot is to be paid for before the shipment of the new lot. Prices and terms on which new lot may be furnished are a matter for future agreement.

Packing: The pictures are regularly put up in flat pasteboard boxes of 100 pictures each, 95 Sepia and 5 black, or 100 in full original colors, besides two mounted pictures for display purposes.

Window-Display: Dealers are urged to give the pictures a prominent and continuous window-display.

$100 Orders: Dealers who are selling the pictures well are urged to let us ship them in lots of 1,000. We pack the 10 boxes of 100 pictures each in a neat wooden box with sliding cover. The whole occupies only two cubic feet of space. We prepay the express and all unsold pictures are returnable to us at our expense (as stated above). The profit is then 150% on every retail sale, instead of 66⅔%.

Sample Copies: A sample in sepia or black will be sent in a mailing-tube, to any address in the world, on receipt of 20 cents in stamps (of any country); in full original colors for $1.10.

The Conquest of Canaan

By BOOTH TARKINGTON

THIS is unquestionably the best story Mr. Tarkington has yet produced. The scene is laid in a little Indiana town, where, despite the unpretentious setting, a stirring drama is enacted. In Ariel Tabor, Mr. Tarkington has drawn a charming and unconventional heroine; in Joe Louden we have a splendid character whose triumph over adversity is a stubborn, hard-fought, and intensely interesting battle. Altogether, it is a perfect example of the thoroughly American novel in which Mr. Tarkington has notably surpassed all his former work.

American Diplomacy ITS SPIRIT AND ACHIEVEMENTS

By JOHN BASSETT MOORE

Author of "Extradition and Interstate Rendition," "History and Digest of International Arbitration," Etc.

FOR years Professor Moore has been regarded as being probably the highest living authority concerning the history of American diplomacy. This series of papers on American diplomacy has commanded wide attention, not only in this country, but in all the capitals of Europe as well, and places many historical facts before the reading public for the first time. It shows how from the very first the American policy has been to negotiate treaties and carry on international business fairly, squarely, and above board; and it unfolds and expounds in a clear and connected form the distinctive principles and policies the maintenance of which has caused American diplomacy to be acknowledged as one of the great formative forces in modern history.

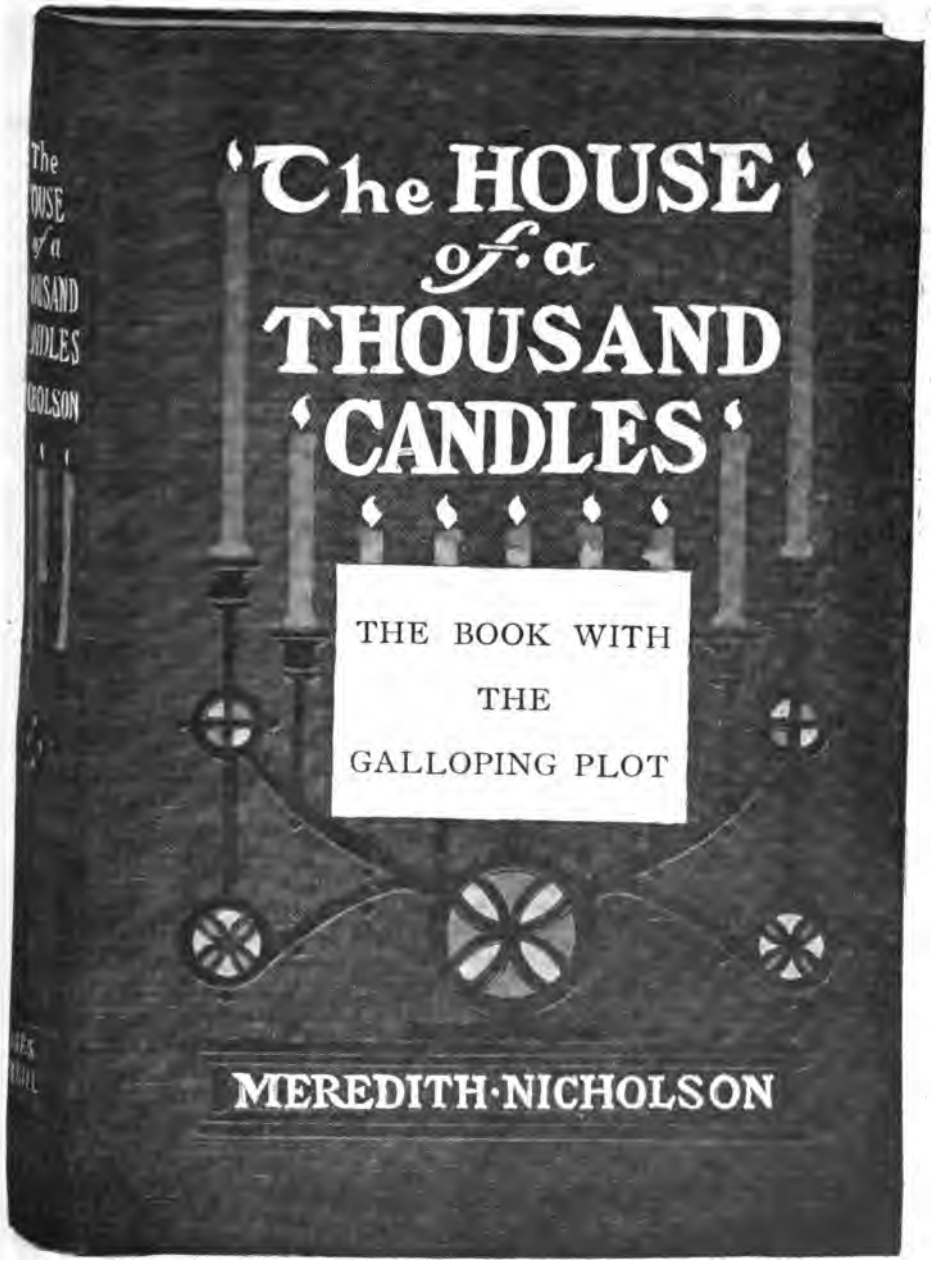
The Reconstruction of Religious Belief

By W. H. MALLOCK



Author of "Religion as a Credible Doctrine," Etc.

A TIMELY book upon the great question confronting the thinker of to-day—the contradictions between science and religion. The author shows that the more science points to a monistic conclusion the more it thrusts us into some region outside itself in which an intellectual solution of the contradiction between scientific and religious principles must be found.

"A Remarkable Sea Story"
—N. Y. GLOBE.

THE EDGE OF CIRCUMSTANCE

THE NEW NOVEL

By EDWARD NOBLE

Author of "Waves of Fate," etc.

This unusual tale has met with almost universal praise from reviewers and critics from all parts of the country. We give below a brief selection :

"It is a rarely good—even a great—book in some respects, and it seems destined to take high rank in the sea literature of its class."—N. Y. Times.

"It is very well written, and shows a complete knowledge of certain phases of nautical life not heretofore exploited by writers."—Boston Transcript.

"An interesting and unique contribution to modern fiction. It possesses the virile power of primitive things, dealing with the great grinding tendency of the age, the matter of money getting, and the broad free sweep of the sea as it appeals to lovers of nature."—Chicago Daily News.

"If 'The Edge of Circumstance' had been written by Kipling, or Joseph Conrad, or Clark Russell, or R. L. Stevenson, or even Morgan Robertson, I have little doubt that the critics would discover that it was a masterpiece. . . . He (the author) not only knows the secrets of a shipowner's office, but he knows about ship and ships' crews, about the weather, the sea, about signals, about salving, and about the English Channel, with its intricate chart of lights and soundings. He has all this technical knowledge. But, in addition, he is a remarkable artist in novel writing."
—Brooklyn Eagle.

We advise you to read it yourself. You will then know what a remarkable story you are recommending to your customers.

A Story of the Theft of an Empire

The kind of a book one reads twice over. The story has such a go that one must read fast to keep pace with one's fascinated interest. But after the book is laid down and Raoul is safe home in his Schwarzwald castle with his Lady Renee, you begin to suspect that if you had not hurried so fast you would have learned a host of facts about life in the thirteenth century, and about the ways of our crusading forefathers. So you read it twice. The immense amount of accurate information makes one think of Reade, and the rapid action recalls the more modern Hope, but the welding of the two into faultless diction is Ludlow's own.

A SWORD OF THE OLD FRONTIER

By RANDALL PARRISH

This is Mr. Parrish's third story, and we regard it as his best for securing and holding the readers' interest.

We felt so confident of its success that we printed a first edition of 25,000 copies.

This, with the eighth edition of "My Lady of the North," and the sixth edition of "When Wilderness Was King," makes 100,000 copies of Mr. Parrish's three books printed in a year and a half.

In the case of a hitherto unknown writer this means that he has the gift of securing popular attention.

The new story is being advertised and reviewed all over the country to-day, and we are prepared to co-operate with you further by supplying an exceptionally striking poster. (See opposite page.)

There are four pictures in color by F. C. Yohn, the greatest American illustrator of the Colonial period.

Tell your customers you have a new romance by Randall Parrish, and the book is sold. The adventures of a French officer in the Pontiac Conspiracy make the plot.

NOTES IN SEASON.

BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY have just ready "The Deluge," by David Graham Phillips, which gives a trustworthy picture of American life, "the swiftest and intensest life ever lived by the human race," according to the author of "The Deluge." Frenzied finance is its underlying subject.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have just published "The Wife of the Secretary of State," by Ella Middleton Tybout, a story of mystery, intrigue and love, with scene in Washington and characters that stand for some of the best-known people in the gay life of the capital. The book is said to be as good as "Poketown People," her book of last year, and no higher recommendation is possible.

A. S. BARNES & Co. have just brought out a timely work on "The Business of Life Insurance," an important and comprehensive book by Miles Menander Dawson, consulting actuary. The author, it is stated, has spoken plainly and fairly for the benefit of policy holders and also in the belief that his book will be of practical utility to those who are connected professionally with the business of life insurance."

FOX, DUFFIELD & COMPANY have just ready "Verses for Jock and Joan," by Helen Hay Whitney, with pictures in color by Charlotte Harding; also, "More Adventures of the Happy Heart Family," pictures and text by Virginia Gerson, author of "The Happy Heart Family," published last fall. They announce new editions, within a week after publication, of "More Misrepresentative Men," by Captain Harry Graham, and of "The New Fusser's Book."

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & COMPANY have just brought out "Life and Religion," by Max Muller; "Myths Every Child Should Know," edited by Hamilton W. Mabie, fully illustrated; "Sons o' Men," by G. E. Lancaster; "Old Lim Jucklin," by Opie Read; Part v. of the "Dog Book," by James Watson: "Child's Rainy Day Book," a collection of stories for children, by Mary White Talbot, with many illustrations; "Country Homes of Famous Americans," by Oliver Bronson Capen, a sumptuous book, fully illustrated; "Home Library of Law," by Albert S. Bolles; and volume XIII. of the Harriman Alaskan expedition.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just brought out Booth Tarkington's latest novel, "The Conquest of Canaan," which, while not in any sense a "purpose novel," is nevertheless especially fitted to enforce the truth expressed in the old saying, "Give a dog a bad name and hang him;" "Caroline of Courtlandt Street," Weymer Jay Mills's comedy of old New York, with colored illustrations by Anna Whelan Betts, which deals with the old Park Theatre, once facing the New York City Hall Park, in which appear such characters as William Dunlap, Harry Placide, the famous comedian, and Mrs. Wheatley; "The Reconstruction of Religious Belief," by W. H. Mallock, who takes up a question of paramount importance, namely, the necessity for finding some intellectual solution of the contradiction between science and religion; also, the two concluding volumes of Justin McCarthy's "History of Our Own Times."

Barbour, Ralph H: An orchard princess; il. by Ja. Montgomery Flagg. Phil., Lippincott, 1905. [S.] c. 3-219 p. sq. O. cl., †$2.

A spring-time love story. Miles Fallon, man of the world, writer of Western stories, goes to visit an artist friend in a sleepy Connecticut village. There he comes upon his Orchard Princess painting among the apple trees. But after a week of meetings by chance, when there is much bright, audacious talk, the golden-haired girl suddenly disappears, leaving a note in which she forbids him to follow her. Six months later on Christmas Day, they are brought together in the same place and explanations and avowals put an end to uncertainty for both.

The author is professor of Hebrew in Auburn Theological Seminary. Essentially a restatement of the Christian tradition that was supreme fifty years ago, but a restatement with differences so numerous and important that it may be regarded by men who do not think things through as an attack on tradition. The author makes a search for truth without undue solicitude as to whether its results are orthodox. But he thinks his conclusions are the old orthodoxy transposed into the forms of modern thought. The work studies the prophets' messages as they relate to the coming Messiah.

Bradford, Amory Howe. The inward light. N. Y., T: Y. Crowell & Co., [1905. O.] c. 8+359 p. D. cl., $1.25 net.

Series of essays on the Holy Spirit, the Inward Light which is in every man and is sufficient to disclose all the truth that is needed for the purpose of life. This light is from God who dwells in humanity as he is immanent in the universe; therefore the source of authority is to be found within the soul and not in external authority of church, or creed or book; and this light being divine must be continuous. Thus the author sums up the argument of the book which is not antagonistic to church or creed, but in a sense supplementary to them. Dr. Bradford is the pastor of the First Congregational Church in Montclair, N. J., and the author of various books on religion.

Carl, Katharine A. With the Empress Dowager; il. by the author with photographs. N. Y., Century Co., 1905. [N.] c. 25+306 p. O. cl., $2 net.

While the writer, a portrait painter, was visiting in Shanghai in 1903, she received an order to paint the portrait of the Empress Dowager. It was a great innovation in Chinese customs for an imperial portrait to be painted, but this picture was wanted for the St. Louis Exhibition. The artist went to Pekin and in the end made four portraits of her majesty. The months this consumed were spent in the various palaces of China and the author had unusual opportunities to study Chinese conditions at first hand such as are afforded to few. She describes the Dowager Empress as one of the most interesting and important figures in modern history. The minute detail of Chinese court etiquette is very well described.

Chamberlain, Arthur H:, Dobbs, Ella V., [and others.] Basketry, clay, and paper weaving for the elementary grades. San Francisco, Whitaker & Ray Co., Incorporated, 1905. c. 7-78 p. il. 12°, (Educative handwork manuals, pt. 1.) cl., 50 c.

Christy, Howard Chandler. Drawings by Howard Chandler Christy; reproductions in black and white. N. Y., Moffat, Yard & Co., 1905. [O.] c. '00-'05. unp. obl. f°, bds., $3.50 net.

A collection of the drawings of many sorts which have contributed to Christy's wonderful success. These representative drawings contain seventeen pictures now seen for the first time, showing not only compositions picturing the "Christy girl," but examples also of the artist's equally celebrated war pictures, of his spirited sketches of frontier life, and also numerous cartoons of sentiment and many society pictures. The handsome volume is boxed and makes a rich holiday gift.

Comman, O: Perry, and Gerson, Oscar. Geography primer. N. Y., Hinds, Noble & Eldredge, [1905.] c. 22+136 p. il. maps, sq. O. cl., 60 c.

Cowper, Edith E. "Viva Christina!": the adventures of a young Scot with the British legion; il. by W. H. C. Groome. Phil., Lippincott, 1905. 4+292 p. D. cl., †$1.25.

Story of the Carlist uprising in Spain in 1835, relating the experiences of a young Scot with the British Legion. He and his friend, an intrepid Englishman, take part in the various engagements before and after the relief of Bilboa, and are themselves taken prisoners in their efforts to rescue two Spanish ladies and an English girl who have been kidnapped by the brigands. A double thread of romance adds interest to their perils and escapes.

Cox, Kenyon. Old masters and new: essays in art criticism. [Illustrated ed.] N. Y., Fox, Duffield & Co., 1905. c. 8+311 p. il. O. cl., $2.50 net.

For material covered, see notice P. W., "Weekly Record," May 6, '05 [1736]. This is a reprint set with wide margins and showing sixteen reproductions of celebrated pictures, a distinct gain for the reader's understanding and also making this a distinctive holiday book.

Craigie, Mrs. Pearl Mary Theresa, ["John Oliver Hobbes,"pseud.] The flute of Pan. N. Y., Appleton, 1905. [N.] c. 9+292 p. il. D. cl., †$1.50.

The inheritor of great riches grows tired of the idleness of life and retires to an Italian hamlet where he devotes himself to painting. Hither comes his fate who proves a great princess of a little kingdom among the Italian hills. His mother comes and arranges his rooms and his princess comes and arranges his thoughts. She is a submissive maiden and she makes him govern her kingdom. In the meantime he has painted "The flute of Pan" which plays a part in the adventurous tale.

Darrow, Clarence S. An eye for an eye. N. Y., Fox, Duffield & Co., 1905. [S.] 3+213 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

A gruesomely realistic tale of the last night of a condemned murderer who tells his life's history and the details of the murder of his wife to a railroad associate who sits up with him all through the terrible hours of waiting for sure death. The criminal's confession gives a startling picture of the sordid lives of irresponsible working people. The scene is Chicago.

Davidge, Frances. The game and the candle. N. Y., Appleton, 1905. [O.] c. 5+371 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Certainly not worth the candle is the great, rushing, whirling game that is being played in the great city of New York for money, for power, for place, for husbands. Just before his soul was killed by New York, that "all-devouring demon," Richard Faxon, who had drifted into the idlest, laziest, most unsatisfactory life, was turned to better things by his Cousin Emily. He was married; his wife wanted a divorce which he absolutely refused. Emily sent him out West to work as physician in a mining community and from that dated the events of the plot which shifts between New York, Newport, the West and South Carolina which sees the satisfactory end.

Dowden, E: Michel de Montaigne. Phil., Lippincott, 1905. [S.] c. 383 p. por. D. (French men of letters; ed. by Alex. Jessup.) cl., $1.50 net.

First volume of a series aiming to do for French literature what the English men of letters did for English authors. The writer is professor of English literature in Trinity College, Dublin. He brings out how profoundly Montaigne influenced English literature. It is an exhaustive biographical and critical study with an adequate index and a portrait of Montaigne.

Dyer, W. T. Thiselton, ed. Index Kewensis plantarum phanerogamarum supplementum secundum nomina et synonyma omnium generum et specierum ab initio anni, 1896, usque ad finem anni 1900 complectens; ductu et consilio W. T. Thiselton-Dyer confecerunt herbarii horti regii botanici Kewensis curatores. N. Y., Oxford University Press, (Amer. Branch,) 1904. 3+204 p. Q. cl., $9.50.

The original work, in four volumes, to which this is the supplement was on record in the American Catalogue for 1895. It was edited by Sir Joseph Dalton Hooker.

Ellis, J. Breckenridge. Stork's Nest; il. by Elizabeth Ingham. N. Y., Moffat, Yard & Co., 1905. [O.] c. 5+375 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

The backwoods of northern Missouri is the scene of this study of illiterate, narrow-minded country people. Two brothers, Abijah and Silas Stork, cruel, miserly, unscrupulous men, are secretly engaged in counterfeiting. Their evil practices are discovered by a wideawake young city fellow who has come to work on their farm for the sake of outdoor life, and he makes it his duty to bring them to justice and, at the same time, to protect a beautiful native girl who has been inveigled into a promise of marriage with one of them. The lighter parts of the story describe the education of this Emmy and her gradual awakening to what is noble and beautiful. There is also an account of a thrilling voyage on an uprooted tree down a flooded river. Much of the conversation is in broadest dialect.

Fanshawe, Anne Harrison, Lady. Memoirs of Lady Fanshawe, wife of Sir Richard Fanshawe, Bt., embassador from Charles II. to the courts of Portugal and Madrid, written by herself; containing extracts from the correspondence of Sir Richard Fanshawe; ed., with an introduction by Beatrice Marshall and a note upon the il. by Allan Fea. N. Y., J: Lane, 1905. 26+312 p. pors. fold. geneal. tab., 8°, (Crown lib.) cl., *$1.50 net.

Farmer, Ja. Eugene. Versailles and the court under Louis XIV. N. Y., Century Co., 1905. [O.] c. 12+447 p. O. cl., $3.50 net.

The author is master of History and English Literature at St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H. He has spent much of his leisure for several years at Versailles and Paris gathering facts and also draws largely from Saint Simon's monumental work on Louis XIV. He divides his work into 4 parts: The palace, the park, the king and the court. Mr. Farmer gives a wealth of statistical information on how the king first thought of building Versailles, who was the architect, how many soldiers constituted the palace guards, who might sit in the king's presence and other information on the customs and manners in the most corrupt and most conventional court of history, that seldom finds its way into descriptive works. Richly manufactured and illustrated.

Fenn, G: Manville. Shoulder arms! A tale of two soldiers' sons; il. by W. H. C. Groome. Phil., Lippincott, 1905. 4+410 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

The story of a poor English woman who goes through many sad experiences after her soldier husband has been ordered out to India leaving her with a son and nephew. Things go so badly that the Indian soldier, a colonel, thinks his little family had better join him and the story is made up of the horrors of East Indian warfare. For boys.

Fox, Frances Margaret. The rainbow bridge: a story; il. by Frank T. Merrill. Bost., W. A. Wilde Co., [1905.] c. 6-254 p. D. cl., †$1.25.

The story opens in the Little Pilgrim's Home, the life of the home being vividly described, and how one by one the little inmates are adopted. Marion Lee, the little heroine, is discovered by an aunt and taken to her Michigan home. The little one has many sorrows here, but finally finds her own home and parents.

Franklin, B: Selections from the writings of Benjamin Franklin; ed. by U. Waldo Cutler. N. Y., T: Y. Crowell & Co., [1905.] c. 18+366 p. S. (Handy volume classics, pocket ed.) cl., 35 c.; limp leath., 75 c.; 12° ed., 60 c.

Frost, A. B., (il.,) and Irwin, Wallace. Drawings, by A. B. Frost; with an introd. by Joel Chandler Harris and verse by Wallace Irwin. N. Y., Fox, Duffield & Co., [1905.] c. '04. unp. f°, bds., $3.

Full-page drawings illustrating American subjects. The verse is written by the editor of The Overland Monthly and Joel Chandler Harris's introduction gives an excellent estimate of Frost as a distinctively American artist. A richly gotten up holiday book.

Fuller, Caroline. The old songs: a musical comedy in one act. Phil., Penn Publishing Co., 1905. c. 24 p. S. pap., 15 c.

Graham, Harry, ["Col. D. Streamer," pseud.] More misrepresentative men; pictures by Malcolm Strauss. N. Y., Fox, Duffield & Co., 1905. c. 3-112 p. sq. S. bds., $1.

A second collection of humorous verses on celebrities. Robert Burns, William Waldorf Astor, Euclid, Joseph F. Smith, Andrew Carnegie, Henry VIII. are some of the men who are satirically treated. The illustrations are caricatures.

Grant, Madison. The Rocky Mountain goat. N. Y., Office of the New York Zoological Society, 1905. 36 p. il. 8°, cl., $1.

Green, Evelyn Everett. The secret of Wold Hall. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1905. c. 5+341 p. D. cl., $1.

Opens in Switzerland where the hero and heroine meet, she aged ten, he sixteen. She is the "daughter of a hundred earls" and he the son of a millionaire miner, knighted for his achievements. Ten years after a marriage is arranged between the two to retrieve the fortunes of the earl father. They meet as strangers and marry in three weeks. Very soon the wife hears terrible rumors of her husband's past life. Wold Hall is an old house where he often spends the night when at work at the mines. Interest and curiosity are kept up by the plot and a tragedy at the mine finally brings about satisfactory explanations.

Growoll, Adolf. The Booksellers' League: a history of its formation and ten years of its work. N. Y., The Booksellers' League, [C: A. Burkhardt,] 1905. 4+245 p. D. hf. cf., $1.50 net.

The Booksellers' League is the first booktrade organization formed with the purpose of uniting its members primarily for social intercourse, but with the intention also of raising the standards and equipment of the calling. It was organized in December, 1804, as a national society with headquarters in New York. Besides its many social meetings, it has maintained an employment bureau and in other ways has aided the younger members of the trade. This volume tells the story of its first decade, in authoritative detail, and is an interesting and encouraging record of success[illegible]ork.

Ha[illegible] Rev. E. J. John Chinaman at home: [illegible]nes of men, manners, and things in [illegible]a. N. Y., Scribner, 1905. 4-335 p. O. [illegible] $2.50 net.

The author is well-known as the writer of "How to be happy though married." For three years and a half he was Chaplain to the British Forces at Hong Kong and this professional work he described in "Mr. Thomas Atkins." He heard, read and observed and travelled much in a country one hundred and four times larger than England and he has made a book for unlearned visitors to China full of information upon the larger cities, upon manners and customs, Chinese food, medicine and surgery, clothes, servants, marriage and the education of Chinese boys and girls. A chapter is devoted to what the Chinese think of the English.

Harrison, Edith Ogden. The moon princess: a fairy tale; with il. in col. and other drawings by Lucy Fitch Perkins. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1905. [O.] c. 5-162 p. Q. cl., *$1.25 net.

Consists of a single long story instead of a number of short ones, as did her former books, "Prince Silverwings" and "The star fairies." It is uniform with these and daintily bound in blue, representing the starry and moon-lighted sky.

Hatch, Ernest F. G. Far Eastern impressions, Japan—Korea—China. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1905. c. 13+257 p. il. maps, O. cl., *$1.40 net.

During a tour in the Far East three years ago the author studied his surroundings, particularly in connection with commercial aspects. These impressions are now corrected and brought to date, the author thinking that the settlement of the Russo-Japanese war has made all that is accurately known of Japan, Corea and China of specially timely interest. An appendix gives the agreement between Great Britain and Japan signed January 30, 1902, and good maps and a practical index make the book of lasting worth.

Home, Andrew. The boys of Badminster: a school tale; il. by C. M. Sheldon. Phil., Lippincott, 1905. 6+398 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

A story of mistaken identity, centering in the person of a boy, Jack Coverdale, who, having escaped from one English school, is mysteriously taken to another where he finds he is supposed to be one Alfred Price, who has run away. Jack does not correct the error, and soon finds himself involved in a plot to kidnap his chum at Badminster, a rich American boy. There is a midnight capture, a collision at sea and at length a happy escape for both boys, when Jack is able to right himself in the eyes of all. A second story. "A row in the sixth," fills the last third of the volume.

Hough, Emerson. Heart's Desire: the story of a contented town, certain peculiar citizens and two fortunate lovers: a novel. N. Y., Macmillan, 1905. [O.] c. '03, '05. 11+367 p. il. D. cl., †$1.50.

The name of a little settlement on the great "Western Divide" where all kinds of men had come because some woman had made them ambitious to get rich, or, careless and heart-broken, to forget. No one was allowed to own more than $300. The author knows the conditions and the deep depths of heart under the rough externals and he lifts some of the heart curtains and shows a world quite strange to many readers in his studies of the "peculiar citizens" and of "the two fortunate lovers."

Howe, Mrs. Marcia Jerusha. Much in little: a work intended to teach how to cure yourself of disease by the power of magnetism in such a concise manner that all can understand and apply. Wheaton, Ill., [Mrs. E. B. Howe,] [1905.] c. 58 p. 12°, cl., $1.

Racy, witty verse on American conditions by the editor of The Overland Monthly, San Francisco. The subjects joked about cover "The Panama Brook"; "Maxims of a monopolist"; Immigration; "The missionary and the Standard oil"; The reveries of a whitewasher; The ballad of Grizzly Gulch; "Frenzied finance," etc. Many of the verses and many of the Kemble pictures have appeared in Collier's Magazine.

Jacberns, Raymond. Crab Cottage: a girl's story; il. by J. Menzies. Phil., Lippincott, 1905. 4+285 p. D. cl., †$1.25.

Simple story of English home life in the country. A family of young people, who have a poultry farm, find that a neighboring place has been rented by strangers and that a rival business is to be started. The relations of the two families, their struggles, hopes and success make up the story.

Jamison, Alpha Pierce. Advanced mechanical drawing: a text for engineering students. N. Y., J: Wiley & Sons, 1905. 9+177 p. il. diagrs., 8°, cl., $2.

Jamison, Mrs. Cecilia Viets Dakin. The Penhallow family: a story; il. by Frank T. Merrill. Bost., W. A. Wilde Co., [1905.] c. 4-317 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

The location of the story is a picturesque old town in the British provinces, while the characters are from one of the noblest of old Scotch families. The coming to Penhallow house of a little cousin from India is the opening event. There are several other little orphan children living at Penhallow with their uncle, the rector, and a most severe grandmother. The family chronicles are brightly told and most readable.

Jenks, Albert Ernest. The Bontoc Igorot. Manila, P. I., Ethnological Survey, [Albert E. Jenks,] 1905. 266 p. il. Q. pap., gratis.

As the result of an expedition of two months during the fall of 1902 among the people of Northern Luzon, Philippine Islands, it was decided that the Igorot of the Bontoc pueblo "are as typical of the primitive mountain agriculturist of Luzon as any group visited." Therefore, Mr. Jenks and his wife took up residence in a Bontoc pueblo and remained five months, studying these primitive natives. The results of the investigations are here set down, comprising observations of the general social customs of the Igorot, their economic life, religion, language, folk tales, dress, amusements, etc., and forming an exhaustive ethnologic study of these island savages. The book is copiously illustrated by full-page pictures from the author's photographs and there are several valuable maps.

Justinian I. Roman water law; tr. from the Pandects of Justinian by Eugene F. Ware.

St. Paul, Minn., West Publishing Co., 1905. 3-160 p. 8°, hf. mor., $2.50.

Kaler, Ja. Otis, ["James Otis," pseud.] The minute boys of the Mohawk valley; il. by A. Burnham Shute. Bost., Dana Estes & Co., [1905.] c. 3-365 p. D. cl., †$1.25.

Joel Campbell wrote letters in 1777 in Cherry Valley, in the province of New York, when the boys were fighting for independence against the English. These were saved and the author has put their interesting facts into a stirring tale of the Vermont boys that saved the day amid many perils, graphically described by a past master in writing for boys.

Keats, J: Hyperion, a facsimile of Keats's autograph manuscript, with a transliteration of the manuscript of The fall of Hyperion: a dream; with introd. and notes by Ernest de Sélincourt. N. Y., Oxford University Press, (Amer. Branch,) 1905. 50 p. facsim., F. leath., $40. Ed. limited to 225 copies.

The autograph manuscript of Keats's "Hyperion" was purchased a year ago by the British Museum by authority of the trustees. The manuscript was presented by Keats to Leigh Hunt who left it to his son, who in his turn gave it to Miss Bird, the daughter of his father's intimate friend and physician. When Miss Bird discovered this was really Keats's handwriting she at once offered it to the British Museum. Gotten out for libraries, as it is an interesting study to see how the poet worked out the celebrated poem.

Klein, Felix (Abbé.) In the land of the strenuous life; author's tr. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1905. [O11.] c. 19+387 p. por. O. cl., *$2 net.

The author visited the United States in 1902 and wrote his impressions for the benefit of his countrymen under the title "Au pays de la vie intense." It has already reached the seventh edition and the French Academy has awarded it the Montyon prize of 1000 francs. The Abbé has prepared a preface for the American edition in which he calls upon Americans to use their great characteristics of initiative and tolerance to set an example for the world. His sober and fair comments on the life of the largest American cities are full of information and his descriptions of distinguished Americans are of universal interest. Good index.

Knight, W: Allen. Saint Abigail of the Pines; frontispiece by G: A. Williams. Bost., Pilgrim Press, 1905. [O.] c. 8+185 p. D. cl., $1.

A tale of old New Bedford whaling days, beginning in 1818 and ending in 1890. A stirring sea story that also touches the depths of the religious life of old New England. Gives a vivid, lucid and pathetic picture of the lives of those "that went down into the sea in ships" and of those that staid home when "the harbor bar was moaning."

Kohut, G: Alex., ed. Israel's faith: a series of lessons for the Jewish youth; adapted from N. S. Joseph's "Religion, natural and revealed." N. Y., Bloch Publishing Co., 1905. 4+158 p. S. cl., $1; bds., 50 c.

An adaptation and revision of a text book for many years considered to contain the most adequate presentation of the teachings of Judaism.

Little, Archibald. The Far East. N. Y., Oxford University Press, (Amer. Branch,) 1905. 8+334 p. O. cl., $2.

The author has had a life-long residence in the east, where he acquired a knowledge of the Chinese language; his business necessitated extended travel in China and the neighboring countries and so facilitated the accumulation of the needful knowledge of the regions described. The first of his journeys was made in 1860, at the time that Shanghai was invested by the Tarpings, and led from Ningpo up the Tsientang river through Nganhui, and so by way of the famous potteries of Kingtehchen down the Payang lake to Kiukiang—the whole country traversed being the scene of the great struggle then going on between the forces of Hunghsu-chuen and the Imperialists. Other journeys were made in untravelled parts of China, also in its dependencies, also in Japan, etc.

The contents cover: The kinship of the arts; Mythology in poetry and sculpture; A series of Madonnas from Cimabue to Raphael; Legends of the saints; The Bible as represented by great artists; Mythological painting; Subjects found in poetry; Pictures translated into verse; The Pre-Raphaelites.

Lucian, [Lucianus Samosatensis.] Works of Lucian of Samosata; complete with exceptions specified in the preface; tr. by H. W. Fowler and F. G. Fowler. N. Y., Oxford University Press, (Amer. Branch,) 1905. 4 v., 28+248; 4+275; 4+280; 4+247 p. D. cl., $4.

The text followed in this translation is that of Jacobitz, Teubner, 1901, all deviations from which are noted. Lucian lived from about 125 to about 200 A. D., under the Roman Emperors Antoninus Pius, M. Aurelius and Lucius Verus, Commodus, and perhaps Pertinax. He was a Syrian, born at Samosata on the Euphrates. He became what was called in those days a sophist or rhetorician. His many orations and dialogues in this line are embraced in these four volumes. So modern are they in thought, so replete with wit and satire, they might have been written in English. They are given complete, except where expurgation was necessary.

McLean, Ja. H., and Small, Riley F. The veterinary educator: a popular guide to farmers and stockmen in the treatment of domestic animals; also giving a list of medicines with the action and use of each, as well as a list of valuable receipts. The hand that shaped "Captain Letterblair," and "Love finds the way," has gained in cunning. Nine women and one man take the parts of Mrs. Gaskell's immortal actors on the little stage of Cranford, who played their parts in the time of King William IV. and Queen Adelaide. She sticks closely to Mrs. Gaskell's words. Gotten up daintily as a holiday book.

Mifflin, Lloyd. Collected sonnets of Lloyd Mifflin; rev. by the author. N. Y., Oxford University Press, (Amer. Branch,) 1905. c. 16+366 p. por. O. cl., $2.60.

Jules Verbeaux was a French Canadian trapper, a sort of Robin Hood, whom the great Hudson Bay Company had reason to dread in the eighteenth century for his various pranks. In all his different adventures he suffered from loneliness and heartsickness as he battled with fierce storms, eluded the vengeance of the company officials and faced the onslaughts of half-breed French and Indian trappers. The author is a grandson of Jordan L. Mott, the well-known iron founder.

Bost., L. C. Page & Co., 1906. [O.] c. 8+359 p. D. (Art galleries of Europe ser.) cl., $2 net.

The book is intended to be of actual service as a guide-book in the gallery and therefore the pictures are described, grouped as they are in the separate seventeen rooms, of which a ground map is given. Perhaps no pictures in the world have called forth more conflicting criticisms. The author has chosen the authorities from which she quotes with discretion and hard work, and she has also selected the illustrations she most needed to elucidate her criticisms. Uniform with the writer's "Art of the Vatican" and "Art of the Louvre" and printed and bound in the same lavish holiday style.

Rhoades, Nina. That Preston girl: a story; il. by W: F. Stecher. Bost., W. A. Wilde Co., [1905.] c. 4-340 p. il. D. cl., †$1.50.

The story of a lovely young girl, brought up in luxury, who for some reason, at first not evident, is deprived of the companionship of girls of her own age. Suddenly her father leaves their new York home, late at night, taking her with him, and they seek refuge in Canada. She then learns there is a cloud hanging over her father, the mystery being explained. She is not left unhappy at the last—there being unexpected developments.

Webster, Jean. The wheat princess. N. Y., Century Co., 1905. [O.] c. 9+340 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

The author of "When Patty went to college" has laid the scene of her new story in Italy where Marcia Copley's uncle had taken up his summer residence. While Marcia is on a visit a wheat famine occurs in the land and the peasants grow very angry over the luxurious life and careless generosity of innocent Marcia and her relatives. It soon develops that Marcia's millionaire father has cornered the wheat market. Marcia's lover first makes her think and shows her Italy's life and troubles from all sides. The scenes are picturesque and there are many thrilling incidents before all again goes well.

Wells, Amos Russel. Sunday-school problems: a book of practical plans for Sunday-school teachers and officers. Bost., W. A. Wilde Co., [1905.] c. 297 p. D. cl., $1.

A record of the author's thoughts and observations on the Sunday school during the past seven years. The material has already appeared in a number of religious periodicals. Some of the subjects are: How to get home study; The last five minutes; What to do with backward scholars; The teacher's manner; The boy outside the school; The Sunday school as an avocation; The Bible in the class; Christmas festivities; How to inspire love for the Bible; How to tell a Bible story, etc.

Wells, Amos Russel. That they all may be one. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls Co., 1905. [S.] c. 3-209 p. D. cl., 75 c. net.

Arguments for the unification of all the Christian sects, which is just now uppermost in the minds of church leaders. The author is managing editor of The Christian Endeavor World.

Wells, Amos Russel. The young people's pastor: a book showing, from the experience of many pastors, how a pastor may most successfully conduct his young people's society. Bost., United Society of Christian Endeavor, [1905.] c. 115 p. D. cl., 75 c.

Practical suggestions by a layman, who has long made a study of the plans and methods of the most successful ministers, for conducting Christian Endeavor societies, defining the relation of the pastor to the various aspects of the work.

Wells, Carolyn. The Dorrance domain: a story; il. by W: F. Stecher. Bost., W. A. Wilde Co., [1905. $1.] c. 4-318 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

The characters are an old lady and her four grandchildren. They had all seen better days, but misfortunes had deprived them of a comfortable fortune. They have been boarding in New York City, and hate the restrictions of their surrounding, when it is remembered that they own a fully furnished hotel in New Jersey which their lawyer cannot find a purchaser for. As the summer is opening it is determined they go live there. The account of their experience in keeping house and taking boarders is told with exceeding great humor.

Wharton, Edith. The house of mirth; il. by A. B. Wenzell. N. Y., Scribner, 1905. c. 2+533 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

A novel tracing the career of Lily Bart, a beautiful, fascinating young woman, a conspicuous figure in New York society of to-day. In an atmosphere of gossip and bridge, surrounded by a crowd of shallow, empty-headed people, whose only thought is the amusement of the moment, Lily is led into a succession of indiscretions to keep up her social position, which finally cause her to be thrown over by the selfish, heartless crowd with which she is identified. She sinks from one level to another, until at last she is seen in a shabby boarding house, vainly striving to earn a living. In her distress she finds herself without a friend; even the men who had striven to win her turn away. Her character is most artistically developed, while the scenes of fashionable life, with their silly actors, are depicted with stinging satire. The title of the book is taken from a verse in Ecclesiastes—"The heart of fools is in the house of mirth."

Whitham, G. I. The last of the White Coats: a story of cavaliers and roundheads; il. by Oscar Wilson. Phil., Lippincott, 1906, [1905.] 6-319 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

A story of Cromwell's times. The Whitecoats were the Earl of Newcastle's pikemen, chiefly Roman Catholics, in the time of Charles I. For boys.

Wood, C: Seely. Camp-fires on the Scioto; showing the courage and hardships of the winners of the west; il. by Chase Emerson. Bost., W. A. Wilde Co., [1905.] c. 319 p. D. cl., †$1.50.

Based on the historical records of Nathaniel Massie's surveys of the Virginia Military District of Ohio. The time is from 1791 to 1796, when the hostility of the Indians retarded the settlement of the territory. The story is represented to have been written by Morris Patterson, and describes the brave resolutions of the boy, orphaned by the cruelty of the Indians, to take his father's place in the company at Massie's station on the Ohio River, and to support by his own efforts his little sister. There are chapters of peculiar interest which show the first school in Cincinnati; the books which were used; the methods of the harsh writing-master, etc.

Woolley, G: Ingalls. Outline of the law of trusts; prepared for the use of stulents in the Brooklyn Law School of St. Lawrence University. Brooklyn, N. Y., G: Ingalls Woolley, 1905. c. 96 p. O. pap., $1.50.

Wright, H: Collier. Bossism in Cincinnati. Cin., Cincinnati News Co., 1905. c. 182 p. pors. 12°, cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Contents: Cox as a ward executive; Cox's first recognition; Cox becomes boss; The machine; Operation of the machine; Methods used to retain power; The machine and state legislation; The citizens' municipal party; Difficulties confronting any municipal reform movement; Typical municipal reform movements.

Young, Rev. Egerton R. Hector, my dog; his autobiography; il. by Harry Burgess. Bost., W. A. Wilde Co., [1905.] c. 4-332 p. O. cl., †$1.50.

Hector, the clever dog, is the supposed narrator of these stories of dog life in the far northland. He tells of the dogs he met, and of their many traits and of the various other animals he learned to know and how he became a regular sleigh dog, and his many journeys in the frozen north. The author, Dr. Young, has spent many years of faithful service in the northland and among the Indians. He has also written "By canoe and dog train" and other works.

(No. 127, 207 titles;) also, Americana, State papers, genealogy, psalmody, slavery, etc. (No. 128, 194 titles.)—Theosophical Pub. Co., 244 Lenox Ave., New York, Books for the higher life. (24 p. 16°.)—Wilfrid M. Voynich, 68 Shaftesbury Ave., London, Short catalogue of rare books. (No. 15, 393 titles.)

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

OCTOBER 28, 1905.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

FOREIGN MARKETS FOR THE AMERICAN BOOKTRADE.

REFERRING to our recent note of encouragement to American publishers to cultivate the Australian market in arranging for books by American or English authors, the London Publisher and Bookseller strikes a note of warning to English publishers for neglecting the colonial markets. Canada, it is admitted, has already ceased to be of any benefit to the English booktrade so far as the Canadian editions of American books is concerned, and steady encroachment, it is claimed, "is being made by American publishers upon the English publishers' rights in the works of British authors. Indeed, Canada may be said to have practically ceased to exist as a remunerative field for the publishers of the old country." There is hardly anything remarkable in this shifting of the book market from a source of supply three thousand miles distant to one within less than a day's journey. Besides, the American publisher is alive to the wants of his neighbor's constituency in making, if not better books, at least books just as good, more attractive, generally at a cheaper price and more promptly than the English publisher either cares or is able to make them.

As to the Australian market, which our contemporary fears is slipping out of the hands of the English publisher, that has come to us through the aggressive enterprise of Australian booksellers rather than of our own seeking. Only recently a circular letter has been sent to leading American publishers by one of the largest wholesale booksellers of Melbourne, in which he openly says that he does not wish any longer to order colonial editions through British firms, but prefers to deal direct with American publishers.

We regret that, in this case, our gain should be at the expense of our English brethren; but who will blame American publishers for seeking to extend their markets! There is a fair field for all in the markets of the world, and the only reproach that might be brought upon American merchants, generally, is that they have been too slow to realize their opportunities in this direction. This is particularly true of the American booktrade, and we trust that, having the advantage of being able to work more quickly than their European rivals, in being able to turn out more attractive books, to give more prompt and cheaper service, etc., they will neglect no opportunity to make themselves as strong at least in foreign markets as their competitors of other lands have made themselves.

THE second session of the Copyright Conference will be held in New York the latter part of next week, at the invitation of the Librarian of Congress. Meantime the Copyright Office has been most active in arranging the material on which the conference is to act, including a memorandum draft of a proposed copyright bill, prepared personally by Thorvald Solberg, Register of Copyright. One of the most remarkable things about this conference has been the careful prevision and provision for effective discussion without waste of time, as the result of the admirable organization of Mr. Putnam and Mr. Solberg. The discussions of the conference are informal, as though the gathering were one for consultation with the Librarian of Congress in his office at Washington, and the attendance is confined to those invited by the librarian as the designated representatives of the organizations specifically interested in copyright legislation, the public as readers being thus represented through the American Library Association and the National Education Association.

THE ROBERT CLARKE COMPANY OPENS A NEW RETAIL STORE.

THE trade at large will learn with interest that after deliberating upwards of two years, the Robert Clarke Company, of Cincinnati, O., have decided to re-enter the retail branch of the book business. On October 17 they informally opened a very attractive and well-equipped book and stationery store on Government Square, the distinguishing characteristics of which are convenience and compactness, every appointment being in the best possible taste.

Quite a number of old friends called on the opening day, and congratulations to Manager Alexander Hill were numerous and sincere. The Robert Clarke Company, it will be remembered, was situated in Fourth Street, west of Walnut, up to two years and a half ago, when it was burned out in the fire that destroyed the Pike Theatre.

NEW YORK NEWSDEALERS WANT PROTECTION.

THE Newsdealers' Protective and Benevolent Association met on the evening of October 25, at the Union Square Hotel, New York City, to take action on the abuse of the newsstand privileges. During the discussion it came out that the possession of a fairly good stand under an elevated railway stairway is worth from $500 to $1500 a year. This, the complainants said, made the politicians hand over the stands to their own followers. Finally, a committee of ten was appointed to draft a law to protect the newsdealers in their business. It is proposed to take the permit granting out of the hands of aldermen and give it to the mayor. The committee is to ask for promises from candidates on all three tickets in regard to supporting such a law, and is then to report back to another mass meeting.

"SMART SET" AGENT FORFEITS BAIL.

CHARLES F. AHLE, the solicitor for "Fads and Fancies," who was charged with trying to blackmail Edwin M. Post out of $500, was not in court when he was called for trial in General Sessions, New York City, on October 16. He was indicted on October 13. He had been out on $3500 bail, furnished by Martin Engel.

The District Attorney said that he believed that Ahle had fled the jurisdiction. Ahle's counsel claimed that he was a salesman on the road for an automobile firm and that he would return.

Judge McMahon forfeited Ahle's bail. It was after the arrest of Ahle that the disclosures were made relating to the payment by well-known persons of large sums for write ups in "Fads and Fancies" and similar publications. In connection with this occurrence, counsel for Colonel W. D. Mann, publisher of Town Topics, declared that Mr. Ahle was not a solicitor for that publication, and that there was nothing brought out at the preliminary hearing indicating that he had such connection or that he had been employed by Colonel Mann in any capacity.

THE "DISCOVERY" IN THE ANTARCTIC REGIONS.

THE actual birth of The Discovery expedition to the Antarctic regions may be dated from July, 1893, when Sir Clements Markham resolved that an expedition should be sent. In virtue of his position as president of one of the greatest and richest societies in the world, Sir Clements was favorably placed for carrying out his determination; but few could deny that in the years of struggle and difficulty which followed, however ably and generously he was supported by his colleagues and others, it was mainly through his unique, unconquerable personality that the expedition became a living fact. In a new steamer called The Discovery, built for the national Antarctic expedition and commanded by Captain Robert F. Scott, a party of trained scientists set sail for the South Pole on July 31, 1901, to gather details on scientific discoveries and to follow up the very valuable magnetic work. In the same year Dr. H. A. Mill compiled a bibliography of the Antarctic regions, which in 878 references included all books, pamphlets and maps even remotely touching the subject that had been published in any country, while the bibliography of the Arctic region already made a literature.

Captain Scott made the hazardous voyage that occupied three long years before he ever thought that his hardest duty was yet to come, and that the world looked to him for a technical detailed account of the great expedition. The task was unwelcome, but he undertook it, feeling that the first object in writing an account of a Polar voyage was the guidance of future voyagers; that the first duty of the writer was to his successors. He has amassed an amount of descriptive detail and has told his tale as simply as possible. Charles Scribner's Sons have their imprint on the two great volumes entitled "The Voyage of The Discovery," together with that of Smith, Elder & Co. Many illustrations, maps and plates are of the greatest scientific value. The special work trusted to each officer and the details of the discoveries of each member of the expedition, the life on shipboarl, the endless list of supplies required for the long trip and for the intricate scientific work are all brought together in a way that will make this a very valuable work of reference. The 200 plates by Dr. E. A. Wilson and others of the expedition, the photogravure frontispieces and twelve colored plates from Dr. Wilson's sketches, panoramas and maps are not only valuable within their own covers, but are very valuable to consult in reference when reading any other work of Antarctic discovery.

MUSIC PIRATE SENTENCED.

GARRETT J. COUCHOIS, of 41 West Twenty-eighth Street, New York City, who was tried in September for counterfeiting the trademarks of music publishing houses, was convicted October 24 in Special Sessions and sentenced on the following day, by Justice Olmsted, to one month in the city prison and to pay a $350 fine.

BOOKTRADE ASSOCIATIONS.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF STATIONERS AND MANUFACTURERS.

DURING the fourth session of the convention of the National Association of Stationers the following officers were elected: President, John A. Schlener, of Minneapolis; first vice-president, John A. Walker, of Jersey City; second vice-president, William J. Kennedy, of St. Louis; third vice-president, Theo. L. C. Gerry, New York City; secretary, R. J. Smith, Minneapolis; treasurer, Abner K. Pratt, Boston; and auditor, H. C. Bainbridge, Brooklyn, N. Y.

After some discussion it was voted to hold the next convention in New York City, Denver waiving her proposition.

Immediately after the adjournment of the convention Convention Hall was turned over to the St. Louis Stationers' Club, Mr. Kennedy presiding. The chair called for Mr. Sawtell, of Chicago, who, in a felicitous speech reviewing his fifty years' service on the road, presented "Uncle George" Olney with a beautiful, especially constructed album containing photographs and autograph letters from many of his business friends throughout the entire country.

Before Mr. Olney had quite recovered from his surprise and had expressed his great appreciation, Sam Meyer, of Chicago, stepped to the platform and took from a mahogany case a magnificent silver cup of great size suitably engraved and containing $700 in gold certificates and presented it to "Uncle George" as a token of the esteem in which he is held by his fellow travelling men.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BENNINGTON, VT.—E. T. Griswold, bookseller, has purchased the stock of Andrew Maurer, and will turn the two stores into one. Mr. Griswold's business is one of the oldest of its kind in Bennington, having been established in 1875 by Mr. Griswold's father, who since that time has absorbed five other concerns. Mr. Maurer will continue in the employ of Mr. Griswold.

BROKEN ARROW, I. T.—C. C. DeHart has sold out his bookstore to Nora Routh.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—The Unity Book Company has incorporated, with a capital of $500,000. The directors are W. A. Crawford and W. H. Wright, Jr., of Buffalo, and R. J. Davidson, of Niagara Falls.

FORT WAYNE, IND.—Charles Stellhorn, bookseller, has sold out.

NEW YORK CITY.—R. R. Havens has opened a store at 153 West Twenty-third Street for the sale of old and rare and current books.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Surdus Publishing Company has just been formed for the purpose of publishing occasional books and pamphlets intended particularly for the deaf and hard-of-hearing, with headquarters at 156 Fifth Avenue.

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA.—Raymer's "Old Book" Store has moved from its old quarters at 202 West Grand Avenue to larger and more pleasant quarters at 9 North Robinson Street, where they will add a complete line of news and stationery. They will be pleased to hear from the trade on these lines.

OTTUMWA, IA.—L. E. Stevens has purchased the Fisher Bookstore.

SPOKANE, WASH.—Louis L. Raymer, of Minneapolis, Minn., has engaged in business with his father as co-partner under the firm of D. Raymer & Co., proprietors of Raymer's "Old Book" Store, and will take up a permanent residence in Spokane, Wash.

TOPEKA, KAN.—The Kansas Historical Publishing Company has been incorporated, with a capital of $6000.

UNIONTOWN, KAN.—B. F. Mason has purchased the bookstore of Shannon Jones.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

MRS. HUMPHRY WARD'S new novel, "Fenwick's Career," begins in the November Century. Fenwick is a handsome young English painter, who starts out with unbounded confidence in himself and his powers. The story is set first in the Westmoreland country and later in London.

The Burlington Magazine for October, published in this country by Robert Grier Cooke, 307 Fifth Avenue, New York, contains a timely article by C. J. Holmes on "The Use of Japanese Art to Europe," with two full-page plates; another instalment of Dr. W. Martin's article on "The Life of a Dutch Artist in the 17th Century," with a number of illustrations; "Some Notes on Mediæval Palermo," by Cecilia Waern, with two full-page plates; an article on "The Classification of Oriental Carpets;" also, an article by the Rev. Herbert Thurston on "Two Lost Masterpieces of the Goldsmith's Art," with two plates showing illustrations of a Morse made by Cellini and of a Tiara made by Caradosso. There are also notes of the sales of the past season, book notes and other valuable articles and notes. The present number concludes the eighth volume of this exceedingly useful and attractive magazine.

AUCTION SALES.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY have just ready the eleventh volume of "The Jewish Encyclopedia."

CHARLES DANA GIBSON has retired from active work as illustrator, and will go abroad for a number of years to devote himself to painting.

THE SURDUS PUBLISHING CO., 156 Fifth Avenue, New York, will publish shortly "Lessons in Lip-Reading," a manual for the deaf and those hard of hearing.

J. H. STONEHOUSE, manager to H. Sotheran & Co., of London, is staying for a few days at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, New York City, and has with him a number of rare books and interesting autographs, which he would be pleased to show to the trade and collectors, by appointment, either at the hotel or at their residences or business places.

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY have a book for women and for men by Coulson Kernahan, entitled "A World Without a Child," in which in the guise of a dream dreamed by a man of to-day is shown the blessing of children in the poetic form in which this author teaches nature's lessons—witness his "God and the Ant," "The Child, the Wise Man and the Devil."

"AMONG FRENCH INNS," announced by L. C. Page & Company for publication early this month, has been delayed quite a little because of the illness of the author, Charles Gibson, and his consequent inability to read proofs of his book. Mr. Gibson has now fully recovered his health, and the work on the volume is going steadily on, so that its appearance may be looked for the first of November.

THE C. M. CLARK PUBLISHING COMPANY will publish next month a book entitled "Around the World in Ninety Days," by Frederick Chamberlin, a well-known author and lawyer, who recently made the trip, at an hour's notice, while engaged in a secret mission to the Philippines. They will publish shortly a new novel by James Ball Naylor, whose "Ralph Marlowe" sold close to 100,000 copies.

MCGRAW PUBLISHING CO. have published "Experiments in Applied Electricity," by Arthur J. Rowland, Professor of Electrical Engineering in Drexel Institute, and William B. Creagmile, instructor in the same institute; and "Synchronous and Other Multiple Telegraphs," by Albert Cushing Crehore, who explains "some methods of obtaining independent telegraph circuits on a single wire, both with and without synchronism."

E. P. DUTTON & CO. publish this week "The Russian Revolutionary Movement," by Konni Zilliacus, a careful history of the long protracted struggle against Russian despotism which has at last brought victory within sight. The book was originally written in Finnish and is translated by the authority of the author. They have also just ready "The Hatzfeldt Letters," written during the Franco-Prussian war, from headquarters, describing the campaign solely for the benefit of his wife. They were written in French, and the translation is by J. L. Bashford, of Cambridge, Eng.

A. C. MCCLURG & Co. have just completed arrangements for the publication in this country of the authorized English translation of Louis Elbé's "La Vie Future," dealing with the question of the immortality of the soul—a work which, when published in Paris a few months ago, created a tremendous stir in scientific and religious circles throughout France. M. Elbé, who presents a mass of scientific evidence and data that is startling, divides his book into two parts, the first part being devoted to the idea of the survival as considered by the primitive races, and the second to deductions drawn from the fundamental sciences. The book will be published early next spring.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will publish shortly the German text of Hebbel's play on Herod and Mariamne, with an English introduction and notes for class room use by Professor Edward Stockton Meyer, of Western Reserve University; a new edition of Wilhelmi's two amusing comedies, "Einer Muss Heirathen" and "Eigensinn," with notes and vocabularies by Professor William Addison Hervey, of Columbia University; also "Specimens of Discourse," by Dr. Arthur Lynn Andrews, a refreshing innovation of which is the absence of selections from the "great writers," as those given will be chosen chiefly with the end in view of teaching a student to present every-day happenings in simple, concise, vivid English.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. have made arrangements for the publication of "The Political History of England," which will be written by various authors under the direction and editorship of the Rev. Dr. William Hunt, president of the Royal Historical Society, and Reginald Lane Poole, editor of the English Historical Review. The work will cover the subject from the conquest of Britain to the end of the reign of Queen Victoria, and its scope will be, primarily, political, though religious matters will necessarily, at certain periods, have a prominent place, and social phenomena of all kinds will be noted, especially those which have had a bearing on political research. There will be twelve octavo volumes, each with its own index and two or more maps.

A BOOK of considerable interest to Dickens collectors has just been discovered by Walter T. Spencer, of New Oxford Street, London, Eng. This book, which is not recorded in any Dickens bibliography, is a quarto published under the title "The Josephine Gallery, Edited by Alice and Phœbe Cary," New York, 1861, and is probably an echo of the novelist's visit to the States nearly twenty years before. Pages 89-107 are occupied by "Suburban Romance. By Charles Dickens," a pretty little story of a young Englishman's love for a French girl named Nanette, who, being afflicted with a disfiguring tumor on the face, hides herself in a London hospital. The book contains several other contributions by well-known writers, among them Nathaniel Hawthorne and Thomas Bailey Aldrich.

LAIRD & LEE'S standard series of dictionaries has just been awarded a gold medal at the Lewis and Clark Centennial Exposition, Portland, Ore. This series of lexicons consists of five volumes: "Webster's New Standard Dictionary," Library edition, adapted for libraries, homes and general use; High School and Collegiate edition, designed to meet the needs of high schools, academies, colleges and universities; Students' Common School edition, adapted for all grammar grades; "Webster's Modern Dictionary," Intermediate School edition, for use in all intermediate grades, and the Elementary School edition, for use in the primary grades. All these books are bound uniformly in black silk cloth, with the back and side title in gold.

THOMAS Y. CROWELL & Co. announce for immediate publication the eighth volume of their "First Folio" Shakespeare—"King Lear." This edition differs from others in being an absolute copy, in modern type, of the original collected edition of 1623. In other words, Shakespeare is here restored to the original spelling, punctuation and phraseology, while suggested readings, and corrections of value have been relegated to the notes. Full glossaries and other editorial matter have won high praise for this edition. They have just ready a curiosity of bookmaking in The Miniature Irving, containing "Christmas Sketches," "The Sketch Book," "Alhambra," "Bracebridge Hall" and "Tales of a Traveller." The volumes are 1½ x 2½ inches, printed from readable type on thin paper, and bound and boxed in ooze.

THE American Statesmen Series, two volumes of which are written by President Roosevelt, have won a high position as popular biographies, presenting our history in its most attractive and instructive form. This series was completed some years ago, and Houghton, Mifflin & Co. have now begun the publication of The American Statesmen, Second Series, comprising the men who have been the most prominent in statecraft since the Civil War. The first volume, "James G. Blaine," by Edward Stanwood, is just ready, and three others are in preparation—"John Sherman," by Hon. Theodore E. Burton, of Ohio, a close friend and political leader of Sherman; "Ulysses S. Grant," by Hon. Samuel W. McCall, Congressman for Massachusetts; and "William McKinley," by T. C. Dawson, United States Minister to San Domingo.

MCCLURE, PHILLIPS & Co. call attention to Austin Brereton's volume on "The Lyceum and Henry Irving," which they brought out in such sumptuous style about two years ago, and which will certainly satisfy the great demand of the hour for a life of Henry Irving. They have just ready "The Greek View of Life," by G. Lowes Dickinson, a scholarly investigation and explanation of the attitude of the Greeks toward life, nature and humanity, based upon his thorough study of the classics; and shortly promise Professor Woodberry's study of "Swinburne," which will be added to their Contemporary Men of Letters series. E. J. Dillon's book on "The Birth of the Russian Nation," expected this fall, will not appear till the spring, as the author can write his closing chapters with more definite judgment since the closing of the great war and the signing of the peace treaties with Japan.

THE UNIT BOOK PUBLISHING COMPANY, 70 Fifth Avenue, New York City, successors to Howard Wilford Bell, announces the publication on November 15 of the "Letters and Addresses of Thomas Jefferson." This book will be the ninth volume in the Unit Series, and the third of the Unit Books treating of American statesmanship—the first being the "Letters and Addresses of Abraham Lincoln," and the second "National Documents, or State Papers so Arranged as to Illustrate the Growth of Our Country from 1606 to the Present Day. The book will run to between 350 and 400 pages, and, priced on the Unit System, will cost approximately thirty, sixty, and eighty cents in its three different bindings of paper, cloth and leather. The publishers propose to continue their American Statesmen Series until the principal letters and addresses of all the most prominent and popular American statesmen are included.

HERBERT B. TURNER & Co. have just issued "Sir Galahad of New France," by William Henry Johnson, author of "French Pathfinders in North America," "The World's Discoverers," etc. This is a story of the Natchez tribe of Indians which inhabited the regions of the lower Mississippi, who were pronounced by the early explorers to be people of intelligence and of amiable disposition far different from the Iroquois, Hurons and Illinois, who were mere brutes, fierce and cruel as any wild beasts; "Back to Arcady," by Frank Waller Allen, under which general title are published five short sketches separately, entitled "My Lady of Roses," "After the Silence of Years," "An Orchard in Arcady," "My Lady and Loving Kindness," and the title romance, all printed within green borders and dressed for the holidays. Also just published is a pretty edition of Stevenson's "A Child's Garden of Verses and Underwoods."

DODD, MEAD & Co. have in "The Man from Red Keg" a worthy successor to Eugene Thwing's first novel, "The Red-Keggers." Red Keg was a great lumbering and farming community, where strong men and brave women lived hard lives between 1868 and 1871. The new story has the same vigorous life, the same sincerity and heart-grip, and is made very interesting by an underlying mystery which keeps the reader wondering impossible solutions till all is cleared most naturally. It is, of course, a charming love story, of which the first edition was exhausted before publication. On October 31 they will bring out "Great Portraits Described by Great Writers," by Esther Singleton; the annual "Elsie Book," this year to be entitled "Elsie and Her Namesakes," with which Martha Finley will again delight her constantly increasing circle of readers; and "A Yankee in Pigmy Land," by William Edgar Geil, the great traveller, who has seen more pagan people and more savage tribes and races than almost any other living man.

D. APPLETON & COMPANY have had an especially large sale of "Four-in-Camp," by Ralph Henry Barbour; "The Outcast Warrior," by Kirk Monroe; Robert W. Chambers's picture and story book, entitled "Forest-Land;" and "Little Miss Cricket," by Gabrielle E. Jackson. The Appletons are bringing out five books by Miss Jackson this fall, four of which are old favorites in a new dress. Their fiction is also received with favor, especially Robert W. Chambers's "The Reckoning," reported one of the great successes of the year. All the holiday books published by D. Appleton & Company are having a large sale in anticipation of the holiday season. The advance orders for the de luxe edition of "Nancy Stair," by Elinor Macartney Lane, exceeded the binding order, and the orders for the "Seven Seas" and the "Seats of the Mighty" were exceptionally large. They announce that they have already disposed of three editions of "Nancy Stair" to the Australian market, two editions of "Iole," and one edition of the "Yellow Journalist."

CHARLES CLARK MUNN has changed the title of his next book, already announced for publication in early spring by the Lothrop, Lee & Shepard Co., from "Chip, a Waif of the Wilderness," to "The Girl from Tim's Place." Mr. Munn states that the subject of this sketch is not imaginary. In the northern wilderness of Maine there was formerly a rude place of entertainment for lumbermen and chance sportsmen called "Tim's Place." Here Mr. Munn was once waited upon by a strikingly handsome girl, who was a veritable slave, working barefooted and wearing only men's cast-off clothing. She was nicknamed "Chip," and proved to be the child of a father who was an escaped convict, but she had had a mother of excellent character, from whom she inherited tastes which revolted against her sordid life. She made a desperate escape, the result of which became known to Mr. Munn five years from the time he first saw this strangely interesting girl. The pathos, excitement and romance of the whole story combined to move him to writing "The Girl from Tim's Place."

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY publish this week Charles Major's new novel, "Yolanda: Maid of Burgundy;" "The Toll of the Bush," by William Satchell; "The Cat," by Miss Violet Hunt, in the series of Animal Autobiographies; "The Whitewashing of Julia," a play by Henry Arthur Jones: the Students' edition of Professor Edward Bradford Titchener's "Experimental Psychology: Quantitative:" Hoeffding's "Philosophical Problems," translated and revised under the supervision of and with a preface by Professor William James, of Harvard University; "Civil War and Reconstruction in Alabama," by Professor Walter L. Fleming; "New Amsterdam Music Reader," No. IV.; "Cranford," edited by Professor Martin W. Sampson, and "The Courtship of Miles Standish," edited by Professor William D. Howe, in the new series of Macmillan's Pocket Classics; the first volume of the new edition of Schnabel's "Metallurgy;" "The Age of Justinian," volume I; a new edition of "Architect, Owner and Builder Before the Law," by T. M. Clark; Snell's "Age of Transition," two volumes; and the life of "Sam Bough."

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS publish to-day "Outdoor Pastimes of an American Hunter," by President Roosevelt, a handsomely illustrated volume, containing a graphic account of the author's recent hunting trips in Colorado, Oklahoma and Yellowstone Park. There are also chapters on the interests and resources of a lover of animal life and in a chapter entitled "At Home," the author describes his experiences with animals in captivity. Only a small portion of this book has ever before been published. Of this book the publishers have prepared an edition de luxe of 250 copies, signed by the author. They have also just ready "The History of Egypt," by James H. Breasted, (with numerous illustrations,) covering the subject from the earliest times to the conquest of the Persians, founded on recent original researches made by the author, who is professor of Egyptology in the University of Chicago; "Essays in Application," by Henry Van Dyke, illustrating the application of a sane and lofty idealism to the practical problem of life; and "The Spirit of Christmas," also by Dr. Van Dyke, which holds the author's most loving and beautiful expression of the Christmas spirit in story and essay.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have just brought out the following books: "Some Ethical Gains Through Legislation," by Mrs. Florence Kelly, in the Citizen's Library, which discusses the gain achieved in legislation and also that remaining to be achieved; "The City, and Other Poems," by Arthur Upson; "The Garden That I Love," by Alfred Austin, poet laureate, in a richly illustrated edition, with sixteen pictures reproduced in colors from paintings by George S. Elgood; "Normandy Painted by Nico Jungman, Described by G. E. Mitton;" "The Origin and Influence of the Thoroughbred Horse," by William Ridgeway; "Pioneers of Modern Education, 1600-1700," by John William Adamson, Professor of Education in King's College, London; "Bacchylides: the Poems and Fragments," edited, with introduction, notes and prose translation, by Sir Richard C. Jebb; "The Toll of the Bush," by William Satchell; "The Black Bear," by H. Perry Robinson, in the series of Animal Autobiographies; "Yolanda: Maid of Burgundy," a new story by Charles Major, author of "When Knighthood Was in Flower," etc., with illustrations by Charlotte W. Ditzler; W. S. Harwood's book on Luther Burbank's "New Creations in Plant Life:" also, "Sir Joshua Reynolds," by Rowley Cleeve, in Bell's Miniature Series of Painters.

"The Pang-Yanger" Is Going to Sell

We are going to make it sell. Here is a list of newspapers read by fifteen million people. Read what we say in them to the public. Then notice what we say to you—that "The Pang-Yanger" is the name of a book which has in it the real elements of success. The quicker that success comes, the better it will be for you and for us. It is a book that it will pay you to push. Just watch it and see if we are not right.

"My Friend the Chauffeur" is Selling

October 3d we inserted an ad of "My Friend the Chauffeur" in the attached list of newspapers. The result was instantaneous. The book started at once. Telegraphic reorders have come from all over the country. See that you are prepared for the increased demand that is bound to come for this clever book. Bear in mind that we are going to push it with the most comprehensive advertising ever done by a publisher. Advertising is not everything, but advertising joined with a good book cannot be beat.

"My Friend the Chauffeur" by C. N. and A. M. Williamson. With sixteen illustrations. Cloth, 12 mo. $1.50

For the First Week of November

General Sociology — ALBION W. SMALL

The birth of a new science is an impressive event. Professor Small here argues that the investigation of social phenomena has acquired sufficient definiteness and system to take its place among the recognized sciences. The book is an exposition of the development of social theory from Spencer to Ratzenhofer. xiv + 739 pp.; 8vo, cloth; net, $4.00; postpaid, $4.23.

A Decade of Civic Development — CHARLES ZUEBLIN

The work of a vigorous optimist, who tells his readers in clear, concise terms what has been done in the last ten years for the betterment of our cities. The movement for civic improvement has swept the country; its eventual results are beyond calculation. No citizen can afford to remain in ignorance of a matter which so intimately affects his own welfare. 200 pp.; illustrated; 12mo, cloth; net, $1.25 postpaid, $1.38.

Primary Facts in Religious Thought — ALFRED W. WISHART

The religious needs of our generation are admittedly peculiar. This attempt to suggest a clue for the solving of some widespread difficulties will prove interesting to all thoughtful minds. The author starts with the conception of religion as a universal, inevitable human experience, shows its intimate connection with the life of society, and suggests how the essence can be kept in spite of changing views on minor points. 125 pp.; 12mo, cloth; net, 75 cents; postpaid, 85 cents.

Recent Books of Importance

Russia and its Crisis — PAUL MILYOUKOV

The most authoritative and accurate account of Russian past development and present conditions available in English. The author is a representative of the liberal party known as the "Intellectuals," and was recently imprisoned because of his activity in the cause of freedom. 602 pp.; 8vo, cloth; net, $3.00; postpaid, $3.20.

Christian Belief Interpreted by Christian Experience — CHARLES CUTHBERT HALL

This interesting volume contains the "Barrows Lectures," delivered by President Hall in the leading cities of India and Japan, in connection with the lectureship founded by Mrs. Caroline E. Haskell. 300 pp.; 8vo, cloth; net, $1.50; postpaid, $1.66.

The Prophetic Element in the Old Testament — WILLIAM R. HARPER

The latest volume in the series of Constructive Bible Studies. A scholarly handbook for advanced students. The prophetic element is interpreted in the light of Jewish history and literature, and with the help of the ancient monuments. viii + 142 pp.; 8vo, cloth; postpaid, $1.00.

Religion and the Higher Life — WILLIAM R. HARPER

A series of earnest talks to students. x + 284 pp.; 12mo, cloth; net, $1.00; postpaid, $1.09.

The Trend in Higher Education — WILLIAM R. HARPER

Essays on timely educational topics. xii + 390 pp.; 12mo, cloth; net, $1.50; postpaid, $1.63.

Place of Industries in Elementary Education — KATHARINE E. DOPP

A scientific and practical treatise. 278 pp.; illustrated; 12mo, cloth; net, $1.00; postpaid, $1.11.
